Defiant Students Hold Faculty Club

UBC Group Exits at Noon

VANCOUVER (CP)—Militant students at the University of British Columbia left the university's faculty club premises shortly after noon today to attend a student rally called to discuss their action. It was not immediately known whether they would attempt later to return to the club, which they had occupied for almost 24 hours.

VANCOUVER (CP)—A hard-core group of about 60 students continued their occupation of the faculty club at the University of British Columbia today, rejecting pleas by faculty members and officials to leave the building.

The sit-in demonstration followed a "swinging party" by about 1,000 students who invaded the club Thursday afternoon and 500 stayed throughout the night.

University officials today said they feared violence could erupt among some of the university's 20,000 students if the sit-in demonstration continued.

Most of the students still occupying the club were described as members of the Students for a Democratic Society, a radical organization with about 45 members on the UBC campus.

CALLS MEETING

The Alma Mater Society, student governing body on the campus, condemned the faculty club invasion and was organizing a special general meeting of the student body later today to discuss the issue.

UBC officials and faculty members said there was a danger students opposing the occupation might invade the building in a counter-demonstration against the radicals. They said such action could touch off a violent clash between the opposing groups.

Faculty club officials coolly met the invasion of their premises Thursday by declaring an "open house" and inviting the students to stay for the rest of the day.

Students brought in a five-man combo to play rock music, touching off a swinging party.

LOUD MUSIC

Shortly after midnight, a student, bellowing above jangling music, roared to a telephoning reporter:

"Hey, it's a helluva party out here; why don't you guys come on out?"

"That's right," confirmed Prof. David Huberman, inspecting the dancing, singing crowd in the UBC Faculty Club. "They're having a swinging party."

About 1,000 laughing students "liberated" the building—restricted to members and guests—and about 200 stayed inside. As word of the party spread, the crowd grew to exceed 500 again.

Many of the young persons there said they planned to stay in the club through today. Prof. Huberman, president of the club, said authorities planned no immediate action to remove them.

"The crowd is very orderly and we are not unduly concerned at this stage," he said early today. "However, a lot of these people, in the hard core, are not from our campus. They are hippies."

Students marched light-heartedly on the building after Jerry Rubin, 30, head of the Youth International Party in the United

Bomb Raids Stepped Up

SAIGON (AP) — American fighter-bombers took advantage of improved weather to deal North Vietnam's supply lines some of the heaviest blows given them in several weeks, military spokesmen reported today.

While reports from Washington said lack of agreement on two major points is blocking a complete halt to American bombing of the North, U.S. pilots logged 122 missions Thursday between the demilitarized zone and the 19th parallel.

The improved weather, with scattered clouds at 3,000 feet, continued today as U.S. jets kept up their attacks on North Vietnamese trucks, boats, storage areas, highways and bridges. Reports on today's strikes will not be announced until Saturday.

Authorities also said there is no agreement on including the South Vietnamese government and the National Liberation Front, in the next phase of the Paris peace talks.

Meanwhile, U.S. and South Vietnamese forces kept up their pressure on guerrilla ground forces despite a continuing lull in Communist operations, and military spokesmen reported at least 447 North Vietnamese have been killed in the last three days in the northeast corner of South Vietnam.

Truth About Onassis

Two Attempts Were Made On His Life

This is the second of three artices which tell the behind-the-scenes life of Aristotle Socrates Onassis, who has married Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy.

By FRED SPARKS and STEPHANOS ZOTOS

NEW YORK (NANA) — New York's ultra-expensive Hotel Pierre is on Fifth Avenue at 61st Street, in the heart of Moneyville, U.S.A.

Through the hotel's revolving door, on this particular recent morning, comes a man in his thirties, a swarthy Mediterranean type. He is well groomed, well tailored and very well built. Powerful.

An experienced, observant passerby notes a bulge in the man's jacket under the right shoulder.

The Mediterranean type looks carefully up and down Fifth Avenue, then raises a hand and a Lincoln Continental pulls up to the curb.

Many Would Like to Kill Him

Almost simultaneously Aristotle Socrates Onassis emerges from the hotel, nods at the doorman, and steps into his car. The other man, the Mediterranean type, sits up front. He is Onassis' bodyguard.

Why does Aristotle Onassis, who has just married John F. Kennedy's widow, need a bodyguard.

Well, for one thing, he is one of the richest men in the world, and some hungry gents might try to kidnap him.

For another thing, there are many people who would like to kill him — or have him killed.

Onassis made his billion in the very brass-knuckled business of international shipping — and Lord knows how many other enterprises — and on the way up he made many bitter enemies among rivals, union members, and even among his relatives.

From a long-time Onassis employee, and from a member of the crew of his yacht, Christina, these correspondents learned of two attempts on his life, neither was reported to the authorities.

The first occurred three years ago as Onassis left one of his tankers, docked on the Marseilles waterfront.

A disgruntled sailor, charging that Onassis paid "slave wages," approached the tycoon waving a hunting knife with a surgical intent. The bodyguard quickly subdued and disarmed him.

Sniper Fired Three Shots

The other attempt took place one bright afternoon when Onassis was taking the sun on the deck of his yacht. A sniper fired three shots just above his head.

The late international gadabout, Elsa Maxwell, who often was Onassis' guest, once said: "Women love Ari — men hate and fear him."

Onassis has been blacklisted by the Norwegian Shipowners' Association and the British Chamber of Shipping, one of whose members said: "That Onassis chap, he reminds me of a hairy spider."

His own brother-in-law, ship-owner Stavros Niarchos, growled: "Onassis commits political crimes and economic monstrosities."

On the other hand, J. Paul Getty, who has yet to apply for social security, has liberal praise for Onassis' streamlined money machine.

And leading "old money" American banks have financed some of his more spectacular wheeler-dealings. Furthermore, the "elite" of Europe and America are always ready to enjoy his lavish hospitality.

Onassis is sometimes startingly frank about the necessity of "no nonsense" methods in business.

No Longer Useful?—Drop Them

One time, when Sir Winston Churchill and his doctor, Lord Moran, were cruising on the Christina, Onassis said to Moran: "Sometimes you must be prepared to let your nearest and dearest go to hell when they are no longer of any use to you."

NATO Spy Catchers Face Busy Period

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — Spy-catchers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization are trying to unearth a suspected Soviet espionage ring within and on the fringes of the 15-nation organization, informed sources said Thursday.

Members of national delegations and the international secretariat are being discreetly screened following a series of sudden deaths of military and political persons in West Germany, Italy and Belgium.

They are checking on civilian and military personnel at political headquarters outside Brussels and military headquarters at Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers Europe near Mons in southern Belgium.

There is mounting speculation that the effects of the suspected spy network on NATO defences will be a major topic when NATO foreign and defence ministers meet here Nov. 14-16.

The hunt took on new urgency when a top-ranking Turkish official, Nahit Imre, was caught photocopying secret documents inside the closely-guarded NATO headquarters here in mid-September.

FIVE GERMANS DIE

Five West German officers and civilian government officials mysteriously died during the last two weeks, including Gen. Horst Wendland, deputy head of the intelligence service, and Rear Admiral Hermann Luedke, a former key SHAPE officer in the logistics department.

Officially their deaths were described as suicides, and West German investigators said there is no evidence at present to connect the cases.

In Italy, Gen. Renato Sandalli, former air minister, shot himself Wednesday.

And in Belgium, police are investigating the unexplained death of the Polish-born French wife of an American sergeant employed at SHAPE.

Police said Sgt. Albert Falkon found his wife Irene lying dead in their bedroom when he entered their apartment after midnight one night early this month.

There was a .22-calibre bullet in her head and another in a wall.

Suicides Baffle Bonn

BONN (AP) — The late Rear Admiral Hermann Luedke's premature retirement from a NATO post was not linked with the discovery that he possessed microfilm of secret documents, the West German Parliament was told today.

Eduard Adorno, defence ministry state secretary, answering a series of questions on the suspected espionage affairs, said Luedke, found dead in an Eifel forest Oct. 8, requested early release last March for health reasons. He was 57.

Luedke retired as deputy chief of the logistics department of NATO's European headquarters in Belgium Sept. 30.

Seven days earlier, police were called in by a Bonn photo store which found nine pictures of secret NATO documents on a film handed in by Luedke for developing.

Adorno also told Parliament investigations so far have traced no connection between Luedke's mysterious shooting and the deaths of four other military and civil service officials.

Conrad Ahlers, deputy chief of government spokesman, disclosed at a news conference that six East German agents fled West Germany in early October.

He said two of East German agents "evidently fled back home because of disagreements within the East Berlin espionage apparatus."

Two others left hastily because of the arrest of a colleague who they apparently feared would betray them, Ahlers said.

WIRE BRIEFS

Tanner Wins Heat

MEXICO CITY (CP)—Canada's Elaine Tanner of Winnipeg qualified for tonight's final in the 200-metre backstroke by winning her heat today in two minutes, 30.9 seconds. Kay Hall of Tacoma won her heat in 2:31.1.

Hutton in Final

MEXICO CITY (CP)—Ralph Hutton of Ocean Falls, B.C., today came second in his heat of the 1,500-metre freestyle and qualified for Saturday's 1,500-metre final in Olympic swimming competition.

Planes To Stay

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said today the government does not intend to withdraw Hercules transport planes from the would-be relief operation in Nigeria and Biafra "at least for the next few days."

He said in the Commons in reply to a barrage of opposition questions that the government is trying to obtain Nigerian permission for the Hercules to fly into Biafra from the islands of Sao Tome or Fernando Poo "or anywhere else."

Million Dollars Worth of Relief

By W. RALPH THOMAS

The lady knows she cannot be cured.

Every morning for the rest of her life she will slowly get out of bed and painfully shuffle around for a few hours, trying to get rid of some of the stiffness and soreness in her hands, knees and feet.

Usually the afternoons will be easier than the mornings. Other days the afternoons will be worse.

Arthritis is a peculiar disease, she says.

She first found out about it seven years ago after a bout with polio neuritis. When she recovered from the polio she was left crippled with neuritis. Since then she has learned a great deal about it.

The first thing she learned was that the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society could help her. Treatments at the CARS clinic became one of the most important things in her life.

The hot wax applications loosed the muscles and joints in her hands and feet, giving her relief from the pain for a few hours.

A physiotherapist gave her exercises to strengthen her muscles and to keep them from becoming too stiff.

And most importantly, the staff and patients at the clinic understood that pain and depression are often synonymous.

This understanding is as important to most patients as the treatments.

Although there is no cure for arthritis and the methods of treating it are essentially thousands of years old, the people at the CARS clinic know all that is now known about it.

They can prevent it from getting worse, they can relieve much of the pain, and they understand.

The Community Chest supports CARS and will allot $18,750 of this year's $655,000 objective to their program.

This should buy a few million dollars worth of relief for a few hundred sufferers in the Victoria area.

The students hev captured th' faculty club, but it's still a question as t' which side is lackin' its faculties.

Closing School Start of Protest

By CY FOX

LONDON (CP) — First signs of the radical demonstrations expected here this weekend have developed at a long-time hotbed of student discontent, the London School of Economics.

Today the school, situated in the east-central section of the capital, is in a state of paralysis, with some students occupying part of it and others indignant at what they call a decision by its director to cancel classes immediately.

Police are lined up outside the main building of LSE.

Inside, the left-wing students who Thursday night spearheaded a decision to occupy the premises were quietly blocking the entrance and carrying on with denunciations of United States policy in Vietnam.

Opposition to U.S. policy also lies behind extensive demonstration planned by radical groups for Sunday. Authorities fear violence may erupt.

The LSE radicals called for student occupation of their school so that it could be used for "sanctuary, discussion and first aid" by demonstrators—whose numbers, police say, could reach 50,000.

In a Thursday night meeting, they won a close vote in favor of immediate occupation as a way of forestalling the decision by director Dr. Walter Adams that LSE buildings should be shut during the weekend.

This morning, students said that Adams, on hearing of the occupation, had cancelled all classes today.

This provoked anger even on the part of moderates within the student body as well as some members of the teaching staff.

They contended that Adams had not consulted teachers or student leaders before making his cancellation decision.

The moderates, though disagreeing with the anti-U.S. occupation, met in morning sessions in an attempt to have classes continue on a more or less normal basis.

'French-Canadians Risk Identity Loss'

MONTREAL (CP) — La Presse says it is publishing excerpts from a yet-unreleased report of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism because such documents "belong to the people."

In a front-page defence of its action, the newspaper notes that the issue was brought up in the Commons Thursday. Prime Minister Trudeau told the House he was "distressed" by the reports and asked the solicitor-general to investigate whether theft is involved.

"We wish to state that we obtained these documents in the normal performance of our mission to inform the public," La Presse says.

"We receive them from a reliable source and we took steps to assure ourselves of their authenticity. We decided to publish them because it is our opinion that they belong to the people."

The series of articles began Tuesday and is to end with a final story Saturday. The articles are described as excerpts from the commission's third report, dealing with the "economic aspects of the two cultures." Jean-Louis Gagnon, co-chairman of the commission, has said the excerpts are authentic.

MUST RISK IT

In its fourth article today, La Presse says the commission established that a French-speaking Canadian has to risk the loss of his identity to succeed in the world of big business.

"The young French-speaking person who wants to make his career in industry finds himself in a dilemma: He feels he must choose between his personal advancement and the partial loss of his linguistic and cultural identity.

"If French-speaking people take the interests of their company to heart and absorb them fully, it is at the risk, they feel, of selling out their individual identity as well as their collective responsibility to the society and the culture in which they were born."

Half the French-speaking executives employed by major firms felt that one of their number who moves up in the company "is more English than French."

A French-Canadian who has received several promotions in an English-speaking firm "has to protect the interests of English-Canadians to the detriment of those of French-Canadians."

The commission found that

Press Postage Increases To Be Gradual

By CARL MOLLINS

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has yielded slightly under attack on its plan to raise postal rates but the opposition is still fighting mad.

The Commons today was to resume debate on the post office bill—for the fifth straight day—after progress towards its passage bogged down in angry argument.

Postmaster - General Eric Kierans won approval in principle on second reading of his bill Thursday on the strength of the Liberal vote alone—126 to 78—then promised to soften the impact of higher postal charges for newspapers by staging the increases over a year.

Standing in the 264-seat Commons: Liberal 155, Conservative 72, NDP 21, Creditiste 14, Independent 1, vacant 1.

With opposition charges of "blackmail" against the government and retorts of "filibuster," both sides of the House seemed in a stubborn mood when Thursday's sitting—extended by one hour—broke up at 11 p.m. EDT.

The Kierans bill would raise the rate for first-class mail to six cents from four for local delivery—a category abolished—and five for out-of-town letters. The letter rates would go up Nov. 1.

INCREASE VARIES

Rates for books, magazines and newspapers—prime source of contention during debate—would climb by various amounts up to 300 per cent.

The higher charges for publications were due next April 1, but Mr. Kierans told the House the bill would be amended to stretch the increases over another year.

"This will apply particularly to the rates in respect of newspapers, mainly weeklies," he said, because members maintained they were in "a particularly perilous situation financially."

However, Mr. Kierans insisted the full amount must be imposed.

Newspapers paid only nine per cent of the cost of carrying them at present and the new rates would raise the share to only 13.5 per cent.

. . . ONASSIS

Besides the enemies, past and present, who endanger Onassis, there have been, on several occasions (as these reporters learned from a source in the New York district attorney's office) hints by the Mafia, that swell gang of playboys, that they'd like some of the Onassis action. (Who wouldn't?)

Onassis has long operated in an atmosphere which generates political violence.

Like his activities in Saudi Arabia, where he tried to cash in on anti-American feelings generated by Washington's pro-Israel policy.

The anti-U.S. bloc, headed by Jamal Husseini, a cousin of the Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, wanted Saudi ships to carry Saudi oil instead of relying on foreign vessels, primarily those by Armco—the Arabian American Oil Co.

Wanted 10 Per Cent of Cargo

Onassis, informed of these developments, contacted Husseini, and proposed to build and operate a Saudi tanker fleet—flying the Saudi flag—in return for the right to carry 10 per cent of Saudi oil in his own tankers, a concession that would have netted him twice as much money as any other man on this earth.

His proposal was accepted and Onassis triumphantly arrived in Jiddah—where camels are milked in the streets—to be received like a long-lost disciple of the prophet himself.

However, when the news broke, the U.S. state department, fearful that Saudi tankers might one day fall into Russian hands, denounced the deal and put diplomatic pressure on the Saudis.

Then Onassis was accused of bringing off his coup by paying some $830,000 in bribes to the foreign minister, Sheik Abdullah el Sulleiman el Hamdan, and to the minister of trade, Abdullah Ali Reza.

Something was wrong. King Saud, real upset, sacked El Hamdan straightaway and tore up the contract, and that was that.

Furthermore, several junior functionaries, who had dealt with Onassis or his agents, were taken out and shot.

If Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis believes—as she has said—that her marriage to Onassis will bring her peace and serenity, and remove her from the atmosphere of instant violence she lived with so tragically long, she is either mistaken or very naive.

. . . STUDENTS

States, urged them in a campus address to "liberate" the Faculty Club.

At one stage, a man identifying himself as Bob Cronback, 22, of San Francisco, swam nude in a fishpond behind the club for five minutes. Male and female students watched.

"The vibrations were good," he said.

A young student hoisted a Viet Cong flag to the top of the faculty club pole. Seconds later, three other students hauled it down and ripped it to shreds.

Some students burned $1, $2 and $5 bills to protest against a society which "holds money all important."

Among resident guests at the Faculty Club is Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew of Singapore, here on a study visit until Nov. 8.

He had left the building to attend a dinner and later moved into an off-campus home.

Prof. Huberman said he got angry only once—when students invaded Prime Minister Lee's suite and started to open his liquor. They were ejected and the door of the suite was locked.

The 24-member student council, however, held a special meeting on the "liberation" and passed a resolution condemning the occupation of the faculty club.

"We don't condemn protests but we do condemn the breaking of laws when other people's rights are infringed upon," said council member Jerry Grafton.

The students made no move to keep faculty or guests from entering or leaving the occupied building. Prof. Huberman said there had been "minimal" damage. Several students admitted doing damage and left their names.

Nixon Refuted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defence Secretary Clark Clifford today disputed Richard Nixon's claim that the United States faced a serious "security gap." He released figures showing America could launch four times as many nuclear warheads as Russia despite a continuing Soviet buildup. (See earlier story Page 12.)

WEEKEND WEATHER PICTURE ACROSS CANADA

SYNOPSIS — The intense storm centre which battered the Queen Charlotte Islands with winds reaching 70 miles per hour, Thursday night is tracking through northern British Columbia toward Alberta. Right behind the storm, winds at Cape St. James on the southern Queen Charlotte Islands, sprang up to northwest 75 with higher gusts at 5 a.m. this morning. A disturbance trailing southward from the storm centre swept out the fog as it crossed the south coast this morning. It will take a band of rain with it through the Interior today. Behind the disturbance cooler air will spread over the forecast district developing some cloud and a few showers today. However, rising pressures will establish clear skies in most areas by this evening. A ridge of high pressure will form by morning and Saturday will see sunny skies in all regions. The next disturbance will send cloud into the Gulf of Alaska Saturday but cloud is not expected to reach the north coast until Saturday evening.

LIE-IN GOES INDOORS AS RAIN FALLS ON HILL

OTTAWA (CP) — Demonstrators against the Nigerian war took refuge in a church hall Thursday night when a steady rain forced them from Parliament Hill.

However, throughout the night, groups of four took turns on the Hill, circling the Centennial Flame with placards demanding that Canada act at the United Nations to promote a ceasefire in Nigeria.

There were about 50 demonstrators, mostly from Toronto and Ottawa. The protest and fast which began Wednesday morning was expected to end today.

Vaccines Effective Against New Flu

By NATE HASELTINE
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The first scientific evidence that at least some of last year's batches of influenza vaccines are protective against the new mutant strain of flu, called A-2 Hong Kong-68, has been communicated to the scientific community.

Dr. Maurice R. Hilleman, noted virologist, made such a report to a meeting of the Kalamazoo Academy of Medicine, Kalamazoo, Michigan.

The older shots found most effective against the Hong Kong variant expected in epidemic proportions in United States and Canada this upcoming flu season, is an experimental vaccine produced by Merck Institute for Therapeutic Research, West Point, Pa.

In the vaccine the antivirus material is contained in a peanut oil adjuvant (the peanut oil being in a water emulsion).

The experimental vaccine was found to produce protective antibodies (disease fighters) in the blood of 56 per cent of the recipients getting two injections of the substance, Dr. Hilleman reported.

He pointed out that antibodies to the Hong Kong variant were almost nonexistent in blood samples of patients who received the conventional aqueous vaccines, but were found in 34 per cent of those getting but one shot of the peanut oil vaccine.

While both types of vaccines stimulated antibodies against the older flu strains in almost all patients vaccinated in the tests, Dr. Hilleman said antibody levels were about four times higher in those patients receiving the adjuvant vaccine.

The Merck company is one of the many larger vaccine makers now carrying out a crash program to develop a special vaccine to work against the Hong Kong threat.

Que. Seeks Trudeau's Aid

QUEBEC (CP) — Financial Institutions Minister Yves Gabias today appealed to Prime Minister Trudeau to help Quebec obtain more extensive jurisdiction over immigration.

The minister made the appeal in the legislative assembly during second reading debate of a government bill to establish what Mr. Gabias described as the first provincial immigration department in Canada.

The bill authorizes Quebec to establish immigration offices outside the province to recruit immigrants suited to integration in Quebec's French-language community.

many firms were willing to hire French-speaking people for key posts, but on three conditions: the candidate must have a perfect mastery of English, he must be willing to be transferred out of Quebec and he must function in the same way as his English-speaking colleagues—that is, he must think and react in English.

In the face of this situation, most French-speaking university graduates in commerce, science and engineering were choosing careers in the Quebec civil service or in private practice rather than in industry.

The reasons why so few French-Canadians reached top management posts lay with both language groups—"on one hand, in the training and attitudes of French-speaking people, and on the other hand in the policies and practices of English-speaking companies."

FEW FRENCH

In 1961, only 33 per cent of the engineers and 38 per cent of the scientists working in Quebec were of French origin. The commission noted that French-language universities have begun to pay more attention to science and engineering, but are still far behind.

"The French-Canadian universities have a long way to go if they want to become the equivalent for French-speaking people of what the English-Canadian universities are for English-speaking people, in terms of preparation for scientific and technical careers."

The commission concluded that bilingualism for the English-speaking businessman has "an abstract value, symbolic of good faith," but for his French-speaking counterpart it is "vital, necessary in the practice of his profession."

Because of the pressure of the North American business world, "English will remain the dominant working language, even in the French-speaking regions of Canada."

Wallace Big At N.Y. Rally

By WALTER PINCUS
The Washington Post

NEW YORK — Third party candidate George Wallace and his travelling political road show received a thunderous ovation from 15,000 admirers in Madison Square Garden Thursday night.

For 20 minutes, the Alabama farm boy, whose presidential campaign has shaken the eye teeth of both major parties, soaked up the cheers and applause of his fervent supporters. They carried banners, waved placards and, just like the rallies of the major political parties, they were bombarded by balloons dropped from the ceiling.

During the impromptu demonstration that greeted his appearance, the band played a mixture of Dixie and "Yankee Doodle Dandy" while Wallace walked back and forth on the platform, waved, and held up the hand of his running mate, Gen. Curtis E. Lemay.

NEW VIGOR

When his time came to perform, Wallace banged out 40 minutes of his routine campaign speech with new vigor. His supporters responded with roars of approval for his attacks on "the sick Supreme court . . the multi-billion dollar tax-free foundations .. the Kerner commission . . . big city newspapers . . . guideline writers . . . long hair students and professors who want the Viet Cong to win."

Toward the end of his speech, when police in the top balcony removed some of the 400 hecklers spotted around the Garden, the Wallace audience drowned out the uproar with the repeated cheer "We want Wallace, we want Wallace."

When it was over the former Alabama governor was asked as he entered his car how he felt. He looked up with a smile and said "It was great, wasn't it?"

The police motorcade then went back to the hotel and thus Wallace never saw the hundreds of protesters outside who battled with police all evening on the opposite side of the Garden.

STAFF ELATED

Wallace's staff was elated at the reception he received. Though they had not packed the Garden — it could have held 3,000 more — they had not run into the disruptions they had feared and felt they had triumped over New York, a city that had held them in awe.

In the speech prepared for the Garden rally, Wallace charged that "computerized defence" policies instituted by former defence secretary Robert McNamara were failing to provide an "adequate and effective defence of this nation."

The third-perty candidate flew in to this overcast city following a successful noon rally in Durham, N.C. He was met at LaGuardia airport's private terminal by dozens of policemen — all assigned to protect him on arrival.

Police lined the roadway from the airport and travelled ahead and behind him in a motorcade that sped through pre-rush hour traffic. It took less than 25 minutes to go the 10 miles from the airport to his downtown hotel.

More than 100 policemen filled the lobby of the Hotel McAlpin, and they closed off elevator service for five minutes after his arrival.

This kind of eager police protection is normal for Wallace in the south, but it was a little unusual in a city whose force is supposed to be suffering from "Hong Kong flu" over demands for a pay raise.

"Everybody is back on duty tonight," a police officer said as he was running a protective detail assigned to Wallace. "He's a sure cure for the flu."

The protection was equal to that afforded President Johnson and, according to one police captian, heavier than that given the other candidates.

'PARTY OF DIVISION AND HATE'

By The Washington Post

NEW BEDFORD, Mass.—In a blistering attack on George Wallace and his American Independent Party, Sen. Edward Kennedy called on voters Thursday to reject the party as an extremist organization rife with members of the Ku Klux Klan and Minutemen.

The Massachusetts Senator warned that a large vote for the third party this year could throw the country into a constitutional crisis and turn the Wallace movement "into a permanent party of division and hate."

W. GERMANS SIGN PACT FOR JETS

BONN (AP) — West Germany will buy $865,000,000 worth of Phantom and Stafighter jets from the United States and sell Leopard tanks valued at $140,000,000 to The Netherlands under terms of two big defence deals clinched Thursday.

After nearly four years of political haggling, the parliamentary defence committee approved the jet plane contract by a slim margin.

Saturday's Vital Job

THE HOSPITAL REFERENDUM on which the owner-electors of the Capital Region will vote tomorrow poses a question with only one acceptable answer. Voters have only to refer to the long waiting lists of residents trying to get a hospital bed, or consider the waiting time—almost a year—before many a surgical case can get attention, to realize that we face not a mere frill or improvement but a serious emergency.

The 600 extended-care beds which form the main project to be financed by the vote are badly needed for convalescent and long-term patients. But equally required are the many acute-care beds in existing hospitals which will thereby be freed for patients waiting for them. In addition, some of the money will be devoted directly to construction and renovation of acute-care facilities, for badly needed equipment, and for provision of land and plans for the next building phase.

The statistics of the Agnew Peckham report, of course, give the facts regarding need. But almost every resident of the region can provide personal knowledge of family members, friends or acquaintances who have suffered from the sorry lack of hospital accommodation which confronts us and is steadily getting worse. Defeat of the referendum would set back the program now devised to meet the most pressing needs, but it could not possibly result in abandonment of the plans. The project would have to be submitted again as soon as permissible—we would merely have lost more precious time.

The $9.3 millions which is the cost of the building phase immediately ahead will not be borne entirely by the property owners. The provincial government provides about 60 per cent of the total, and there are in addition federal grants and special grants for equipment. Few such referendums have received the widespread endorsement from municipal heads, community leaders, practising doctors and interested citizens which the present one has been given. So obvious is the need for action at this late date that its passage should be merely a matter of form.

But that does not mean that eligible voters can stay away from the polls. Every vote is needed to give this vital referendum a resounding affirmation.

It is more than a duty to vote "yes". It is a necessity.

Don't Blame the UN

THE UNITED NATIONS IS UNder criticism these days that stems from frustration over its inability to do anything about Vietnam, Czechoslovakia or Nigeria. The attacks assume different forms, depending on the point of view. Some complain that the small Afro-Asian nations are taking over the organization and thwarting the interests of non-whites. Others blame the big powers for being concerned only with preserving the East-West detente at any cost.

The range of criticism points up the obvious: there is nothing wrong with the United Nations that a change of heart by some of its members would not quickly cure. It is unlikely however that the UN can ever be made to run smoothly and efficiently, pleasing everyone, because that is not the way of international affairs. But there are a few basic changes that would go a long way toward making it more effective. Some of them were pointed out here this week by retired Canadian diplomat Chester Ronning.

Noting that the major powers down-grade the Secretary-General whenever his recommendations do not coincide with their own policies, Mr. Ronning said the office should enojy greater authority in the handling of international disputes. He also suggests that the Security Council be expanded to include the "middle powers" as permanent members, and that more nations be added to the rotating, non-permanent list. This should enable UN members to unite more effectively in making decisions.

The foreign ministers of the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France have tentatively agreed to meet within the next few months to discuss ways of strengthening the UN. Their discussions should indicate whether there is a genuine desire by the Big Four to sacrifice a little of their individual sovereignty in the interest of peace.

They might also wisely consider enlarging their exclusive club and the Security Council to admit the representatives of 700 million people who do not now have a voice in collective international affairs. As Mr. Ronning pointed out, the United Nations Charter can never have full meaning until Communist China becomes a signatory.

Ferment Within

WHEN RUSSIAN FORCE WAS used to roll back liberalization in Czechoslovakia, Kremlinologists made the point that such action appeared imperative to the men of Moscow to check the infection of liberalization in Russia itself. If the Czechoslovakians could get away with it, there was no telling what dissident Russians would do. So ran the argument.

Analytical reports on the trial and sentence of five Soviet citizens for demonstrating in Red Square against the application of Russian force in Prague expand the theory. Among the persons sentenced were the grandson of Maxim Litvinov and the wife of distinguished writer Yuli M. Daniel, now serving a five-year term in a corrective labor camp. Others included a reputable philologist of the Russian Language Institute of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, a youthful poet and an unemployed worker.

Significantly, they were not officially charged with demonstrating against the state's military move in Czechoslovakia. They were charged with interfering with traffic and disturbing public order. The political element was played down. While their sentences were severe enough, they were substantially milder than they might have been.

Moscow left no doubt that it was administering discipline, but it refrained from using the heavy club. The reason seems obvious. The personalities involved and the sentiment they expressed were attractive to so many Russians that the state avoided vicious punishment to protect itself against a greater show of revulsion among its own people.

Outside the courthouse, those sympathizing with the accused raised their voices against the Russian gag applied to the Czech press. When a young government stooge shouted "My soul belongs to the Party", his declaration was greeted by the question, "For how much did you sell it?"

The ferment obviously continues, not only among dismayed Communists in lands within the Russian orbit, but in Russia itself. And the pragmatists who run the Kremlin are apparently not prepared at this time to apply the harsh repression of an earlier era lest tying down the safety-valve result in explosion.

". . . this Halloween I'm really going to scare the daylights out of them . . . I'm going to dress up as Benson . . ."

FROM WASHINGTON — By JOSEPH ALSOP

Avoiding Embarrassing Details

ONLY two examples are needed to prove the aridity, the lack of content, the failure to get down to practical business, of this 1968 presidential campaign. Both are particularly striking, because both start with positive proposals put forward by the two leading candidates. Most people are hardly aware of the fact; but Richard M. Nixon is committed to end the draft, and to place recruitment for the armed services on a strictly voluntary basis, as soon as the war in Vietnam can be brought to an end. This is as radical a new departure as anyone has proposed in many years, in the area of defence and foreign policy.

Alsop

The cost, to begin with, will certainly be very great indeed. The Nixon staff airily claim that the job can be done for $3 billion per annum — no mean figure, in view of their candidate's other fiscal pronouncements. But this is patent nonsense.

More careful Pentagon estimates of the cost of strictly volunteer armed forces numbering 2,700,000 men — the pre-Vietnam total — range from $4 billion to $17 billion. The rational and down-to-earth figure is between $7 billion and $8 billion without including a penny for the additional cost of maintaining reserve forces in the absence of pressure from the draft. That, surely, will be serious in itself.

More Jobless

But that is by no means all. The publicly proclaimed Nixon fiscal policies include toleration of a somewhat higher unemployment level — about 4.5 per cent — in order to halt inflation. Around half of the additional unemployed would inevitably come from America's black minority. Much less lax management of public welfare is also on the cards under Nixon. This will again affect the black minority most of all.

Thus there will be a stick in the employment-welfare area, to be added to the carrot of the much higher soldiers' pay which alone can attract the men for Nixon's volunteer armed services. And this, of course, is simply a recipe for having armed services, and above all, combat units, with very large percentages of recruits from the black minority.

Contrary to the common impression, the percentage of Negroes in the services has always, to date, been lower than the percentage in the population. In 1965, the peak year, it was only 10.5 per cent; and in that year, the army, which had much the most, was still only 13.9 per cent black. But partly because of the Negro tendency to volunteer for crack outfits, and partly because of educational handicaps closing off specialists' jobs, Negro soldiers comprised as much as 20 per cent of many of the fighting divisions. Then and now, Negro re-enlistment was also about double white re-enlistment.

It is plainly predictable, then, that the Nixon combination of stick and carrot will produce a very big increase in the Negro percentage in the armed services. Since exactly the same factors will be at work, an undue proportion of the volunteers from the black minority will also be concentrated in the combat units. Infantry divisions up to 40 per cent Negro are in fact quite easily foreseeable.

Is This Desirable?

Is this, then, socially and politically desirable, particularly in the present frightening climate in America? No one has even bothered to ask the question, much less discuss it. Meanwhile, equally little attention has been paid to an almost equally radical proposal of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

In his B'nai B'rith speech, which as billed, long weeks ago, as his "keynote," Humphrey denounced the tendency to form "armed guerrilla groups." As president, he said, he would "seek legislation" to outlaw all such groups if the tendency continued.

Obviously, this would be two way legislation, equally applicable to white suburban vigilantes and outfits like the Minutemen, as to the Black Panthers, the Black Guards of the Revolutionary Action Movement, and other less well-known Negro organizations. Obviously, the thing may have to be done, distasteful as it is.

Guerrilla Warfare

We have just been told on high liberal authority in fact that "guerrilla warfare, long a part of the rhetoric of Negro militants, now appears to have the potential of coming into practice." The same authority reported "scores of incidents of sniping at policemen in Negro neighborhoods" in recent months. And no sane nation can placidly tolerate active guerrilla fighting within its borders.

If elected president, Nixon will certainly take the same view of this matter that Humphrey took at the B'nai B'rith rally. If the tendency towards guerrilla action continues, there will be legislation, just as Humphrey said. But does potential president Nixon propose to root out and suppress black guerrilla movements with combat units 40 per cent black? No one knows, because neither of the two leading candidates seems to like talking issues in real detail.

Letter

Sewerage Forum

On Saturday, October 19, 1968, I attended the public forum on "Sanitary sewage disposal and the marine environment" expecting to enjoy an informative discussion by the impressively qualified international experts. I was, together with many others, very disappointed on realizing that all this ability, time and money was being confined exclusively to defending in the most slanted manner the proposed sewer system as recommended in the "Associated Engineering Services Ltd." report.

Prior to the Forum I was generally in favor of the proposed system, however the "one-sidedness" of the presentation has made me suspicious.

Of the panel of eight experts, six engineers and two medical men, I believe five have been involved directly with the AESL report, and that all other officials in the Forum were committed to it.

During the main talks the speakers seemed to deliberately avoid discussing successful and practical alternative schemes operating in other areas, though they did discuss some which were not satisfactory.

In their anxiety to discredit anything other than the proposed system some questionable statements were made.

One speaker said evaporation of waste water from ground disposal systems would be negligible! and that regardless of the system all sewage will find its way to the sea.

I questioned the latter comment but it was disallowed by the chair. (Flatly informed the statement had not been made). I was happy to see the same comment reported in the Times.

Some of the points by the audience in briefs or questions were not very valid, perhaps even foolish, and it was best when they were dealt with politely and simply. However, some panelists chose to hold forth at considerable length on some of these minor points (presumably to crush the trembling opposition) and didn't even deal with other parts of the question. This was rather aggravating when so little time was actually allowed for people to ask questions, in fact one person was approaching the mike to ask a question when the question period was chopped off.

As Mayor Stephen gleefully observed "the visiting experts overwhelmingly sustained the original sewerage report." With a set up like that how could they do otherwise!

Although I am not opposed to the sewerage scheme as such (I vote for the "Enqual" brief) I am very aware of the fact that the home owner will be paying most of the $24 million price tag for trunk sewers and that many millions of dollars in tax free land profits will hinge on these trunks. I think these are good reasons for the general public to resent any hint of railroading. — J. White, 309 View Royal Ave.

FROM EDMONTON — By JAMES H. GRAY

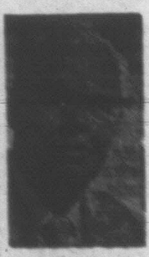
Swinging—and Away from Musty Grain

THE great change that has taken place in the thinking of the people of western Canada has seldom been as heavily underscored as it was in the recent Edmonton civic election. The electors gave their overwhelming approval to a grandiose, Jean Drapeau-type promotion which is as big, almost for Edmonton as Expo was for Montreal.



Gray

The "Edmonton Omniplex" contemplates the construction of a $25,000,000, 30,000-seat covered football stadium, a convention centre and big league hockey rink. The proposal to proceed with the preliminary plans for the project carried by a 72 per cent majority. The next step is to spend $30,000 firming up the cost estimates and the project will again be submitted to the electors as a concrete proposition.

A dozen years ago, even preliminary approval of such a proposal would have been impossible anywhere in the west. Only five years ago the Edmonton electors rejected a proposal to replace the old Edmonton Exhibition arena with a modern hockey rink. In Saskatoon, the electors rejected a sewage treatment plant and in Calgary the big rejection was a library and city hall. Over the years, the cities rejected more improvements than they approved. But no more. Now, the reaction is:

"Hey, that's a good idea! Let's get with it!"

Another indication of a radical change in the public mind was the decision in the same election to repeal all regulation of retail store hours. The notion that civic authorities should regulate store hours goes back to the early days of settlement. It was originally designed to protect store employees from being forced to work 70 and 80 hour weeks. As such it had the full support of organized labor.

Night Shopping

The early closing laws then evolved into a means by which the small merchants could put pressure on the big department and chain stores. Until the women went to work, restriction of store hours caused little inconvenience. But with half the wives working, opening the stores at night became almost a necessity.

The other prairie cities opted for one or two nights a week of shopping. Calgary went for unlimited store hours. Now Edmonton has followed suit by a 74 per cent majority.

Edmonton pundits are interpreting these results as a demand for imaginative leadership in their city's affairs. Yet when the Omniplex vote is placed within the context of the times the decision must cause anyone who remembers the old west to rub his eyes in utter disbelief.

The Old Fear

Twenty years ago a harvest like this one would have had the people of Edmonton quaking in their beds. Not only are the prospects for wheat sales gloomy in the extreme, the city is surrounded by soggy fields of unharvested wheat which is waterlogged, sprouting and toughening.

When the west was agriculturally orientated, and the cities feasted or starved on bumper wheat crops or crop failures, the people of Edmonton would have been retrenching frantically in a fall like this. So indeed would be the people of Saskatoon. But now all eyes are on industrialization and not on the farms. In Edmonton the look is to the oil and chemical refineries and the service industries and in Saskatoon focus is on potash.

All the prairie cities are bursting at the seams with more and more people clamoring for living space. So Edmonton can glance casually at an agricultural disaster and blythely give the go-ahead to the planning for a $25 million fun centre.

There may, of course, be a rude awakening. The wheat crisis is one that must eventually effect everybody in the prairie west. Its major source of wealth is still agriculture. Sooner or later it must face the question of what to do about wheat.

Twenty years ago the wheat glut would have been engaging the attention of every political pundit and editorial writer in the land. Today, all brains departments are more interested in Nigeria, Vietnam, the American election and in taxes. They have ready solutions for these problems, but no one, the farm leaders least of all, have any solution for the wheat problem.

So instead of worrying about unharvested heat, jammed storage space and unavailable markets, everybody focuses on the bright side; on the happy, happy day when Edmonton will host the Grey Cup in its all-new air-conditioned plastic-covered football field.

Park Worries

Calgary Albertan

It is a little comforting to learn from Mr. Fred Peacock, incoming president of the Calgary Chamber of Commerce, that neither his organization nor its national counterpart wants to turn our national parks into completely commercialized recreation grounds. Concern on this score was revived recently when the Canadian Chamber, holding its annual meeting here, adopted a Calgary Chamber resolution calling for expanded commercial development in the parks.

Approval of the resolution brought a protest from the Toronto headquarters of the Algonquin Wildland League. But this organization was not alone in its apparent misinterpretation of the proposal. On the floor of the convention, a delegate stood up to cry: "Please, I beg you to leave our national parks unimpaired for our future generations."

Now Mr. Peacock says there is nothing to fear, that "all we are trying to get endorsed is a policy to promote better use of areas already zoned as recreational." Well, that is moderately reassuring. But we'd feel better if we knew what the Chamber people meant by "better use" and "recreational."

DENNIS THE MENACE

"...AN' A PURPLE BATHTUB, AN' A PURPLE TOILET, AN' A PURPLE SOAP, AN' A PURPLE... COME ON! GO LOOK FOR YOURSELF!"

Looking Back

From the Times, Oct. 25, 1908.

Hon. William Templeman obtained from the Songhees Indians a definite answer to the offers made by the federal government for the surrender of their reserve in Victoria West along the harbor.

The band declined to surrender the land upon any condition and the minister will now recommend to the government amendment of the Indian Act to permit the transfer of the land to the city.

Earth Wobble May Provide Quake Forecast

Saturday Review

Under the influence of its constant spin, the earth flattens at the poles and bulges at the equator.

The competing gravitational pulls of the sun and moon tug at the bulge in an alternating rhythm and cause the planet's axis to rock.

The rocking swings the pole of the axis in a circle that takes 26,000 years to complete. This phenomenon, called precession, has been known to astronomers for centuries.

Because the position of the earth's axis determines the seasons of the year, precession could throw the months of the annual 365-day calendar out of step with the weather if some adjustments were not made regularly.

It is for this reason that an extra day is added to February every fourth year — that day making up the difference in time between four calendar years of 365 each, and the period occupied by four circuits of earth around the sun from vernal equinox (spring) to vernal equinox.

Seventy-seven years ago an astronomer named S. C. Chandler noticed that the circle of precession of the earth's axis was punctuated by a wobble.

* * *

Scientists who studied the wobble felt that more or less continuous excitement of it in some way would be required to keep it going. Since earthquakes occur somewhere on the globe almost continuously it was suggested to the Royal Society of London in 1906 that the Chandler wobble might be due to earthquakes.

According to the theory behind this suggestion, earthquakes would cause a shifting of the mass of the planet's interior and the displacement of the mass would throw the axis off balance.

In those days, however, even the most severe earthquakes were believed to displace mass over only a short distance — perhaps 100 miles at the ouside — from the focus of the quake.

Such an amount of displacement fell several orders of magnitude (that is, at least 100 times) short of the amount that would have been needed to wobble earth's axis.

In 1965, using new and acutely sensitive instruments he had helped to develop, Dr. Frank Press (now at Massachusetts Institute of Technology) demonstrated that mass displacement occasioned by great earthquakes could extend over 1,000 or more miles from the site of the quake.

* * *

Last year two assistant professors in the department of geophysics at the University of Western Ontario — one born in India, L. Mansinha, an intellectual product of the University of British Columbia and Rice Institute; the other D. E. Smylie, a graduate of the University of Toronto—did some calculations and came up with an estimate of the total deformation of the earth during large earthquakes.

First they mapped the path of the North Pole as it would appear if traced among the stars. They found that the Chandler wobble was not a steady motion; it occurred spasmodically, leaving a record in the form of a circle broken by many scallops.

During the years 1957 to 1968, the scallops numbered 41. Mansinha and Smylie timed the appearance of the scallops and determined that 32 of the 41 were related to the times of occurence of earthquake greater in magnitude than 7.5 on the Richter scale (the scale stops at magnitude 8).

* * *

By plotting the arc formed by each scallop, Mansinha and Smylie were able to locate the North Pole at the time each arc was being inscribed.

The found that the pole would flip to a new position around the time of each major quake.

On closer examination of their data, the two Canadian researchers saw in the pole path premonitions of earthquakes five to ten days before the quakes.

If, as present-day theory supposes, earthquakes represent a resettling of the planet's mass following internal dislocations, it would be logical for the pole of earth's axis to begin to swing before any quaking began.

In a report in Science, Mansinha and Smylie suggested that a change in the pole path might serve as a warning that a very large release of strain within the earth's interior is about to take place. Given the present state of geophysical knowledge, the warning could not be used to pinpoint the site of a coming quake. But simultaneous study of strain gauges now installed in large faults in the earth's crust (such as the San Andreas fault in California) might contribute to the accuracy of quake prediction.

Biafran Refugees Flee from Advancing Federal Troops

In the Background of Biafra: A Struggle for Oil Wealth

RAMPARTS

Appalled by the magnitude of the Nigerian tragedy, Western readers search uncomprehendingly for its cause.

What happened to the country with one quarter of the entire black population of Africa; the country that Newsweek once described as endowed with "so many of the qualities that seem to be missing in other emerging states—a working democracy, a sound economy, a free press, a moderate pro-Western government . . ."; the country Time called Africa's "counterweight to chaos"?

The somewhat racist answer offered by the American and English press is that the whose disaster is the consequence of "tribalism."

White Anglo-America, with its distrust of all things black, can comprehend the situation only as an exercise in atavism and ritualistic bloodletting. "There are forces let loose in Biafra," says the London Sunday Times Magazine, one of the publications most sympathetic to the Biafrans, "that white men cannot understand."

White Chauvinism

This is pure white chauvinism talking, for Westerners can easily understand the forces let loose in Nigeria—one of the most important of them is oil.

The large European and American oil companies have a total investment in Nigeria of over a billion dollars. And even more important, Nigerian oil production was the fastest growing in the world—in 1966 alone it increased an incredible 53 per cent.

Today, the United States is represented in Nigeria and Biafra by Gulf, Mobil, Texaco, Standard Oil of California and Phillips; the French by ERAP; the Italians by ENI; the British by Royal Dutch Shell and British Petroleum (BP). The latter two, operating as a consortium, are the biggest producers.

Curiously enough, Nigeria has gone through two "oil ages"—the modern Petroleum Age was preceded by the Age of Palm Oil. For in the 19th century it was palm oil—the main ingredient in soap—that drew European traders to the Niger River and led to the British conquest of the "Nigerian Protectorate."

Nigeria's second oil age dates from 1953, when Western petroleum companies finally struck oil after some 20 years of exploration and drilling. The Suez crisis in 1956—although it didn't cut off any of the West's lucrative Near Eastern oil sources—frightened the major producers into reconsidering the merits of Nigerian oil, despite its relatively high production cost.

Mideast Alternative

If Nigeria could be developed as an alternative to Middle Eastern oil, the Western petroleum industry might be able to weather the vagaries of Arab nationalism.

The only problem was that three-fourths of the Nigerian oil seemed to be located in the Eastern Region—now Biafra—an area inhabited not by the Moslem, largely pastoral Hausa-Fulani, but by the ambitious, business-minded and democratic Ibos, who had given Sir George Goldie so much trouble back in the palm oil age.

Still, the Ibos were not a major obstacle to the oilmen as long as northern sultans and emirs ran Nigeria. After the military coup of Jan. 15, 1966, however, Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa, the prime minister, and his mentor, the Sardauna of Sokoto, were murdered.

The coup was led by Major-General Johnson Aguiyi-Ironsi, an Ibo, and backed by a group of young officers, most of whom were also Ibo.

The young officers specifically wanted to end the feudalistic northern stranglehold on Nigerian development, and to replace private courts and personal favoritism with a representative government. They also wanted the oil companies to pay more taxes.

Within a little more than six months, however, on July 29, 1966, a counter-coup led by Major-General Yakubu Gowon put the northerners back in control of the Federation—and wiped out 400 Ibo Army officers and enlisted men in the process.

Throughout the months of September and October, pogroms were launched by northern soldiers and local police against Ibos living in the north. By some estimates, over 30,000 were killed, and nearly two million refugees streamed back into the Eastern Region.

At the same time, in order to maintain its credibility in the north, the Gowon government had been pressured into taking as hard a line in negotiations with the oil companies as had its Ibo predecessors under General Ironsi. Mr. Abdul Attah, a Finance Ministry official, asked Shell-BP and Gulf — the main producers — to give Nigeria "most favored African nation" treatment.

In other words, Nigeria would get at least as large a cut of revenues as that which the oil companies had recently granted Libya.

Gulf, producing 50,000 barrels a day, refused outright; Shell and British Petroleum, producing 350,000 barrels a day, mainly around Port Harcourt in the Eastern Region, stalled for time.

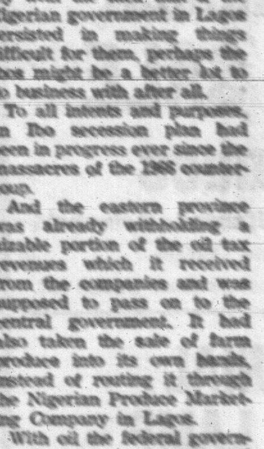
Toy With Idea

The oil companies began to toy with the idea that if the Nigerian government in Lagos persisted in making things difficult for them, perhaps the Ibos might be a better lot to do business with after all.

To all intents and purposes, an Ibo secession plan had been in progress ever since the massacres of the 1966 counter-coup.

And the eastern province was already withholding a sizable portion of the oil tax revenues which it received from the companies and was supposed to pass on to the central government. It had also taken the sale of farm produce into its own hands, instead of routing it through the Nigerian Produce Marketing Company in Lagos.

With oil the federal government's largest source of foreign exchange earnings — and with 85 per cent of the oil located in the Eastern Region — the future of the federal government looked very bleak indeed.



GOWON

Worse still, on May 30, 1967, the Eastern Region formally seceded, declaring itself the independent Republic of Biafra, headed by Lieutenant Colonel Odumegwu Ojukwu.

The question now was this: who was to get the oil revenues? In the complex diplomatic negotiations, the posture of the oil companies would be decisive in determining who would eat and who would starve, who would get guns and who would go defenseless.

Behind the oil companies' diplomacy lay not only billions of dollars in assets and hundreds of millions of dollars of liquid capital in company treasuries, but also the combined power of the Dutch and British governments, who, with their substantial stock in Shell and British Petroleum, sustained a lively and intimate interest in Nigerian affairs.

Shell and British Petroleum are the world's largest and third largest corporations outside the U.S., with combined sales of over ten billion dollars—more than three times the GNP of Nigeria. Their corporate directors tend to be very well connected indeed in the circles where British diplomacy is formulated.

Good Connections

British Petroleum's directors include Lord Cobbold, also governor of the Bank of England — Britain's equivalent of the U.S. Federal Reserve Bank; W. J. Keswick, an ordinary director of the Bank of England; and Sir Humphrey Trevelyan, the British Foreign Office's premier oil diplomat (whose experience includes serving as ambassador to Iraq during the Suez crisis in 1956, ambassador to Iran during the 1958 upheaval, and South Arabian high commissioner in 1967).

Shell's board of directors, while equally well connected in the British government, has a somewhat more American flavor: Eugene Black is a director of the Chase Manhattan Bank and until recently, head of the World Bank.

Lord Shawcross, an ex-Labour member of Parliament turned director of the British section of the House of Morgan, is also a special adviser to the U.S. Morgan Guaranty Bank. Lord McFadzean is a government-appointed head of the British National Export Council.

These luminaries of Shell and BP may not run Great Britain, but when it comes to oil, their counsel is heeded with scrupulous attention in the Foreign Office.

Moreover, from their perspective it must seem that, as with General Motors and the U.S.A., what is good for the oil companies is good for the country.

General Gowon's demands for increased revenue, the moguls probably reasoned, would cost them hundreds of millions of pounds in the long run.

Take a Flyer

Why not take a flyer on Colonel Ojukwu's little Biafran state? Its small size and population were a positive advantage from the oligarch's point of view.

Gradually, the oil companies found they'd been wise to hedge their bets on Biafra. The oil blockade was not broken, and Ojukwu's troops were disappointing on the battlefield.

And secession was becoming extremely costly for the oil companies. As the war dragged on, their petroleum investments lay fallow.

Each day of war also increased the possibility of damage to those investments—to the pipelines, the refinery at Port Harcourt and the terminal at Bonny.

As the prospect of a Biafran victory receded, the oil policies of the Federal government reverted to their pre-1966 humility. Lagos was behaving with admirable circumspection, a virtue that was not lost on the companies. Despite its blockade, the Federal government never went so far as to nationalize the oil fields under its control.

Nor did it take the usual wartime measures to control banks, currency and foreign exchange.

The banks and trading companies — Barclays (Britain's largest bank, with several hundred Nigerian branches), Standard Bank (controlled by Chase Manhattan) and the United Africa Company (subsidiary of Unilever, the world's second largest non-U.S. corporation) — were pleasantly surprised by the freedom with which they were allowed to go about their business.

Ordinary Nigerians, however, did not escape the costs of war. Compulsory saving was introduced; strikebreaking laws and compulsory arbitration were enforced; the cost of living rose. As Federal troops advanced into Biafra, the oil companies retreated from their earlier positions.

As long as the war continues, oil production remains at a standstill. The companies have not earned a cent since the conflict began. And they know they must get back into full production before another Middle Eastern blowup.

So the companies want the war to end, and—except for the French—they want the Federal government to win.

But Biafra can't simply give up.

Surrender would mean accepting the division of Biafra into three parts—with the Ibos crowded into a single section containing almost no oil lands whatsoever.

Cosy Tie-Up Confirmed In Defence Production

By DOUGLAS FISHER and HARRY S. CROWE

Recently Jean-Luc Pepin, Minister of Industry and Trade and Commerce, gave a long speech to the Air Industries Association of Canada. He described it as a "departmental speech."

Fisher

In essence it was an address from one insider to a fellow group of insiders. The general public and Government as a party affair have no reference points in the text. We found it interesting because of this seeming irrelevance to the political process and because it demonstrates how cosy and complex (or cosy because it is so complex) relationships can become between the Government as both policy-maker and handmaiden and a major industry and lobby group.

Mr. Pepin deserves close attention both for his qualities and his role in being the first French Canadian minister to take over a major economic portfolio.

Crowe

A professor of political science for 10 years, Mr. Pepin has a donnish compulsion to be erudite and discursive. He's self-conscious about his speeches, we think because he has a veteran essay-marker's respect for coherence, logic in argument and accuracy in data.

•

On the other hand, he has a sense of fun (Stephen Potter variety) when the dark eyes dance and the fierceness of the black mustache is broken by an embarrassed or confiding grin. This facet of him has made some men in politics judge him as full of facetiousness. Others take his candor as a sign of weakness, his tendency to vacillate as an indication he cannot make up his mind.

Last year on the question of whether Trans-Canada Pipeline should go through the U.S. he gave the pros and the cons so neutrally that when he reached the point of saying, in effect, "so the Government decided TCP can go through the States" even his own MPs thought he'd been too detached.

Mr. Pepin has this compulsion really to know what his department does and what its policies are and should be. He's determined that he, as a French-Canadian minister in a portfolio central to the business community, must make a good show; not a big show but a good one, reflecting knowledge and demonstrating leadership.

•

Well, his speech to the aircraft lobby ran to 31 pages, with much interlarding of points and data. It's the kind of speech that the Voice of Women and the student protesters and the New Democratic Party critics of American imperialism should read. Why? Because it sets out the relationship between our defence industry, government research and subsidy, and our trade and sales of defence materials to the U.S.

The Air Industries Association of Canada is headed by the most interesting and probably the most well-paid and well-heeled lobbyist in Ottawa, David Golden. Perhaps that's an overstatement; there's also the top oil lobbyist, Jim MacNeil, and he, too, must have immense resources. However, he hasn't the contacts or the history of connections of David Golden.

Mr. Golden is a Hong Kong war veteran who rose with speed to a deputy-minister's rank in post-war Ottawa; one of C.D.'s boys.

Since most of the lobby's business is with or through defence production and industry and since Mr. Golden's contacts are so close with both senior bureaucrats and senior ministers like Drury and Sharp, one would expect the relationships between the industry and the Government to be close and friendly.

Mr. Pepin's speech demonstrates just how tight and tied they are. We cannot quote long extracts to show this because of space limitations but the following gobbets should do.

"1959 saw the beginnings of a new policy for Canada in the defence field which, with refinements and improvements, pertain today. The key factor in this policy is international co-operation in defence development and production . . ."

Mr. Pepin lists the points of this policy, showing how important they are to expanding international trade and improvements in industrial competitiveness.

Then he gets into a comment on the history of U.S.-Canadian co-operation which is staggering in its candor when you remember that originally the policy was never debated in these terms.

". . . the period 1951-1959 seems to have been characterized by an impossible attempt on our part to achieve technological independence. Clearly, in view of the foreign policy we were following, we should have concentrated more on working with our neighbors to the south, both in our mutual defence and in the economic development of our respective industries. In 1959 we got back to this process of co-operation by the signing of the defence production sharing agreement with the U.S. . . .

"Perhaps the main effect of this new approach is that the industry was placed in the international competitive environment rather than the protected domestic market . . . Government, too, became bolder and while the department of industry was providing more financial help, the department of trade and commerce began to encourage Canadian exports in general and in your field in particular."

•

When Mr. Pepin is through the long list of lessons learned from the defence sharing agreement, you can see how irrelevant the Watkins Report on Foreign Ownership is (most air industry works in Canada are foreign-owned) and how inseparably our foreign, economic and defence policies are entwined with the U.S. We're not in the whale's jaws, we're in its belly.

Women Granted Right To Render Sacraments

AUGUSTA, Ga. (CP) — Designated lay women, as well as men, Thursday were granted permission by Canadian Anglican bishops to administer the holy sacraments—a move said to be unprecedented in world Anglicanism.

Persons chosen by bishops in each area of Canada would be permitted to administer the bread and wine of holy communion.

The steps were taken by 35 members of the House of Bishops of the Anglican Church of Canada who have been in Atlanta for five days in conjunction with a meeting of bishops from the Episcopal Church in the United States—the first joint meeting of the two groups.

The Canadian bishops, led by Most Rev. Howard H. Clark, Primate of All Canada, met separately Thursday to discuss the admittance of lay persons to holy communion.

In the U.S., licensed lay readers may assist in administering the sacraments but these are not usually women. The lay persons can administer the chalice or wine cup but not the paten, the plate on which the wafer is served.

At the close of the five-day meeting Thursday, bishops from Canada and the U.S. took under advisement a proposal to establish an Anglican Council of North America, an organization which church officials said may lead to union of the Canadian and U.S. churches.

The council, which would also include the Anglican Church of the West Indies, would define steps for action in education, communications, social work and missionary activity.

The decision of the Canadian bishops took many of their American counterparts by surprise. Episcopal bishops would have to seek permission at a national convention of bishops, clergy and laity for such a move.

Rt. Rev. Ivor Norris of Brandon, Man., representing Canadian bishops at daily news briefings, said it is within the power of Canadian Anglican bishops to decide on how the sacraments of bread and wine can be administered.

Rt. Rev. H. R. Hunt of Toronto, chairman of the committee, said the proposal had been in prearation for the last year.

No national church of the world-wide Anglican communion has yet granted special permission to women to administer bread or wine, he said.

In the Church of England and Church of Australia, two progressive areas within the communion, only male lay readers may administer communion.

Baird Clarifies 'Ward' System Plan

Ald. Robert Baird raised objections from a fellow alderman Thursday when he tried to alter a statement made to the press this week.

He rose at the end of a formal council meeting and said he wanted to clarify his use of the word "ward" in a story published Wednesday.

After he spoke, Ald. Ian Stewart objected that the council chambers was not the place to "clarify or correct statements."

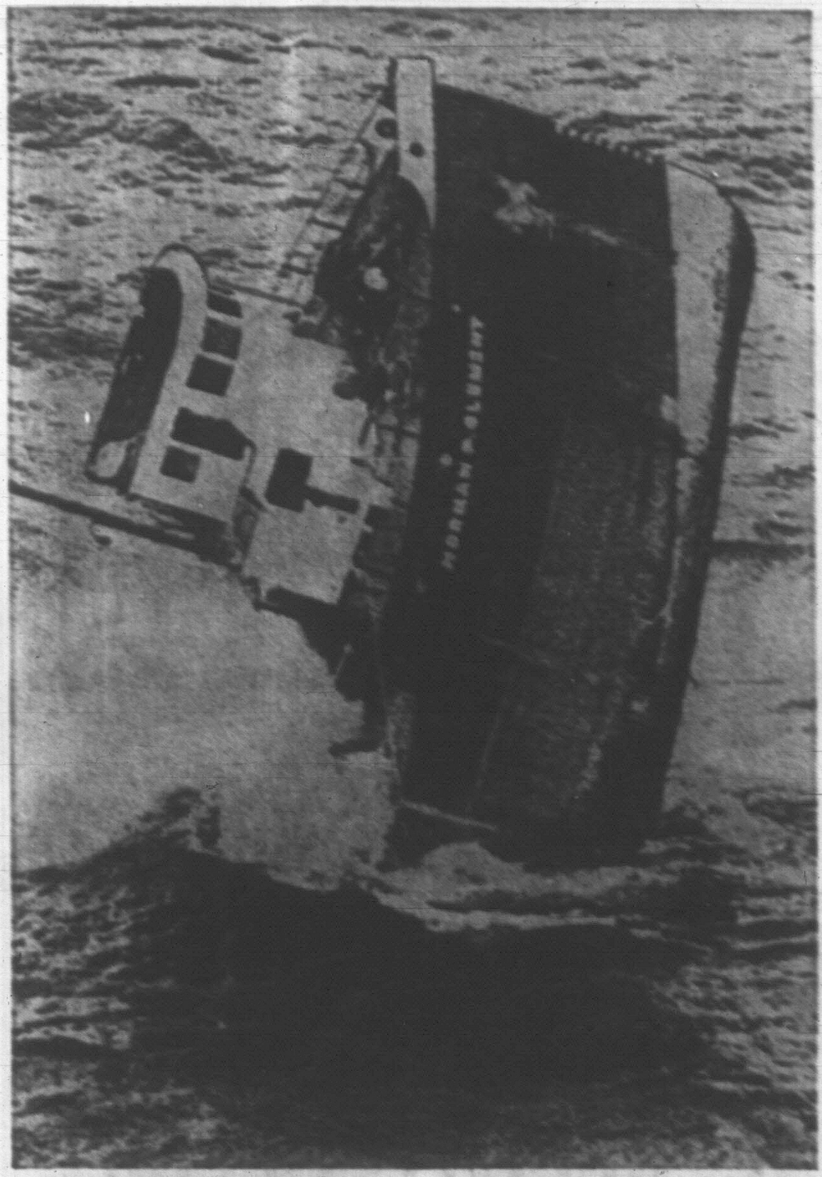
If Ald. Baird wished to carry statements to the people before bringing them up formally at council "he should be prepared to take the risk" of interpretations in the press.

But a council meeting was not the place to direct a correction at newspapers and the public, he said.

Ald. Baird had suggested earlier that the four municipalities should set up a ward system with an overall super-municipal government.

He told council his plea was to eliminate the four individual councils and mayors and all duplication of operation. One government could serve the area, with all superfluous administrators phased out, he suggested.

"The school district system—one school district—is very close to what I wanted to express," he said.



DEATH OF A SHIP took place this week in Georgian Bay as the 2,700-ton tanker Norman P. Clement disappears beneath the waters. Action was necessary after damage in an explosion while in drydock at Collingwood, Ont. Ship was valued at $50,000 by owners and this was cheaper than trying to repair it. (CP Wirephoto.)

Pilate Not Bilingual ... Perhaps

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The questioning of Jesus by Pontius Pilate was possibly done through an interpreter, the Vatican weekly magazine L'Osservatore della Domenica says.

Replying to a question by a reader who asked what language Jesus spoke, the magazine replies that Jesus as the son of God "had no obstacles to understand any language, but it seemed that He never used Greek or Latin."

The magazine says Jesus spoke the language proper to the people of Palestine, Aramaic.

O'Osservatore della Domenica says it is doubtful that Pilate had spoken Aramaic during his questioning of Jesus, though it is not excluded that the Roman procurator knew the language from his long stay in Palestine.

It adds: "Jesus was not the type of person to make a display of his understanding of Latin or Greek. For this reason Pilate was questioning Jesus in Latin or perhaps in Greek while Jesus replied in His lanuage. It was a dialogue only possible with the aid of an interpreter."

90 Scholarships and Awards Presented

More than 90 scholarships and awards were handed out to Oak Bay Senior Secondary School students Thursday for marks on graduating examinations last spring.

They were handed out in the afternoon to graduates with more than 70 per cent marks in their final year.

Some 61 received provincial awards for continuing work in university.

One of the highest prizes awarded was to Maureen Wills, now a student at Uvic, who received the national fitness and amateur sports program award of $500.

Chris Oigers, a member of last year's team for the television show Reach for the Top, was awarded a $300 scholarship named after the show.

He was one of nine students receiving awards in that category and had the highest standing attained in the Greater Victoria school district, at 92.75 per cent.

The Retail Food and Drug Clerks' Union Local 1518 scholarship of $350 was awarded to Jim Alexander for his scholarship average of 90.75 per cent.

A $300 award from the alumni of the University of Victoria was given to Robert McDougall for higher studies at Uvic.

The Royal Canadian Legion Pacific Command scholarship of $300 went to Stephanie Montague and the Hiram Carney Memorial Scholarship of $250 went to Rachel Young.

The Nancy Greene scholarship, awarded by the province in honor of the Olympic skier, was given to Lynette Goff, for an average of 92 per cent.

Other awards included: Greater Victoria Parent-Teacher bursary to Gail Thurber; P.E.O. Council scholarship to Daphne Mayfield; Stanley [illegible] memorial scholarship to [illegible]; Women's Canadian Club scholarship to Larry Fullmore; Classical Association of the Pacific States to Cathy [illegible]; Greater Victoria Teacher's Association to Linda Hughes, Morris Baker and Nancy Harwood; Oak Bay Kiwanis to Kerry Macfarlane; I.O.D.E. bursary to Barbara Jones; Canadian Union of Public Employees to Neil Lindsay; Oak Bay Kiwanis Spade bursary to Judy Bamford; B.C. Indian arts and welfare society bursary to David Joe; Island Tug and Barge to David Joe; PEO Sisterhood to Margaret Larsen.

The Oak Bay Senior Secondary merit cup bursary was presented by principal J. G. Wallace to Roslyn Farmer and Robert McDougall.

PRIZE WINNERS at Oak Bay Senior Secondary Thursday pose after scholarship presentation ceremony, from left, aGil Thurber, Maureen Wills, John Duder, aCthie Oliver and Barbara Hunter. Total of 37 students received government scholarships for marks averaging more than 80 per cent in final high school year, 24 received awards for second class marks over 70 per cent.

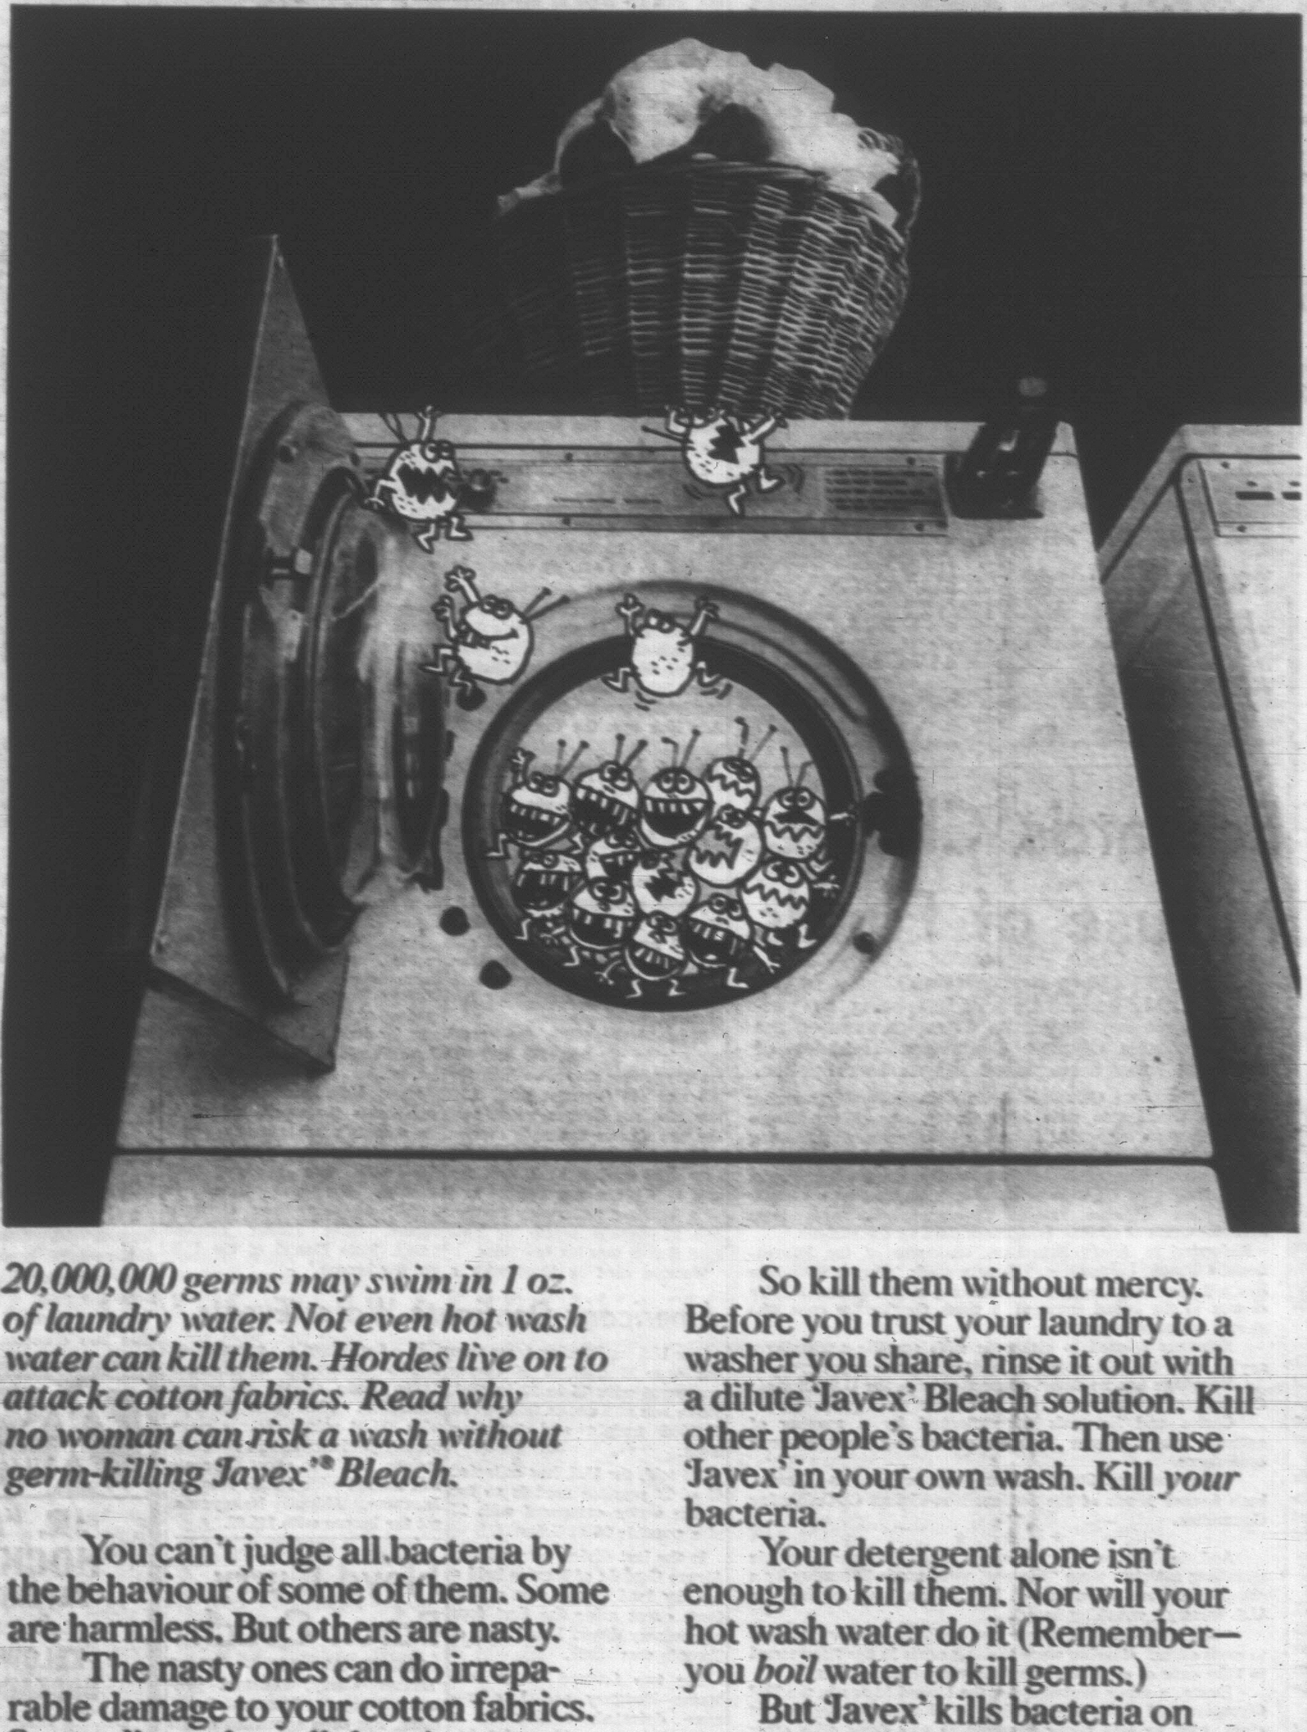
The bacteria from Apt. 304 are waiting for your wash.



20,000,000 germs may swim in 1 oz. of laundry water. Not even hot wash water can kill them. Hordes live on to attack cotton fabrics. Read why no woman can risk a wash without germ-killing 'Javex'® Bleach.*

You can't judge all bacteria by the behaviour of some of them. Some are harmless. But others are nasty.

The nasty ones can do irreparable damage to your cotton fabrics. Some digest the cellulose in cotton. They eat holes in shirts, jerseys, sheets, pillow cases. Other living organisms cause mildew. Still others cause the lingering smell in perspiration stains and babies' diapers.

But you can't separate these nasty germs from the harmless ones.

So kill them without mercy. Before you trust your laundry to a washer you share, rinse it out with a dilute 'Javex' Bleach solution. Kill other people's bacteria. Then use 'Javex' in your own wash. Kill your bacteria.

Your detergent alone isn't enough to kill them. Nor will your hot wash water do it (Remember—you boil water to kill germs.)

But 'Javex' kills bacteria on contact. At the same time, it gets rid of food, grease and perspiration stains that breed bacteria.

You should use 'Javex' with your detergent in every wash. As directed, 'Javex' works in small, safe doses. But it does a powerful job of killing germs and getting rid of stains and gray dinginess.

So 'Javex' in every wash protects you from the temptation to use an over-strength solution on lingering odour, set-in stains and built-up gray.

Some women are afraid to use 'Javex' Bleach in a coloured wash. A groundless fear! Colour-fast fabrics are as safe in 'Javex' as white things as long as you avoid prolonged soaks; say, more than 15 minutes.

If you can't find a colour-fast label, use this simple test. Mix 1 tsp. of 'Javex' in 1 cup of warm water. Apply some to an unseen area. If it does not discolour in about 5 minutes, the colours and the fabric are safe in 'Javex'.

If you think you need something else for stain removal, you're wrong. 'Javex' gets rid of the tough stains—the Aggravators—by taking their molecules apart and sending them flying.

Tea, coffee, fruit stains, vegetable stains, they'll disappear after a 5 to 15-minute soak in 1 oz. of 'Javex' and a quart of warm water.

A real toughie will need a repeat treatment. But you'll never have to stretch washday into two days with an overnight soak.

You can even keep synthetics like nylon fresh and bright with 'Javex'. You probably think 'Javex' yellows synthetics. Wrong. It actually whitens nylon.

A 15-30-minute soak in 1 oz. of 'Javex', 1 gallon of hot water and a tsp. of vinegar will turn nylon, shabby with the yellow of age, white again.

Chances are you use 'Javex' mostly to make white things whiter than you could any other way. But 'Javex' can do so much more for you.

If you don't use 'Javex' Bleach in every wash your clothes aren't as germ-free, your colours aren't as bright, your synthetics aren't as fresh as they could be.

Without 'Javex' in every wash clothes aren't clean.

Thieves Took Sweaters But Left St. Louis Luck

By The Canadian Press

If coach Scotty Bowman of St. Louis Blues is superstitious, he might insist that his team's dressing-room be robbed before each National Hockey League game.

Young intruders broke into the Blues' dressing room Thursday evening and escaped with three uniform jerseys.

The Blues posted a 2-1 victory against Boston Bruins a few hours later and superstitious coaches might connect the two incidents.

Such peculiarities are not uncommon in sports. Players and coaches have refused to shave or change their underwear during a winning streak.

In the only other NHL game Thursday, Philadelphia Flyers and Minnesota North Stars played to a 3-3 tie.

The Blues' victory boosted them into first place in the Western Division, one point ahead of Minnesota and Oakland Seals.

THIRD EXPANSION WIN

The victory was only the third this season for an expansion team in 18 games against established teams. Two games have finished in ties.

The Bruins, who missed a chance to move into a first-place tie with Chicago Black Hawks in the Eastern Division, took a 1-0 lead in the first period on Bobby Orr's second goal of the season.

The Blues received goals from Gary Sabourin and Ab McDonald within 28 seconds late in the final period.

A crowd of 13,589 at Boston saw Sabourin tie the score at 15:11 on a backhand shot.

McDonald, who has five goals in six games, picked up the winner at 15:39 when he banged Ron Shock's rebound past Boston goaltender Ed Johnston.

HALL LOOKED GOOD

The Blues were outshot 28-20, but goalie Glenn Hall was brilliant. He made sprawling glove saves on slap shots from Orr and Derek Sanderson in the third period.

Other Flyer scorers were by Ed Van Impe and Gary Dornhoefer. Replying for Minnesota were Claude Larose, Milan Marcetta, and Jean-Paul Parise.

The result moved Minnesota into a second-place deadlock with Oakland Seals and allowed Philadelphia to move into a fourth-place tie with Los Angeles Kings in the Western Division.

The Seals have a chance tonight to move back into first place in the Western Division when they play Montreal Canadiens at Oakland in the only scheduled NHL game.

AT GREEN MOUNTAIN

Ski Club Takes Over

Sno-Birds Ski Club are expected to sign a 21-year lease with the Esquimalt-Nanaimo Railway Company for the use and development of the Green Mountain ski area.

The news was released at a meeting of the club Wednesday. The meeting was attended by Norman Whittet, manager of the E and N land department, and two officials of Crown Zellerbach, which owns the parking lot and access route.

Sno-Birds use the area on a year-to-year basis until the Green Mountain Recreation Company was formed and obtained the skiing development rights to the property near Nanaimo three years ago.

Since then the GMRC has lost the lease.

Tom Fraser, secretary of Crown Zellerbach, told members that his company was prepared to give the club a licence for use of its property during non-operating hours.

Sno-Birds now boast a membership of approximately 300.

Edwards Charges Misuse of Funds

(Times News Services)

Harry Edwards, who tried last spring to organize a Negro boycott of the Olympics, accused the United States Olympic Committee Thursday of misusing funds. He asked for an investigation.

The San Jose California State College faculty member went to Washington with John Carlos, one of two Negro medal winners suspended from the U.S. team for protesting publicly in Mexico City against U.S. racial policies.

Edwards' demand for an investigation came after he was asked about the Olympic committee's inquiry into charges that some athletes received improper payments from manufacturers of athletic equipment used by the athletes.

Referring to Avery Brundage, chairman of the International Olympic Committee, Edwards said: "Maybe Brundage can tell you about payoffs to coaching staffs. Since they're closest to the bread (money), I think they're the ones who should be investigated."

Edwards refused to elaborate with specific accusations, saying what he said would be twisted in news reports.

Brundage has no direct connection with the U.S. Olympic Committee.

Carlos and Edwards were flanked by a number of militant Black Power spokesmen as they held a news conference.

These included Stokely Carmichael and H. Rap Brown, both former heads of the Student Non-Violent Co-Ordinating Committee.

* * *

And in Mexico City, charges that Olympic freestyle wrestling matches were "thrown" were made Thursday by a disappointed and disenchanted Tom Evans, head coach of the U.S. freestyle wrestling squad.

"Countries — but I won't name them — threw matches to each other. Coaches were making deals in the third round to take care of each other in different weight classes."

Evans, a silver medallist for the United States in the 1952 Olympics and fifth-place finisher in 1956 in the lightweight class, said he was never involved in any deals with other coaches, nor was he ever approached.

"This is not sour grapes, because freestyle wrestling is wrapped up," Evans said.

For the third time in the last four Olympics, the United States failed to produce a single winner in the eight weight divisions in freestyle wrestling.

Some U.S. athletes had offers of money left in their track shoes during the Games, the president of the U.S. Olympic Committee, Douglas Roby, disclosed Thursday night.

Roby said this evidence came voluntarily from two "honest athletes."

He said investigations into charges that members of the U.S. team had been approached by commercial firms with offers of money had been handed over to the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union and the International Amateur Athletic Federation.

Offers had been in German marks as well as U.S. dollars, and one of them involved a certain brand of shoe, Roby said.

Athletes from "European countries" also had figured in the approaches.

* * *

A Dutch cycling official had been sent home for giving vitamins to his team against the express orders of the national Olympic committee.

"It was not a question of the team being given dope," Paulus Lut, a Dutch official, said.

"All the trainers, coaches and masseurs were told before we left Holland that nobody except doctors should give medicine to the athletes.

"The cycling masseur, S. Collard, went against our orders. We found certain medicines in his room. We held a meeting and decided he must be sent home for going against orders."

The medicines in Collard's room were found after the Dutch team had won a gold medal in the time trial event.

Americans Clinch Games Team Title

Meyer Grabs Third Medal; Hutton Finishes Fourth

MEXICO CITY (CP) — The United States has clinched the unofficial team championship of the 1968 Olympic Games, surpassing its performance of four years ago when Russia emerged a close winner over the Americans.

Domination of the track and field and swimming and diving competitions led to 33 of the 37 gold medals won by the U.S. so far. And the Games still have three days to go, with 52 gold remaining to be awarded out of a total of 172.

Over-all, American athletes have taken 88 medals, two shy of the 1964 production. But they have one more gold than in Tokyo.

Runner-up Russia, with 16 gold among its total of 53 medals, has no hope of overtaking the U.S. despite a coup in gymnastics.

The Russians are far off their showing in Tokyo when they won 30 gold and had a total of 96 medals.

In the unofficial team point standing, the Americans have been widening their lead each day and now have a total of 706 points to Russia's 418. Points are awarded on the traditional 10-5-4-3-2-1 system of scoring for the first six placings in each final.

In 1964, Russia won the team title with 695 1-3 points. The U.S. was second with 685 1-3. However, there were nine fewer gold medals in Tokyo, where 163 were awarded.

The Canadian team has 36 points and two silver medals in swimming won by Elaine Tanner of Vancouver and Winnipeg and Ralph Hutton of Ocean Falls, B.C. The team is 20th in the point standing.

Four years ago, Canada won one gold, two silver and one bronze and finished with 40 points, placing the country 26th of 55 in the standing.

Coughlan Sixth in Women's 800

The Canadian team placed two swimmers in finals Thursday night, and earned four points.

Hutton was fourth in the men's 200-metre backstroke and Angela Coughlan of Burlington, Ont., who has a world record in the 1,650-yard freestyle pending, was sixth in the women's 800 metres.

Debbie Meyer, 16, from Sacramento, Calif., became the first woman swimmer in Olympic history to win three individual gold medals when she stroked to a runaway victory in the 800.

Carl Robie gave the U.S. another gold in the men's 200-metre butterfly. But Mike Wenden of Austrlia beat off Yale's Don Schollander to win the men's 200-metre freestyle and Ada Kok won the women's 200-metre butterfly for The Netherlands.

It was Wenden's fourth medal. He won a gold in the 100-metre freestyle and a silver and bronze in other events.

In gymnastics, Japan won the men's team all-around title for the third straight Olympics by a healthy margin over Russia. But the battle for the individual gold, won by Japan's Sawao Kato, was so close only five-hundreds of a point separated him from runner-up, Russia's Mikhail Voronin.

Defending champion West Germany clinched the gold in the equestrian dressage team competition, edging Russia 2,699 points to 2,657. The Canadian team of Zoltan Steblo of Calgary, Christilot Hanson of Sharon, Ont., and Inez Fischer-Credo of Vancouver was seventh with 2,012 points.

First Swimming Medal for Mexico

In the women's 800, a new Games event, Miss Meyer breezed to a 20-metre victory over team-mate Pam Kruse in Olympic record time of 9:24.0. Mexico's Maria Teresa Ramirez nipped Australia's Karen Moras for the bronze. The Mexican brunette is the first woman to win a swimming medal for her country.

Miss Meyer holds the world records in the 200, 400 and 800 freestyle. She also won both the 200 and 400 Olympic gold. And she also set Games records in the two shorter freestyle events.

For Schollander, who won four gold medals at Tokyo, the loss to Wenden marked the end of a brilliant swimming career. The 22-year-old senior at Yale said that it was his last race.

Wenden shot in front with a blazing 56.4 seconds for the first 100. He broke his own Olympic record with a time of 1:55.2. Schollander's time was 1:55.8. John Nelson of the U.S. was third in 1:58.1. Then came Hutton in 1:58.6.

Robie, 23, who won the silver in 1964, broke open a shoulder-to-shoulder duel with Britain's Martyn Woodroffe in the last 15 metres of the men's butterfly to win by half a metre in 2:08.7. John Ferris of the U.S. took the bronze.

Miss Kok, the 176-pounder who holds the world record in the women's 200 butterfly, shaded East Germany's Helga Linder with two mighty final strokes. She was timed in 2:24.7, breaking her Olympic record. Miss Linder clocked 2:24.8. Ellie Daniel of the U.S. got the bronze.

Americans Dominate Water Events

The U.S. swimming team now has won 18 gold in 26 events compared with 16 in 22 in 1964. There are still seven titles to be decided tonight and Saturday night.

All told, the U.S. has collected 47 of 72 possible medals so far in the water compared with 37 of a possible 55 at Tokyo.

In the last diving competition, Alvaro Gaxiola of Mexico held a healthy lead in the men's platform event after the first four compulsory dives. Bob Eaton of Toronto was ninth.

The two favored water polo teams—Hungary and Italy—were defeated, setting up a clash for the gold medal between Russia and Yugoslavia.

Defending champion Hungary was upset by Yugoslavia 8-6 and Russia defeated previously unbeaten Italy 8-5. Italy will play Hungary for the bronze medal.

In the men's gymnastics, Kato succeeded countryman Yukio Endo as the all-around champion. Kato took the title with 115.90 points after a near-perfect performance in floor exercises, the last event. Voronin was second with 115.85. Another Japanese, Akinori Nakayama, got the bronze with 115.65.

Floyd Curry Baron Coach

MONTREAL (CP) — Floyd "Busher" Curry, assistant general manager of Montreal Canadiens, has been appointed coach of Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League, it was learned.

Curry served with the National Hockey League Canadiens as a player, farm team coach and scout prior to his appointment as assistant general manager of the club last June.

Painters Display Strength

Empress Paints mounted a 38-shot barrage to down Victoria Automatic Transmission 5-3 in Stuffy McGinnis Hockey League play Thursday night in Memorial Arena.

In another league game, Drake Hotel held Ingraham Buckaroos to a 1-1 tie.

Empress was led by Vern Gibson and Buzz Wilson each with one goal and assist. Dick Gibbons, Ross Carnahan and Glenn Vickers counted the winners' other goals.

Jim Place had to handle only 23 shots in the winners net.

Al Pelton gave Drakes a 1-0 lead going into the second period only to have Gordy Strongman tie it up at 3:55 of the second.

Ron Griffis of Buckaroos made 12 saves while Pat Murphy of Drakes deflected 25 shots.

OUTDOOR REPORT

Hardy Anglers Enjoy Success

By STEWART LANG

Salt-chuck anglers have had a tough time getting out the past few days because of the weather, but those who persisted found fair returns.

Winter spring salmon—up to 16 pounds—now outnumber the coho returns being boated in Pedder Bay. Most seem to be taken along the right side of the bay and working parallel to the kelp bed.

Much the same conditions persist along the coast toward Sooke, but with slightly smaller returns and fewer springs on the average.

Coho are still being taken off Cattle Point, Trial Island and on Halibut Flats. Fishing near James Island has also been reported as good.

* * *

A large number of small bluebacks, 14 to 15 inches in length, seemingly have invaded Saanich Inlet and the most productive lures are green and white bucktails.

Winter springs up to 11½ pounds have made anglers happy fishing around the Bamberton shore. Coho returns are down but jack springs have been netted from McCurdy Point and Stone House.

Chum salmon are reported around the middle part of the Inlet and have been coaxed into a few fish boxes with Buzz Bombs.

The Goldstream end of the Inlet is alive with feed and many fish have been seen jumping—but they won't bite.

* * *

Coho returns have picked up in Cowichan Bay but the fish seem to be moving through fast on their way to the river. Sansum Narrows is still fair for springs.

Fishermen near Nanaimo are enjoying what was described as "the best fishing of the year." Activity is centred near Five-Fingers Island and on river-run coho near the suppression camp below Canyon Bridge on the Island Highway.

Coho are still being taken off the Oyster River mouth, near Brown's Bay and in Seymore Narrows. One 20-pounder was caught off the Oyster and all are nice and bright.

* * *

As it's an ill wind that blows nobody any good, weather conditions have trout and steelhead fishermen in seventh heaven.

Trout are being caught by casting smaller Deadly Dicks off the shore of Little Thetis. These fish ranged up to 2½ pounds but most were spawners and were returned.

Light tackle enthusiasts are still having a ball with coho in the lower reaches of the Cowichan River. Some are even using hooks down to number 14 and six-pound test line.

A lot of cutthroats are also being taken in the same locations, which seem to have followed the coho upstream.

Returns have been reported as good from the upper end of the river and the foot of Lake Cowichan.

Second Lake near Nanaimo is producing on troll and wet fly.

Trout up to 3 pounds have spiced evenings spent casting in Sproat Lake and Great Central while jacks are caught in the Somass and Stamp rivers. Fresh steelhead runs have been located in the Stamp and Ash rivers.

Upper and Lower Campbell Lakes are producing "lakers" averaging 2½ pounds with regularity and Comox Lake reports are favorable.

Steelhead fishermen taking advantage of the run in the Quinsam have noted that river levels are now too high for consistent catches.

* * *

Deer bags are picking up in the higher elevations as rutting season draws near and cooler weather puts bucks on the move.

Duck returns near Cowichan Bay have been spotty after the opening weekend but returns have been fair in the swamps around Courtenay. Widgeon and teal comprise most of the duck species shot near the Oyster and Salmon River mouths.

VIKING VIEWS

By STEVE HUME

Three University of Victoria teams are out of town for intercollegiate action at the weekend.

The university's cross-country team, led by veterans Charlie Thorne and Larry Corbett, left today for the Western Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Association championships, at Calgary Saturday to face ace runners from all western universities.

Ray Haswell of Alberta (at Edmonton) is expected to be one of the top contenders, along with Dave Atkinson from Calgary. Haswell just missed a berth on the Olympic team at the 5,000 metre distance, while Atkinson is a former Canadian age-class champion at two miles.

* * *

While Uvic runners are not expected to threaten Haswell or Atkinson, the big thing in the Victorians' favor may be the consistency of their running. At a B.C. Cross-Country League meet last Sunday, all five counting members of the Uvic team finished in the top 15, including three in the top 10.

* * *

Uvic won the handicap meet, its first important cross-country victory since a team was recognized on the campus two years ago.

Thorne, a former prep star at Mount Douglas High School, has lots of stamina, and should do well at Calgary if it is a grinding, hilly course. Corbett who also excels under difficult conditions is the Vancouver Island steeplechase champion.

* * *

In junior intercollegiate action, Uvic's soccer and rugby Saxons take on B.C.I.T at Vancouver.

At home in soccer and rugby, the soccer Vikings meet Hourigans Kickers at Heywood Park Sunday, while the soccer Norsemen play Royals at Gordon Head in second division action.

In field hockey, the senior varsity women tangle with Oak Bay at Lansdowne field, and the university seconds meet Sailors at Gordon Head with both games scheduled for Saturday.

MACS HAVE FINAL SAY IN MARITIME HOCKEY...

GLACE BAY, N.S. (CP) — Just don't say "Hey, Mac" at a meeting of the Glace Bay Minor Hockey Association.

Angus MacDonald has been re-elected the organization's president.

John F. MacDonald went back as treasurer.

Bill MacDonald got the word as the new vice-president and George MacDonald was elected secretary.

And, they can call on the clan for appeals, protests and matters outside their own jurisdiction.

Steve MacDonald of Sydney is president of the Maritime Amateur Hockey Association and Jim MacDonald of Halifax is the MAHA co-ordinator with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Bathgate, Rookie Power Canucks

A rookie and an old pro joined forces Thursday to help Vancouver Canucks to a 4-2 victory over Seattle Totems and into third place in the Western Hockey League.

Rookie John Grofton and old pro Andy Bathgate each scored a goal and set up another to spark Canucks. The goal for Bathgate, the former National League all-star, was his fourth in five games with Vancouver.

Brian Hextall and Germain Gagnon also scored for Canucks while Jack Michie and Guyle Fielder replied for Seattle.

Brilliant netminding by Seattle's Jim Armstrong prevented Canucks from wrapping it up early. Canucks out-shot Seattle by a commanding 39-21 margin but couldn't pull ahead until Grofton's goal midway in the final period.

Gorge, Wests Out to Break Tie for First

Victoria West and Gorge Molsons will be looking for a weekend victory that could snap a tie for first place in the Victoria and District Soccer League's first division.

Wests clash with winless Tally-Ho at 2 p.m. in Heywood Avenue Park on Saturday.

All other first and second division matches are scheduled Sunday.

Gorge will duel with Canadian Scottish at Central Park in their attempt to take over first place. Scottish have three ties in three starts.

Other first-division struggles Sunday pit Vikings against Hourigans at Heywood and London SC against Red Lion Inn at Topaz Park.

Morrow, Liddell Lead Golf Events

Claudia Morrow captured silver division honors in a women's par competition at Victoria Golf Club and Kay Liddell set the silver division pace in a turkey contest at Uplands.

Madge Bett and Ann Dark collected awards in other divisions at Uplands while Helen Mooney and Marjorie Goodland were leaders in bronze "A" and "B" sections at the Oak Bay links.

Beman Takes Only 19 Putts

COSTA MESA, Calif. (AP) — Former U.S. amateur champion Deane Beman led the way into the second round of the $110,000 Haig national open today with 64—seven strokes under par—and a putting mark of 19 which equalled the Professional Golfers' Association record for 18 holes.

Challenging from four strokes or less back were such threats as Billy Casper, Chi Chi Rodriguez, Al Geiberger, Bruce Crampton and Bob Rosburg.

The Canadian entries, Al Balding and George Knudson of Toronto, were well back. Knudson shot a 38-32—70 while Balding had a 36-36—72.

Play is over the 6,650-yard, par 36-35—71 Mesa Verde Country Club course, where Thursday 61 of the 150 players fractured par.

Beman's 19 putts tied a record shared by Rosburg, Bill Nary and Randy Glover.

Beman knocked in putts that ranged from seven feet to a chip shot that flew in from 35 in his 33-31—64 effort. He had four birdies on each nine.

Tied at 65 were Geiberger, Crampton, Dudley Wysong and Dave Gumlia.

Sailing Groups Eye Unification

By SHIRLEY HEWETT

Co-ordination of yachting activities on a province-wide basis will be a major concern when the recently-organized British Columbia Yachting Association meets Sunday.

A regional division of the parent Canadian Yachting Association, the BCYA will hold its first meeting with area representatives at the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club.

Representing the interests of lower Vancouver Island will be Dick Sharpe, past commodore of the Royal Canadian Naval Sailing Association. CYA member clubs in this territory are Glenlyon Sailing Club, Maple Bay Yacht Club, Royal Victoria Yacht Club and the RCNSA.

Hewett

Sunday's agenda includes such current and controversial items as the proposed ban on flush heads for pleasure craft. Hopefully, in conjunction with the B.C. Council of Yacht Clubs, a brief can be prepared for Health Minister Ralph Loffmark.

However, most discussion will concern promoting increased participation in racing, and a co-ordinated junior sail training program.

This includes development of fleets at member clubs; the youth Olympic training seminar; regional trials for North American championships; suggestions for the B.C. trials for the 1969 Summer Games at Halifax, using the Soling (a three-man boat); the Flying Junior (a two-man boat), and the single-handed O.K. dinghy.

Of special significance this month will be B.C.'s recommendations to Paul Phelan, Canada's delegate to the mid-November IYRU meeting which will vote on future Olympic sailing classes.

This BCYA group will meet regularly at various B.C. locations. Areas and reps are Les Alfreds, lower mainland and Vancouver; Ted Strongitharm, Georgia Strait and upper Vancouver Island; Hugh Earle, Okanagan, and Harold Morgan, Northern B.C.

One measure of the success of this and similar CYA efforts across the nation will be the performance of Canadian yachtsmen at the 1972 Olympic sailing events scheduled for Kiel, Western Germany.

Victoria's younger sailors are mobilizing at Uvic and Royal Roads, and have already served notice that they will be strong competitors in the Northwest Division of the Inter-Collegiate Yacht Racing Association.

At a recent Seattle regatta held in C-Larks, a Royal Roads team placed second behind victorious University of Washington, while Uvic came fourth. Other competitors were UBC, Simon Fraser, Seattle U, University of Western Washington and Reid College, Oregon.

Racing for Uvic were Ron Love, Bruce Duncan, Tom Gilbert, Brian Glover, Judy Burbank and Lynn Hilsden.

Royal Roads' team was headed up by Don Matthews, and crew Bob Hardy. A former Calgarian, Don placed fourth in this year's Canadian National Fireball Championships.

A busy schedule for the Northwest students includes the Inter-Collegiate Nationals to be hosted at Bellingham, and six more northwest regattas scheduled for UBC, Uvic, Seattle U and Bellingham.

Training boats include Flying Juniors at UBC, Penguins at Seattle U, C-Larks at UW and 420s at Western Washington and Uvic.

SHORT TACKS: Club Day at Uvic drew 132 would-be sailors into the fold of the sailing club … execs are president Bruce Duncan, vice-president Tom Gilbert, treasurer Brian Glover, secretary Judy Burbank and fleet captain Ron Love … Roger Napier is the fleet captain of the new Unicorn Catamaran Class … Combined Unicat and Bearcat spring racing will start in January, with the Canadian National Unicorn championships hosted here later in 1969 … There are now over 50 of the single-handed cats in Canada, with a large fleet in Alberta.

Dorothy Reigns At Gorge Vale

Dorothy DeGirolamo downed Gert Pumfrey 5-4 to capture the Gorge Vale Golf Club distaff crown for the first time since 1959.

Mrs. DeGirolamo, one over par on the front nine, broke even when she won on the 13th with a birdie.

Medalist Vicki Parsons collected the junior girl's title with a win over Corine Campbell.

Flight winners were: Norma Spandier, Nora O'Connell, Kay Clairmonte, Pat Mitchell, Rosalie Roberts, Marg Nelson, Irene Calan, Verle McKeen, Flora Kirker and Jessie Yerex.

Former Goalie, Aitkenhead, Dies

PORTLAND (AP)—The death of Andy Aitkenhead, a goalkeeper for the original Portland hockey team in the 1930s, was reported here Thursday. He died last week.

Aitkenhead, was brought to Portland from Saskatoon in 1929. He later went to New York Rangers.

MURRAY RETURNED

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The National Hockey League's Los Angeles Kings have returned defenceman Jim Murray to their Springfield farm club in the American Hockey League.

Firemen Eye National 'Spiel

Victoria curlers intend to bid for the 1970 Canadian Firefighters' championship bonspiel, but a decision won't be made until after the provincial championships are held at the Victoria Curling Club in February.

Trail and Vancouver North Shore are also planning to submit bids for the 1970 final.

Since the decision may rest on how the provincial final is arranged and operated, Greater Victoria firemen have already begun preparations to ensure success of the B.C. event.

Les Brice was named as chairman of the Greater Victoria Firefighters Bonspiel Committee. Ronnie Pearce, Whitey Severson, Ron Jay, Ray Gosse, Ray Burley, Jack Northup, Jerry Kirker and Gordie Hawkes also were named to the committee.

At least 64 rinks are expected to take part in the B.C. final, slated to run from Feb. 10 to 13.

China? Egypt? Germany? Cuba? Hungary? Spain? The Congo? A People fight for freedom, and a new nation, with new hopes, is born. In fact this is Russia, 1917 — the Nevsky Prospekt, Petrograd.

NOW YOU CAN know what really happened when history was made. Because this is the story of the fastest 65 years on earth, of how and why your world came to be the way it is today. From the Boers to the Viet Cong, from crystal sets to colour TV, from Big Bertha to the Bomb, from Kittyhawk to Cape Kennedy, from Mrs. Pankhurst to the Pill—this is your story.

Editors A.J.P. Taylor and J. M. Roberts (tutor of history at Merton, Oxford) have brought together over 300 contributors from all over the world to write this 2,000,000 word, six volume history. It comes, not all at once, but sensibly, in 96 weekly parts. The first—price 60 cents—is at your newsdealer now.

No significant event or world trend since 1900 has been overlooked. Clearly and intelligently, the authors trace the drama of social revolution and human achievement. The agony of two World Wars, the growth of material wealth, the advance of modern medicine, the birth of new nations. The evolution of a world political system, the scientists' increasing mastery of the Universe, the dwindling role of Europe. The aim: to give you a truly international view of the 20th Century.

5000 pictures, over half in colour, many unpublished till now, have been painstakingly selected. Contemporary cartoons, stamps, posters and newspaper cuttings all help to make this the most superbly illustrated history ever.

Schools and universities have already recognised the value of PURNELL'S HISTORY OF THE 20TH CENTURY to young people. Particularly because it comes weekly, 32 pages at a time. With the first issue you get FREE 'The Century in Brief', a 32-page full-colour survey which tells all about the History.

Volume 1, Part 1 sets the stage for the tumultuous years to come. In 1900 over a quarter of the globe recognised Victoria as Queen. Yet the growing power of Germany and America was already shifting the foundations of her Empire. In the following weekly parts you will see how the world turned itself into a tinder box awaiting the spark at Sarajevo. You will be there as history is made and your century takes shape. Tomorrow—get your finger on the trigger. PURNELL'S HISTORY OF THE 20TH CENTURY has begun.

Seventh Heart Transplant At Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — The Montreal Heart Institute today successfully completed its seventh heart transplant. It was Canada's eighth.

Lidger Senecal, 35, of Lauzon, Que., received the heart of Marcel Gagnon, 25, of Montreal in a four-hour operation.

Mr. Senecal, father of three, suffered from "global cardiac insufficiency," doctors said. The donor died Thursday night at Montreal General Hospital following a car accident Oct. 22.

The operation was performed by Dr. Pierre Grondin, who performed six other transplants at the institute. He was assisted by Dr. Gilles LePage and Dr. Yves Castonguay.

One heart transplant has been completed in Toronto.

Gaetan Paris, 48, Dr. Grondin's longest surviving patient, is working again as an electrical designer. He was operated on June 28, and was the second of seven recipients.

To date there have been 68 transplant operations in the world, with 38 patients surviving.

Driver Training Supported

The provincial cabinet has been asked by a second group to implement the Wootton Royal Commission recommendation that driver licences be issued to youths between 16 and 18 only on successful completion of an approved driver training course.

The latest request came in the annual brief presented Thursday by the B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation which had adopted a similar proposal at its convention last April.

A petition of some 11,000 names gathered in Vancouver recently asked for implementation of the recommendation as a safety measure.

The PTA brief also repeated its 1967 urging that the cabinet encourage a greater emphasis on the French language in schools.

Other requests put to the ministers included free measles vaccine for children and a change in regional college financing.

The brief was presented by Mrs. Herbert Schoen of North Surrey and Mrs. Stewart Hartley of Vancouver.

Mrs. Hartley told reporters she informed the cabinet that the PTA supports school trustees' recent censure of the provincial government's "freeze" on construction of activity rooms and gymnasiums.

But she said Education Minister Donald Brothers indicated there would be no thaw because of "tight money, the federal government cutting back and so on."

Arson Suspected

BURNABY (CP)—Authorities said they suspect arson in two apartment fires Thursday night. Fire broke out in the basement of a three-storey building and there was another fire a few minutes later in the basement of a building a block away. There were no injuries.

Nixon Evokes '60 Issue With Security Gap Charge

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Republican presidential candidate Richard M. Nixon is confronting the Democrats with a "security gap" charge reminiscent of the "missile gap" charges Nixon endured from Democrat John F. Kennedy in 1960.

Nixon said in Pottsville, Pa., Thursday that the United States is on the short end of "a gravely serious security gap."

Nixon said President Dwight D. Eisenhower left office in 1961 with the United States holding a 50-per-cent advantage over Russia in land-based missiles but the edge had dwindled under eight years of Democratic administrations.

"The present state of our defences is too close to the peril point, and our future prospects are in some respects down right alarming," said Nixon.

Nixon said the United States must deal with the Soviet Union "not from weakness but with the persuasiveness of respectable and evident power."

STRESSED DEFENCE

In a Milwaukee, Wis., speech during the 1960 campaign, Kennedy proposed a five-point disarmament program that included "rebuilding our rapidly deteriorating defence."

"It is only when we have military force strong enough to convince the Russians that they will never be able to gain any advantage through military strength that we can hope for fruitful negotiations," he said.

The Democrats have more than one critical candidate to contend this year.

Hubert H. Humphrey, Democratic presidential nominee, focused on Nixon's statement that action on the proposed nuclear nonproliferation treaty should be delayed until Russia makes clear its plans in the wake of the invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Sales, Earnings By GM Increase

NEW YORK (AP) — A 14-per-cent increase in sales and higher earnings in the third quarter ended Sept. 30 have been reported by General Motors Corp.

Chairman James M. Roche and president Edward N. Cole said sales in the period were $4,300,000,000 compared with $3,800,000,000 in the 1967 third quarter.

Net income in the period amounted to $182,000,000, or 62 cents a share, compared with $148,000,000, or 51 cents a share, in third quarter 1967.

DIVIDENDS

MARKET SUMMARIES

Industrials Turn Mixed

Industrial list was mixed in trading today on the Toronto stock exchange while western oils and base metals were firm.

There was activity in B-A Oil after the company announced plans to split the stock 2 for 1, to raise the dividend rate and to amalgamate with two subsidiaries, Royalite Oil Co. and Shawingian Chemicals Ltd.

Wall Street was higher.

AT TORONTO, in industrials, Great West Life gained 3½ to 70½, Dylex Diversified 3 to 48½, Peel Elder 2¼ to 49¾ and Seaway Hotels 1½ to 26½. Bow Valley fell 1¾ to 23½ and Canada Bread 1¼ to 16¾.

Bankeno was up $1.05 to $6.05, Patino ⅞ to 38⅜ and Teck Corp. 50 cents to $5.70. Granisle Copper lost ⅜ to 12⅝.

Charter Oil rose ⅝ to 17⅜, Asamera 20 cents to $7.65 and Chieftain Development 15 cents to $9.90.

AT NEW YORK early softness in blue chips was gradually overcome as selective buying, buoyed by new hopes that during the weekend some positive peace news might develop, got under way.

Phelps Dodge, whose shareholders approved a two-for-one stock split, advanced about 2½. The company also raised its dividend. Bristol Myers, down 1⅛, paced the list on volume.

Gulf and Western and Sinclair were each off fractions, following word that Sinclair's board had decided a possible tender from G and W would not be in the best interests of Sinclair.

AT MONTREAL the market continued to lose ground in moderately active trading today. Mines and oils led the decline.

Denison fell 1½ to 73½, Union 1 to 50, Hudson Bay Mining ⅜ to 72¼ and Imperial ¼ to 73. B-A added ⅞ at 47⅞.

Home Oil issues strengthened as the company's A stock climbed 1¼ to 31¾ and B went up ⅜ to the same value.

Wajax dropped 1 to 29, Calgary Power ⅜ to 25¾, Canada Steamship Lines ⅛ to 33¼, Consolidated Bathurst ⅛ to 17¼ and CPR ⅜ to 71⅛.

AT LONDON the stock market today ended a week of receding prices on a distinctly dull note. Prices moved lower on a broad front.

Gilt-edged issues held up for a while, but on news of a higher British treasury bill rate, prices drifted lower.

Losses in equities were fairly widespread, but they rarely exceeded a shilling.

Dollar stocks were generally irregular, with Canadian issues making the best showing, among them B-A Oil, Massey-Ferguson and Trans-Canada Pipe Lines.

AT VANCOUVER Copper Ridge was the feature in pre-noon trading today, putting on .21 to $1.24 on 174,000 shares.

Another heavy trader was Calico, which gained .06 to .84 on 316,000 shares. Magnum was up .05 at $3.90 on 154,000 shares and Western Mines was .04 better at $2.90.

Ace, however, was off .12 at .60 and Silver Arrow lost .03 to .40.

In the industrials, EDP gained $1 to $23 and Fields improved .75 to $18.

Bata was the leading trader in the oils, losing .12 to $2.65 on 25,200 shares.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Curtailed trading on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today slackened more toward the close on a trend toward lower price levels.

Buying interest in rapeseed and flax was on the dips. There was small exporter buying in flax and some U.S. commission house interest in rapeseed.

There were only a few trades by domestic shippers in oats and a little milder buying in barley. Rye was limited mostly to inter-month spreading.

Budget Should Throttle Economy

MONTREAL (CP) — Thursday's federal budget should have a large restrictive effect on the Canadian economy, D. D. Peters, chief economist with the Toronto-Dominion Bank, said Thursday.

He told a panel discussion on the outlook for Canadian financial markets at a one-day meeting of the National Industrial Conference Board that Canada appears to be in foracquired substantial quick-cash another year of slow growth. assets during the last four Jules Hare, vice-president of McLean, Budden Ltd., said there should be a firmer trend in stock prices during the next year.

Election of a majority federal government, combined with a quickening pace of economic activity and growing evidence of monetary stability had restored confidence among Canadian and foreign investors.

He said that large, domestically-owned industries and natural resource companies have been poor investments recently and may continue to be for some time.

The stock market emphasis would be on companies showing better-than-average records of growth in earnings and on shares of companies coming on to the market for the first time.

He warned that, while such a market could offer good financial returns, it required a premium of careful study before investment.

ARCTIC TARGET

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (AP) — More than 70 million acres in oil and gas exploration permits in the Canadian Arctic have been granted since July 1 this year, Jean Chretien, minister of northern development, said Thursday.

Oil permits include those granted Husky Oil and International Nuclear Corp. for an exploration program which will extend for 120 miles along the Alaska-Yukon border between Old Crow, Y.T., and Eagle, Alaska. The program is slated to begin next summer.

Up until July 1, the oil and gas industry held 190 million acres under permit in the Yukon and Northwest Territories, Mr. Chretien said.

Markets Tighten Up

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Stock Exchange Thursday announced joint proposals with the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges to tighten credit regulations between stock brokers and clients.

Vancouver Stock Exchange officers have agreed in principle and the directors will be asked to approve next month.

The new rules, which could be effective by Dec. 1 will ensure prompt settlement of cash accounts.

The new rules state that cash accounts with stockbrokers will be accepted only if shares are paid for on the day specified in the purchase contract, or with the understanding that the client pays for his shares on the day of delivery.

WILL CLOSE ACCOUNT

Mr. Somerville said that if a client is unwilling to live up to these terms, his broker will have to close the account and insist that future orders be paid for in advance.

The exchange said some of the dangerous practices which now exist include:

- Sales by clients who have no intention of delivering the stocks sold, because they hope to repurchase in the near future at a lower price to make a profit. This is called an undisclosed "short sale."
- Deliberate "kiting" by clients who withhold payment until pressed by their broker. In this way, speculators can do a large volume of business through several brokers with only a small amount of capital.
- Buying by clients who never intend to pay because they expect to sell the stocks at a profit before they get the bill.

Power Firm Clears Away Financing

MONTREAL — Churchill Falls (Labrador) Corp. Ltd. has sold a $500 million (U.S.) offering of bonds to American institutional investors.

The series A first mortgage debentures thus sold pave the way for the issue of units consisting of general mortgage bonds and shares to realize total proceeds of $100 million, said president D. J. McParland.

No offering of either first mortgage or general mortgage bonds is being made to the public.

The general mortgage bonds and shares are being offered only to the majority shareholders of the company — British Newfoundland Corp., Ltd., Shawinigan Water and Power Co., which now is part of Hydro-Quebec, and the Newfoundland government.

The company will spend the $100 million on its $800 million hydro-electric development in central Labrador before drawing funds from the $500 million issue.

Initial funds will be drawn from the U.S. subscription next year as they are required, with additional sums to flow into the huge project between 1969 and 1973.

The schedule calls for the first generating units of the 11-generator plant to go into operation in 1972.

With a full capacity of 5,225 million kilowatts, or 7 million horsepower, the project will be completed in 1976.

Stock Exchange Goes to People

Vancouver Stock Exchange is sponsoring its first adult education course in Greater Victoria with a five-week series of lectures starting Nov. 5.

Greater Victoria school district evening classes are putting on the series, entitled How to Understand the Stock Market, which has been offered for several years in metropolitan Vancouver.

Stock exchange president John Van Luven said it is a basic course, which developed after a surge of public interest in stock market trading in 1965 triggered by the Pyramid rush.

"People started to get burned right and left, not knowing the first thing about buying stocks," Mr. Van Luven explained. This course would enable those interested to develop their own judgment based on market fundamentals.

It's the Modern Way!

Economic Optimism Based on Local Poll

The optimistic outlook voiced by leading Victoria businessmen in a local Canada Manpower survey is largely supported in a poll of various industries.

A number of senior management officials interviewed believed a much greater emphasis should be placed on creation of a year-round tourist industry and that a convention centre should form the hub of this development.

This is how the manpower survey summarizes activity and outlook in various industries:

●

Construction—building continues at a steady pace. Some concern about the shortage of sewered lots. Felt that if present home-building activity is to continue, additional sewered lots will have to be developed in the very near future;

Wood products—major companies report they are remaining busy with steady export demand as well as strong domestic market;

Finance—the Victoria area continues to produce a steady supply of money for the investment market, including mortgages;

Shipbuilding—still very depressed with only small amount of work being carried on and no major contracts anticipated. Ship repair work dropped off considerably in past few weeks. Expected work force will increase during next four months because of contracts to extend length of some B.C. government ferries and additions to car-carrying capacity.

Manufacturing—machine shops continue to maintain moderate production rate;

Hospitality industry (hotels, etc.)—believes level of tourist spending in the area may drop below that of 1967, due in part to restrictions on travel funds available to United States residents. This has particularly affected volume of room bookings and use of food and cocktail lounge facilities;

Retail sales—local department stores report that during 1967 they are showing good increases in sales and estimated total retail volume up by 6 per cent in September. Customers very sales conscious and adjusting buying habits to take advantage of special sales.

●

Noted that tourist trade no longer has any great effect on over-all sales picture.

Car dealers report that during the summer sales of Canadian-American manufactured cars was down but market for imported cars has been very strong. Dealers optimistic about coming year;

Agriculture—both loganberry and strawberry crops this year were below last year's, although prices slightly better. Some small farmers said with present high values on land and increase in operating costs, many small farms on Saanich Peninsula will disappear as need for housing land increases.

U.S. Measures Finally Show Up

By HOBART ROWEN
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — That much-discussed tax-and-spending package appears, finally, to be showing up in key measurements of the economy.

A report by the council of economic advisers, published Tuesday, indicates that the federal government's deficit just about disappeared in the third quarter. In fact, there may actually have been a surplus.

This was the result of a sharp pick-up in federal tax receipts due to the 10 per cent surcharge, and a decided slow-down in the growth of federal spending.

This twin deflationary outcome was offset by consumer willingness to dip into savings. The savings rate dropped, the CEA report showed, from 7.5 to 6.2 per cent.

Thus, activity as measured by the gross national product in the third quarter showed only a small reduction, gaining at a rate of nearly $18 billion.

But administration economists think that the wide swing from a $20.2 billion deficit rate in the second quarter to balance or near balance in the third is bound to be reflected, ultimately, in a slowing down of general activity.

Exact surplus or deficit figures were not available because precise figures on third quarter corporate profits tax accruals are not yet tallied.

But personal and other tax receipts were up by a rate of $8.6 billion, social insurance contributions were up $1 billion, and indirect business taxes were up $300 million.

If corporate tax accruals were up by no more than a $2 billion rate (and it is possible that they were up by $3 or $4 billion) total federal government receipts would be $183.7 billion.

Since expenditures were calculated by the council at $184.8 billion, that would leave a deficit of only $1.1 billion, smallest since 1966.

The spending rate was up by less than $3 billion from the second quarter, which had shown a gain of nearly $7 billion over the first quarter.

All of the above budget figures are on the so-called National Income Accounts basis, which economists think is the best measure of the impact of government activities on the private economy. They are detailed in the CEA publication "economic indicators."

Continuous deficits have an inflationary impact on the economy, while balance or surpluses tend to slow the economy down. The tax-expenditure package passed June was designed to help promote the latter trend.

FEDS GOING TO MARKET AGAIN—$100M SHORT

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government had $433 million cash in the chartered banks and the Bank of Canada Wednesday night but it said Thursday it will have to raise another $100 million in ultra-short-term treasury bills next week.

The first few days of November are an especially heavy drain on the treasury's cash, when large current bills and grants to the provinces must be paid. Nov. 1 is also the day annual interest coupons on Canada Savings Bonds and other government bonds are due for payment.

The special issue of $100 million in treasury bills will be auctioned next Thursday, issued Friday, and paid off Tuesday, Nov. 12.

The government scraped the bottom of the barrel for ready cash last November, and several times this year its cash balances have fallen close to the danger mark of $250 million.

Bank Reserve Estimates to Double

OTTAWA (CP) — The Bank of Canada gave notice to the chartered banks Thursday that, starting Jan. 1, 1968, their cash reserves will be checked semi-monthly rather than on a monthly basis.

The notice is to appear in Saturday's edition of the Canada Gazette.

Under the old Bank Act, the chartered banks were required to maintain a daily average of cash equivalent to 8 per cent of their Canadian dollar deposits.

This was changed to 12 per cent of demand deposits and 4 per cent of notice deposits. During this month, this works out to $1,526,600,000 or an average of 6.23 per cent.

These averages have applied to all the banking business days in a month. Individual banks were able to run on lower reserves for part of a month so long as they were certain they would make up the average by the end of the month.

The new plan is to set the required cash reserve minimum for two periods each month, the business days to and including the 15th, and the remaining days of the month.

This will force the banks to remain closer to the target throughout the month.

'All Resigned' To Medical Plan

B.C. Health Minister Ralph Loffmark said Thursday that health ministers across Canada are resigned to entering the national medicare scheme even though some province's will face tremendous financial difficulty because of it.

Mr. Loffmark returned Wednesday from a Quebec City conference of provincial health ministers which he said had issued a "very innocuous press release" that failed to outline the chief topic of discussion.

He said the ministers concentrated on the medicare issue and all but himself expressed unhappiness with the problems facing them.

Mr. Loffmark predicted that the other eight provinces will join B.C. and Saskatchewan in the national plan because the public demands medicare protection even in provinces which face a huge bill because they are so far behind now in this field.

He said many of the provinces only have about 50 per cent of their citizens protected by medical insurance schemes now, so providing virtually universal coverage as a condition of entering the national plan will drop a tremendously high financial bill on their treasuries at the outset despite federal subsidies.

He said one province has even less than half of its population covered now through private and public schemes.

Mr. Loffmark said despite the obstacles ahead, the health ministers did not believe the federal government could withdraw its program now and none saw any possibility of turning back.

In any event, medicare had to come because of popular demand.

"There was a common recognition (at the conference) that there is a pretty general desire in the community for it," said Mr. Loffmark.

"Generally, it is felt that this is a socially desirable program but financially it will pose a problem of providing it."

Sally Ann To Stage Walkathon

Victoria Salvation Army will hold a walkathon in Beacon Hill Park Saturday to raise funds for the people of war-torn Biafra.

Participating will be students from Victoria Citadel Sunday school, their parents and friends, who are now lining up sponsors.

"We expect at least 50 competitors," a Salvation Army spokesman said today.

The walkathon will begin at the World's Tallest Totem Pole, off the Dallas Road waterfront, at 10 a.m. and continue through the paths of Beacon Hill Park until 2 p.m.

READING PAPER at the fall meeting of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers Nov. 8 will be Brig. Gen. (formerly commodore) S. Mathwin Davis. Papers presented at such meetings are often published later by shipbuilding and shipping journals. The November meeting will take place at HMCS Discovery, Vancouver.

'Terrific Year' for Holly Growth, Sales

Newfoundland homes will be decorated with holly grown in Victoria this Christmas.

The little green perennial is flourishing.

"It looks terrific this year," said local grower Ron Nutter.

"The berries are well-distributed." Not only on the branches but all across the country, he said.

On a recent trip east Mr. Nutter had orders for his holly from as far away as Newfoundland, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. Victoria-grown holly also sells well in Ontario and Québec.

Over 100,000 pounds of holly was sent east last year from the Island. This year, officials are expecting to send more.

Vancouver Island and parts of the Fraser Valley are the only places in Canada in which holly is grown commercially. The climate here is ideal for the tough, shiny, prickly-leaved little bush.

There are five large-scale growers on the Island and several smaller operations. Their farms cover about 160 acres altogether.

Until mid-November when cutting and packaging begins, farmers will wait and hope the weather doesn't change.

Five Ministers Join Mission To S. America

OTTAWA (CP) — Five ministers and 30 government officials will invade South and Central America on a flying month-long mission to promote political, trade, economic, cultural and other ties with Canada, it was announced Thursday.

Led by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, the mission leaves Sunday, Oct. 27, and returns Nov. 27 after visiting Venezuela, Colombia, Peru, Chile, Argentina, Brazil, Mexico, Guatemala and Costa Rica.

The officials will represent the key government departments and agencies concerned with the mission's purposes, including the International Development Agency, the Export Credits Insurance Corp., the Canada Council, the National Gallery, the National Film Board and the CBC.

Ministers participating are Sharp, Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin, Energy Minister J.-J. Greene, State Secretary Gerard Pelletier, and Otto Lang, minister without portfolio.

RELAY MISSIONS

All the ministers and officials will not visit all the countries. In most cases, only two ministers will be on the mission at any one time, and the other three on other government business abroad or at home.

Sharp said there are no officials representing private concerns or the public at large in the list, since the mission is primarily to work on government-to-government relations. These relations, however, are in the broadest fields of political, trade and cultural relations.

The mission, he said, forms an important part of the government's review of Canadian foreign policy, and is related to Canada's interests in Europe and the Pacific, including mainland China.

BIG MARKETS

Pepin said Canda already exports about $337,000,000 worth of good annually to the countries being visited, and imports $418,000,000 of their goods. The market is developing for Canadian manufactured goods, electrical equipment, aircraft, road machinery, and perhaps nuclear power generators.

Sharp said political relations between Canada and Latin America are foremost, and relations between Canada and the Organization of American States will be under review.

Pepin said there are possibilities of selling Canadian nuclear reactors for power production in a number of the countries to be visited, but he would not name them.

Heart Attack Caused Worker's Fatal Fall

A 56-year-old pipefitter found dead Tuesday after a 15-foot fall suffered a heart attack, Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre said Thursday.

He said a post-mortem on the body of Hervey Neff, 615 Kildew, held at St. Joseph's Hospital Wednesday, showed clear evidence the attack caused the death and the subsequent fall of the man.

Mr. Neff, who worked for Yarrows for 15 years, was on a ladder in a chain locker of the icebreaker Camsell, at the time of the accident.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 1:15 p.m. at McCall's Funeral Chapel.

VANCOUVER 'FIRST'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Howard Green, former Conservative External Affairs Minister, says Canada has a bigger stake in world peace than any other country because it will be the battleground in a third world war.

"This country will be wiped out," he told a service club Thursday.

He said Vancouver, "probably with Seattle", will be the first to go if there is a confrontation.

Pearson Dubs Picture 'The Sloucher'

OTTAWA (CP) — Lester B. Pearson watched with a benign air as his portrait was unveiled on Parliament Hill Thursday and vowed that he won't go back into politics.

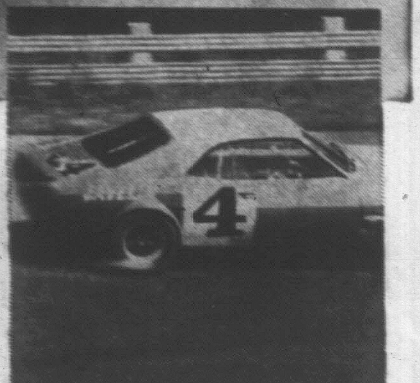
"That is, Canadian politics," he added.

The 72-year-old former prime minister looked on as his successor, Prime Minister Trudeau, unveiled the Hugh Mackenzie portrait in the concourse outside the Commons.

It shows Mr. Pearson in a brown suit and bow tie, lounging back in a chair in his most typical pose.

The former prime minister quickly dubbed it The Sloucher, explaining that it was "sort of half way between the sober and sedate of the past as the swinger of the present."

Both Mr. Trudeau and Opposition Leader Robert L. Stanfield paid tribute to Mr. Pearson's role in international affairs and in working for Canadian unity.



You can't go around looking like this forever without getting involved.

We got involved:
at Sebring, Warbonnet Park Raceway, Lime Rock Park, the Mid-Ohio Sports Car Course, Bridgehampton Race Circuit, Meadowvale International Raceway, St. Jovite, Bryar Motorsport Park, Watkins Glen, Continental Divide Raceway, Riverside Raceway and Pacific Raceway in the 1968 Trans-Am Sedan Series.

When you build a machine that looks like it can move, and build in all the equipment for moving, sooner or later you've got to go to the races.

This year, we raced all over the place.

We were a little wary at first. We'd never raced before.

But it didn't take us long to find out Javelin was up to it.

Javelin survived the brutal pounding of 12 of the most demanding race circuits in North America.

And placed very well for a freshman effort.

We don't think you'd ever want to punish a Javelin the way we did. Our only reason was to prove it could take it.

And now that we have, all that's really left for us to do is prove it to you.

Which we'd like to start doing today at your nearest American Motors dealer.

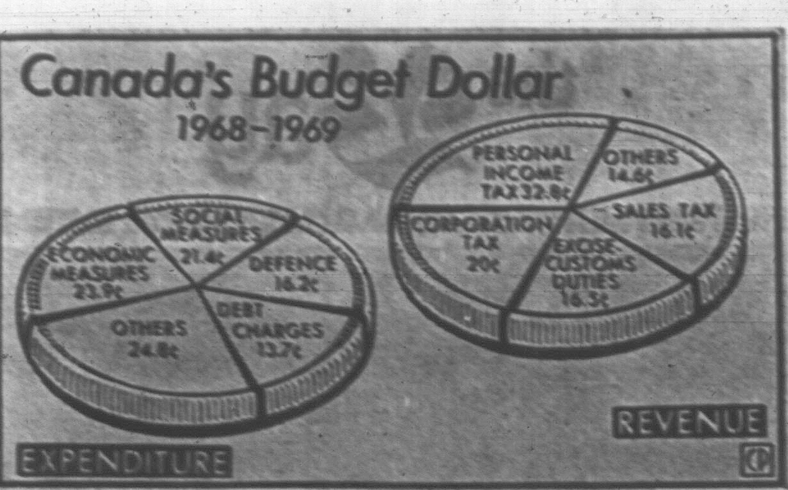
IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE!



GRAPH SHOWS where Ottawa will get each cent and where it will be spent during the 1968-69 fiscal year ending March 31, 1969. Economic and social spending will take almost half of each dollar expenditure while slightly more than half of each dollar will come directly from personal and corporation income taxes. Defence spending will take 16.2 cents of each dollar. Last year the defence department was $65.4 million over estimates and had to dip into the government contingency fund and also ask $59 million more from Parliament. This year the defence budget is estimated at $1.7 billion.

5 Per Cent Gain In GNP Forecast

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's gross national product is expected to rise by eight per cent in 1969—with about three per cent being swallowed up by higher prices.

E. P. Neufeld, professor of political economy at the University of Toronto, Thursday gave the estimate at a one-day meeting of the National Industrial Conference Board that considered the business outlook for Canada in 1969.

There will be a slowdown in the demand for higher wages next year, he predicted.

At the same time unemployment would remain about the same level as this year—close to five per cent.

He called for new techniques to deal with the country's unsatisfactory unemployment level during a period of rising costs.

Gardner English, president of the Mortgage Insurance Co. of Canada, said the federal government's new tax increases may have an adverse effect on the construction of housing units next year.

FEARS LOSS OF FUNDS

The new taxes imposed on insurance companies—which provide more than 40 per cent of the instituional mortgage money for new homes—could lead the companies to invest their money elsewhere, he said.

A move by insurance companies to withdraw their finances from housing and apartment starts could remove mortgage funds for between 10,000 and 15,000 housing units in 1969.

Marriage Tribunals Called Un-Christian

TORONTO (CP) — A United States priest Tuesday told the Canadian Canon Law Society that the marriage tribunals of the Roman Catholic Church are un-Christian and suggested they should be abolished.

But a section of the audience of about 50 canon lawyers—priests who are judges or advocates in the church's tribunals—disagreed. Tribunals rule on the validity of marriages.

Rt. Rev. Stephen J. Kelleher, of the archdiocese of New York, told the society:

"My own reaction is that the tribunal is anti-social, un-Christian, and hostile to the Christian community. What we have today is a travesty of the law and a horrible social reality."

Msgr. Kelleher was removed from his position of presiding judge by the archbishop of New York after he had published his views last month in the Jesuit magazine America.

His suggestion that the tribunals be abolished and that married couples themselves should decide whether a valid marriage exists between them brought comment from the audience.

"The church is a society of Christians," said Rev. Jean-Lois Daunais of the Montreal tribunal. "If we removed the social aspect of marriage and left it up to the individuals, it would be like a society where there was no rule of law."

MAKE THE BIG MOVE!

A new home can be a gold mine

Most things you spend money on are worth less next year—or even a minute after you've got them. How much is a new car worth after you drive it once 'round the block? Ever try to sell a brand-new TV you've won in a raffle? But your home is a growing asset. When you move up to a new and better home, you're making a wise investment—not just in living conditions, but in hard cash.

But even if homes depreciated like speedboats or tweed coats, your own home would still be a great buy. What else can give your family so much pleasure, so many happy memories? A home is 24 hours a day—it's the way you feel about life, the background and support for every pleasure you have. Even holidays are better because home is there to go back to!

And there's nothing else you can buy on such long-term financing—which means your payments are low for the value you're getting. Investigate now—ask any member of the Victoria Home Builders Association to show you how only a few dollars more a month may bring you a new world of living comfort.

'He'll Never Make It' Prophecy Heralds Death

By DON DINGWALL

DUNCAN—A passenger in a car being overtaken said "He'll never make it" as a pickup truck sped past them on the Trans-Canada Highway near here September 27.

He was tragically prophetic. Leon Louis Bertrand, 22, died instantly after crashing head on into a car coming the other way.

Esquimalt seaman John David Harvey, testifying at the inquest Thursday evening, said Bertrand hugged the centre line after overtaking and maintained a speed between 60 and 70 miles an hour.

Mr. Harvey said: "You could see he was having trouble controlling the pickup.

"There was a boom, a cloud of dust and I saw the pickup roll over and over into the ditch."

OPEN VERDICT

The coroner's jury was only out 15 minutes before returning an open verdict that Bertrand, of Cowichan Station, died as the result of severe injuries received in the accident.

A recommendation was made to the highways department to change the broken line to a solid line on the stretch of highway quarter of a mile north of Duncan on the approach to a curve.

Driver of the car involved in the crash was James Haggan, 60, of 710 Kings Road, Victoria.

He said: "We were driving south when all of a sudden this truck came out of a bunch of cars right in front of me. I had no chance to swerve or do anything.

"He must have been travelling at a terrific speed."

SAW CRASH

Campbell River school teacher Mrs. Sharon Cameron who was travelling two cars behind Haggan said the collision forced the front ends of both cars up in the air before the truck continued into the ditch.

She said the impact was at least partially in the southbound lane.

RCMP Cpl. Colin Smith gave evidence of an analysis showing Bertrand had a .20 per cent reading of alcohol in the blood. (Accepted level for impairment is .15).

Thomas Richard Sheridan, 5331 Sanata Clara, Victoria, said he was directly behind the Haggan car and had to swerve into the shoulder of the road to avoid being hit by the truck.

He said the pickup had pulled out of a line of northbound traffic directly into Haggan's path.

DISINTEGRATED

He said: "As it came towards me after hitting Haggan pieces of the truck came off and the roof of it hit my car."

Mrs. Isobel Felton, 6435 Welch Road, Victoria, was driving the car in which Harvey was a passenger.

She said that after the impact radiator fluid sprayed over her windshield and debris, including a tire, flew over her car.

Mrs. Felton said she felt there was plenty of room for Bertrand to have pulled safely back into his own lane after passing her.

She said he had been swerving across the white line dividing the two northbound lanes nearer Duncan.

Mechanic Roland Brown of Duncan testified examination showed the pickup to have been in excellent working condition.

He said: "It seemed to be a real young man's truck with a very high-powered motor."

FIRE IN SMOKEHOUSE SURE LOOKED FISHY

CAMPBELL RIVER—Where there is smoke, there isn't necessarily fire, or so Fire Chief Bill McIntosh admits.

A motorist had reported smoke coming from a large building on the Indian Reserve. McIntosh sped to the scene. There was smoke coming from the building. He radioed for one fire truck and a full crew.

When the truck arrived McIntosh cautiously threw open the door of the building and found a salmon smokehouse.

"Well," explained the chief, "it didn't look like a smokehouse".

High School Protest Spreads on Island

CAMPBELL RIVER — Hundreds of students from the senior high school staged a protest rally here last night to focus attention on their need for a gymnasium.

"We've waited four years for a gymnasium," student body leader Wanda Lanaour told the school trustees and parents who attended the rally. "We wonder why Premier Bennett refuses to provide facilities for physical education in our school."

Superintendent of schools James Logie said that the department of education is blamed for everything. "The freeze on school construction first begain in 1966 because of exorbitant interest rates.

"I agree that a gym is an integral part of any school but the department policy is that gyms, cafeterias and activity rooms are still frozen. That is it."

"It's taken sweat to establish the academic and vocational wings," said board chairman Bruce Saunders. "We've ended up with the finest school in B.C. These are fantastic kids and they deserve a gym."

POLITICAL ACTION

Saunders promised political action the cheering students. He said arrangements would be made to either send students with a petition to Victoria or sent the trustees.

Students collected 3,100 signatures in a door-to-door campaign and these along with dozens of letters protesting the lack of a gym will be forwarded to Premier Bennett. Earlier in the day students had organized a protest rally in the downtown shopping area led by the school band.

54 New Citizens Take Oaths Today

Fifty-four men and women from various countries of Europe and Asia were sworn in as Canadian citizens at a ceremony in Victoria Law Courts Thursday afternoon.

They took the oath of allegiance from R. J. Clark of the B.C. Citizenship Court, Vancouver, and were welcomed by George Atamanenko of Victoria.

After the ceremony, the new Canadians were entertained at a coffee party in Christ Church Memorial Hall given by Mrs. A. B. Carson, president, and members of Greater Victoria Citizenship Council.

Vandalism, Thefts Hit Port Alberni

PORT ALBERNI — City RCMP officials here have asked citizen aid in apprehending culprits after an outbreak of break-ins and vandalism.

City council posted a $50 cash reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of vandals damaging city property.

The reward was voted after stops signs had been removed from intersections by what Mayor Fred Bishop termed "motorized maniacs."

And aldermen observed such actions were almost equivalent to murder since they could cause an accident to someone unfamiliar with the streets.

REPORT PROWLERS

Meanwhile, RCMP have asked for assistance from anyone seeing unauthorized persons around business premises, or noticing suspicious actions, especially at night.

More than a dozen break-ins have been reported in the past week. Some establishments have been missing money or goods, other have been damaged.

Two other centres in northern Vancouver Island — Nanaimo and Campbell River — have also reported a recent upsurge in such crimes.

OTHER ISLAND NEWS

School Bomb Hoax

COURTENAY — Police said Thursday that two students admitted making a hoax bomb call which led to evacuation of more than 800 students at Courtenay Junior High School.

A telephone call to RCMP during the school lunch break said there was a bomb in the building. A search revealed nothing.

DUNCAN — All members of the executive of Duncan local 1-80 of the IWA expect to be challenged at the elections in November.

But so far there is no official word of nominees to stand against president Weldon Jubenville who has been in office five years.

About 4,200 members will be eligible to vote and nominations will be made at a special meeting here Saturday.

Other executive members at present are: first vice-president Fernie Viala; financial secretary Ed Linder; second vice-president William Hanna; third vice-president Hugh Robinson; recording secretary Carl Stevens and conductor William Milburn.

PORT ALBERNI — The boycott problem at E. J. Dunn junior high school ended Thursday after trustees contacted parents of absentees.

About 50 students stayed out of classes Thursday morning in a further protest against the lack of a proper gymnasium and some other facilities.

An hour-long explanation offered students by school board trustees Wednesday night had failed to quell the dissent. So parents were phoned.

School trustee Jack Whittal meanwhile suggested students obtain a copy of the Public Schools Act and become knowledgeable about what can be done under the act.

He said students could then influence their parents to vote for a new referendum if the board was successful in obtaining one.

DUNCAN — Schoolteacher Norman Bevan says he is finding rehearsals for the forthcoming pantomime "Jack and the Beanstalk" most enjoyable.

He portrays Major Catastrophe who commands an army of beautiful Martian Maidens.

This lovely army performs dance and drill routines under the direction of choreographer Mrs. John Ellis.

A starlight ballet to be featured in the pantomime will be performed by young dancers from Margaret Carlson's school of dance.

"Jack and the Beanstalk" is to be presented by Duncan Music Club and Duncan Drama Club jointly at the Cowichan High School Auditorium January 2, 3 and 4.

A matter of extraordinary importance to our district is coming up on Saturday, and if you are a property-owner I urge you not to let it go unheeded. This is the referendum which, if passed, will prepare the way for the first phase of the hospital plan.

The load on our hospitals, as they stand now, is terrific.

If you wish a graphic example of their situation, try pouring a quart of water into a pint bottle.

This phase will provide about 600 beds for "extended care" patients, thereby taking some of the strain off our "acute care" hospitals. That's why I am making an earnest pitch for your "Yes" vote in a referendum that calls for a 60-per-cent majority if it is to pass.

On Thursday, the Times published a list of polling stations . . . you will find them on Page 25 of that day's paper. If you believe, as I do, that we should make a start on a job which concerns us all, I hope you will turn out whatever the weather.

★

A Royal Jubilee Hospital official defines acute care as the sort that calls for a general hospital's facilities: X-ray, surgery, lab tests and the like.

Extended care is for the patient who no longer rates acute care, but who still requires nursing service round the clock by registered nurses, and continuing medical supervision.

In theory, the patient who has progressed into that category may be moved elsewhere, thus freeing a bed for the next person who has contracted pneumonia, let us suppose, or who is host to a rampaging appendix.

But what do you do with the extended care case if you've no place to send him?

What our general hospitals are doing is sending him home if he's up to it, and has a home in which he can be tended. Otherwise he stays in and by a daily miracle, bed-space is shoehorned for the next acute care patient in the unending string.

(If you aren't an "acute," but could use a spot of surgery, you join the long, long waiting list.)

Today, we have three institutions that take extended care patients. All are working to capacity.

One is our excellent DVA hospital, for veterans only.

The other two are Mt. St. Mary's and St. Mary's Priory, Colwood.

A highly-placed medical man described the work of their staffs as "magnificent" — a word his tight-mouthed clan uses sparingly. But they work in buildings the use of which is only justified by present shortage.

★

We have the luck—both good and bad—to live in a unique Canadian city.

When I first came to Greater Victoria as a resident in the early 'fifties, I found a town and countryside committed more to its past than its present. Some of its public officials were determinedly old-fashioned, others downright pastoral in their approach.

Such attitudes didn't encourage needful change, and if a tragedy exists here, it is that this region refused to meet the demands imposed by a growth-rate nothing less than spectacular.

This with a population explosion that year by year continued to snowball.

True, we responded with some building, some improvement of our notoriously shaky public services. But the story here has been too little and too late, and we are now faced with major needs.

One of these is a program of hospital construction that can be delayed further only at our peril. I can only hope that a provincial government even more tardy in foreseeing and acting upon the need stands prepared to pay its just share of the cost.

I don't think we have time to waste jangling and hair-splitting over imperatively-needed hospital construction.

The referendum that will permit a start comes to the vote tomorrow. Even if you're healthy today, vote it through.

$2-3 Million Barge Job For Yarrows

By PAUL MUSGROVE

A 400-foot barge—largest ever to be built on the west coast—will be built by Yarrows, Ltd. here.

The contract has a value estimated between $2 million and $3 million. It comes in the wake of pyramiding lay-offs and indicates a busy work schedule until completion in May.

Owner is Rivtow Marine of Vancouver. Rivtow president Cecil Cosulich said he expects the contract to be signed in a week or 10 days.

"It will take some time to work out details of the contract," he said.

Mr. Cosulich said a letter of intent will be sent to Yarrows Monday.

The barge, the biggest ever built on the west coast, will carry two cranes and will be used to haul logs from the Kitimat area to Vancouver Island.

"We have a 10-year contract with MacMillan Bloedel," Mr. Cosulich said.

From the outset, the contract for the barge depended on the deal between MacMillan and Rivtow.

10 BIDS

Mr. Cosulich said once the barge order had been decided upon, the tenders were opened to international bidding.

"We had about 10 bids, from across the country as well as England and Ireland.

"I certainly admired the way Yarrows fought for the job."

John Wallace, general manager of Yarrows, said the contract is not yet signed and refused to comment.

Neil Hindle, business agent for the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, said today 16 union members were laid off work at Yarrows on Thursday.

Fourteen more were laid off today, bringing the total to 30.

Mr. Hindle suggested up to 200 men might find work on a barge of the size indicated by Rivtow, but termed the contract a "false hope," for future prosperity in shipbuilding.

Ratepayers Oppose Park Slice

The Elk Lake and Saanich Ratepayers Association opposes use of any dedicated parkland for widening Patricia Bay Highway, its president said today.

John Blinko said the idea in dedicating Elk-Beaver Lake as a park when the regional district bought it from the city of Victoria, was that it would be for all people for all time.

"We feel no one should cut into the park and the highway widening should cut into the other side of the road," he said.

Similar thoughts have come from the Capital Region Planning Board, which is seeking an appointment with Highways Minister Wesley Black so a delegation can be heard.

SECOND LOOK

The board, in a resolution, has asked the highways department to take a further look at the Elk-Beaver Lake section of the highway to institute the proposed freeway route to the east along the ridge.

Mr. Blinko said his association has taken no stand on the ridge route suggestion but simply does not want any road widening to slice into parkland.

The association believed the area should be used for people who want sports.

"We favor a golf course, for example. We want people to be able to use the park, rather than just sit there."

Architects Shun Blanshard St. Renewal Plan

'Won't Delay Us' Says City Manager

By JIM HUME

Architects in British Columbia have locked on a collision course with the provincial government on the matter of low-rental housing design.

The battle lines were drawn when the Architectural Institute of British Columbia informed all members that under no circumstances were they to become involved in low-rental housing scheme designs in Victoria and Burnaby.

In a confidential letter to every registered architect in the province, the Institute has warned that any architect working on design for contractors bidding on the jobs under the "call-for-proposal" system, instituted by the province, would be liable to reprimand and suspension from the Institute.

The battle between the architects and the provincial government has been brewing for more than two years.

Provincial authorities claim that the call-for-proposals from contractors can result in savings of up to 20 per cent on total costs.

Architects say such thinking is naive.

Cause of the division lies in the shaving of architectural responsibility under the call-for-proposal system.

Where an architect designs a project for an owner, he then becomes the owner's representative to make sure the contractor meets specifications as the job progresses.

Under the call-for-proposals system the contractor hires the architect and controls both design and specifications.

Architects claim that being an employee of the contractor rather than the owner, they lost control of the project and the door is left open for cost savings which could be detrimental to the owner of the building under construction.

In July, 1967, local architect John Di Castri summed up the difference this way: "In a situation of this kind the architect must take instructions from the contractor.

Wheaton to Submit Proposal

"The contractor is engaged in a field which is highly competitive on a price basis and therefore, if his ideas for a scheme have already been crystallized from the point of view of economics, then the architect will have to comply with those ideas even though they may not be the best solution. After all the contractor is paying the architect's fee."

Local contractor George Wheaton, interviewed from Harrison Hot Springs this morning, disagrees.

"There are certain projects which just can't be let under a call-for-proposals," he said. "But a low rental housing project isn't one of them.

"When the call for proposals on the 180 housing units for the Rose-Blanshard scheme is made my firm will be submitting a proposal.

"I think that we, and other firms in this province, are quite capable of doing that.

"If you have a very complex building or project then I think you need an architect in on the ground floor. But, after all, basically all you are doing in the Rose-Blanshard is designing one small house and repeating it 180 times.

"There can be quite a saving in costs when the design and costing team work together on a project like that."

City manager Dennis Young said he regretted to see the fight between the architects and the provincial government flare into the open over the Rose-Blanshard proposals.

"It has been coming for some time," he said. "But it seems unfortunate that a desperately needed low-rental housing scheme should be the issue they make a stand on."

He was hopeful that provincial and architectural authorities would be able to get together and iron out their differences.

Mr. Young said that while the Architectural Institute's stand was unfortunate at this time the threat of suspension from the institute would not delay construction of the 180 housing units once proposals were called.

"I think there are enough contractors around with design teams to get the project under way once the federal government authorizes the call for proposals," he said.

FATHER OF 7 KILLED BY TRACTOR

Ronald Reeves, 44, was crushed to death at Fulford Harbor Thursday when a tractor he was using to pull a truck in heavy mud overturned.

Reeves, father of seven children, was working on the dairy farm of Roger Hughes.

An inquest was ordered by Salt Spring Island coroner M. F. Pieler.

Advance Polls Indicating Light Turnout

The first day of advance polling for the $9.3 million hospital referendum indicates a light turnout when the final decision is made Saturday.

Only 55 votes were cast throughout the region Thursday at advance polling stations scattered from Sooke to the Gulf Islands.

Of that total 35 were cast in the Greater Victoria area with Victoria accepting 11 advance votes, Oak Bay and Saanich 12 votes each.

Property owners only are allowed to vote today and Saturday on the decision to spend more than $9 million to build 600 extended care beds and provide funds for construction and equipment for existing hospitals.

48 STATIONS

Some 48 polling stations will open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday to record the vote. A 60-per-cent majority of the votes cast is required for the referendum to pass.

On Thursday Dr. A. C. Pickles, Royal Jubilee Hospital medical director told the Victoria Rotary Club a "no" vote would produce a "disaster situation."

Similar warnings have been issued by municipal leaders throughout the area who state the 600 extended care beds are essential if the critical bed shortage is to be relieved.

No decision has yet been made by the regional hospital district as to where the new extended care hospitals should be built but it has been recommended that four new hospitals or existing hospital extensions be built each comprised of a 150-bed unit.

Ask The Times

Q. Can you tell me if you can raise worms for fishing and how to raise them?—M.M.

A. Ideal conditions are rich compost and dampness. Worms can be fed almost any sort of vegetable waste, leaf mold or organic garbage. Tea leaves have been recommended as a diet delicacy. A recommended method of keeping the pile damp—not wet—is to spread an old gunny sack over it and keep that moist at all times. Worms breed year around, though cold weather or dryness might cause them to become dormant.

HOLD-UP TERM: 5 YEARS

A 22-year-old Toronto man today was sentenced to five years in the B.C. penitentiary for the armed robbery of Ernie's Fine Foods, 1626 Hillside, on May 11.

Peter Simpson was also sentenced to 2½ years for theft of a car which was used in the robbery. The sentences will run concurrently.

Half an hour after the hold-up, while being chased by police, the car smashed into a tree at View Royal. Simpson, who was driving, suffered a broken foot and head injuries. His companions — Robert Rickward, 20, and Roger McEwan, 22 — died soon after.

In Victoria Assize Court, Simpson asked to be sent to a provincial jail because, he said, it is "very hard" for a man who has been in the federal penitentiary to get employment.

He admitted to previous convictions for breaking and entering and theft in Ontario over the past three years, and said:

"I've had enough. I don't want no more. I want to learn a trade. But, when you go for a job, an employer won't take you if you have been in the penitentiary."

B.C. PLANS TREE-SPRAYING HERE

U.S. Bans Diseased Trees

By HUMPHRY DAVY

An outbreak of a pear tree disease here has resulted in a ban by the United States on entry of any Canadian junipers.

And a provincial government tree-spraying program has been scheduled for this area.

This is the only known place the infection is known to occur in Canada at present.

Juniper is the alternate host for pear-trellis-rust as the disease is known. It moves back and forth in air-borne spores from pear tree to shrub.

* * *

Roy P. Messum, federal plant protection officer, said the disease will have to be eradicated from the Greater Victoria area to prevent it from spreading to commercial orchards on the mainland.

"It's got to be done," he said. "We hope all residents will co-operate."

A spray program will be launched by the plant protection branch next spring, at no cost to home owners, he said.

Thousands of junipers are used for landscaping homes in the Greater Victoria area, as well as hundreds of pear trees scattered in private gardens.

Mr. Messum said juniper shrubs are shipped to the United States as ornamentals but their entry has been prohibited until the disease is eradicated.

The U.S. ban applies to all Canada.

* * *

The disease damages leaves, thus reducing pear crops. It can be identified by orange spots on the pear leaves.

It can be controlled by spraying trees with a fungicide called Acti-dione, but Mr. Messum warned gardeners not to use the spray if the tree is in fruit.

Second Student Rebel Speaks at University

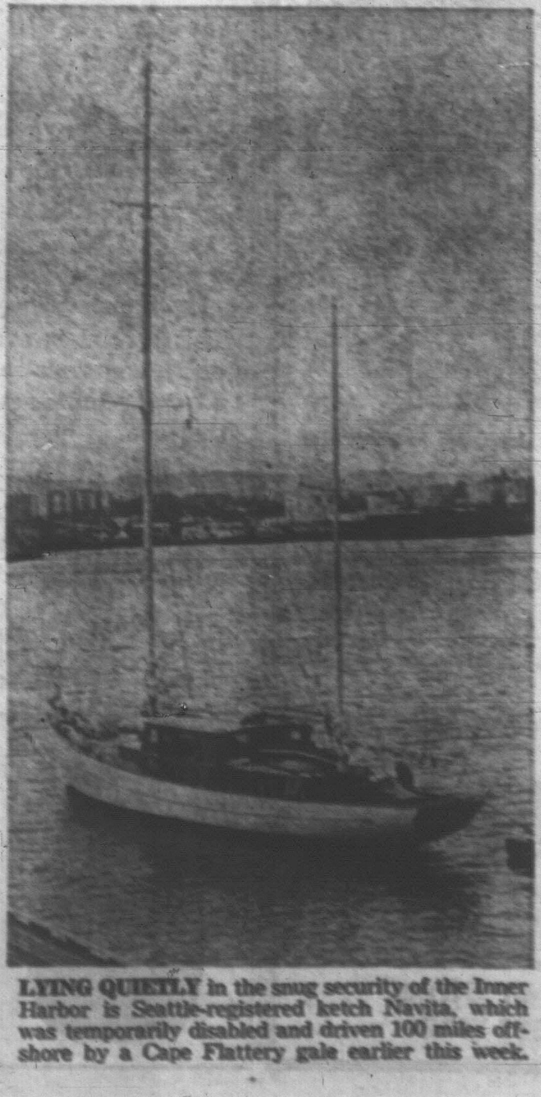
The second student activist to speak at Uvic in less than a week will appear Monday at the Student Union Building.

Mark Rudd, leader of the revolt last year at New York's Columbia University and head of Students for a Democratic Society, has been invited by the Uvic political forum.

He follows by six days Yippie leader Jerry Rubin, who was also invited by the forum.

Rudd is one of the leading advocates in the United States of a student takeover of university campuses. He will address students at 12:30.

The forum has also invited Dr. Alexander Von Hause, sent by the West German government, to speak on England, France and the Common Market at 12:30 Tuesday.



LYING QUIETLY in the snug security of the Inner Harbor is Seattle-registered ketch Navita, which was temporarily disabled and driven 100 miles offshore by a Cape Flattery gale earlier this week.

Mother's Concern Proves Telepathic

By JOHN MIKA

Green seas smashing over a sailboat wallowing helplessly in a southeast gale off Cape Flattery can activate mother love 200 miles away.

At least it did last Sunday when Mrs. E. F. Ambery, 207 St. Patrick, was filled with frantic foreboding for her son's safety. She telephoned the puzzled U.S. Coast Guard station at Neah Bay about her feeling of dread.

A few hours later the USCG station got another call from the opposite direction — a Mayday distress radio signal from the 63-foot Seattle ketch "Navita" being pounded by wind-whipped waves of up to 25 feet, its rails ripped and engine out of action.

"It was just ESP (extra-sensory perception) I guess but my mom just knew I was in trouble," 20-year-old Peter Ambery told The Times this morning.

"She just knew it so strongly that she phoned the Neah Bay station to ask them to look for us and even phoned a friend she knows who owns a plane to come back from Italy to help the search."

●

Her foreboding at the time was more than shared by Peter.

"I've done a lot of sailing but this was the first time I really thought I was going to die," he said.

Small wonder, when the same storm sent the 600-foot tramp freighter Continental Shipper running for Victoria after seas buckled a section of railing and shifted a deck-load of timber so that she listed a full degree to port.

Peter has taken a year off for adventure and travel after completing his second year of an economics and arts course at the University of Victoria.

He heard about the berth available on Navita—owned by San Francisco Dr. James Watt who was heading for Mexico—Saturday night and on Sunday morning he was aboard as she made her departure from Sidney.

"I knew that Cape Flattery was a challenge at this time of year, but I guess we bit off more than we could chew—although we would have been all right if water hadn't got into the fuel to put our engine out of action," he said.

The storm hit that night and for the next 50 hours there was no sleep, no meals and no relief from the sea sickness and fear caused by the ocean's fury as it progressively split sails, stopped the engine and ignored the last-resort sea anchor streamed from the bow.

●

The worst moment came as the radio set was smashed during a particularly violent lurch, cutting off the last link between the four humans, one dog and four cats aboard from USCG planes and cutters searching for them — miles from the wrong area as it turned out because the May-day call had underestimated how far offshore Navita had been driven.

The roller-coaster ride ended Tuesday as the wind died out, a small sail was rigged and brought them within sight of a searching plane and, after a tow to Neah Bay, Navita returned to the Inner Harbor under its own power.

After catching up lost sleep and stability in the stable sanctuary of his own home, Peter suddenly interrupted the description of his ordeal with: "You know, now that I think of it, it was a tremendous experience, the whole thing, really something to remember.

"It was the most wonderful thing when the wind died away and the ship kept heaving up and down in the swell to look up and see the brightest Milky Way I've ever seen in the night sky — it was a feeling of miraculousness."

Building Burgers Part of Party Fun

By PENNY SAVER

It's such a disappointment when Halloween falls in the middle of the week. The youngsters have to do all their trick or treating and fire-working in the early hours of the evening in order to be in bed in time to wake up for school. The occasional "hard" (or forgetful) teacher will assign some homework that has to be done before the fun can start while many experienced mothers will put a firm foot down on candy consumption to make sure that All Hallow's bellyaches don't deplete the class rolls. It makes things difficult for teenagers too. They may not go out trick or treating, but they do like to hold parties. If moved to the nearest Saturday night these teen parties may clash with adult parties and consequent baby-sitting assignments. For this reason the Saver teens will be holding their Halloween get-together tomorrow night.

We decided that burgers would make the quickest and tastiest main dish with everyone "building their own" as my daughter cooks the patties on a fire-side grill: I was concentrating on the more conventional "stuffings": a big bottle of prepared mustard, hamburger relish for all tastes, onions to be sliced (we'll offer a choice, raw or fried), tomatoes, lettuce, mayonnaise. Then my daughter came up and dumped several plastic packages in the basket. "What's that?" "Round slices of cheese for cheese-burgers," she replied. That's right; no longer do you have to worry about the squared edges of cheese-burger cheese falling and crisping on the pan. These slices of processed cheddar come in eight-ounce packets, each packet containing 12 slices of cheese. The price was 48 cents. (The packages we got were marked "three cents off." I lost track of the cheese during the check-out confusion so I couldn't find out whether the regular price is 51 cents or 48 cents. Sorry about that, fans.)

If you would like to know where I shopped, please call 383-3131.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"...and that's Harriet's younger sister—she always wanted contact lenses, but she was positive she'd have to have her eyes pierced first."

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Lowman

Q. I have fine hair with very little body. When it is dry, it is a dirty dishwater blonde. When it is wet, it is brown and I can see some reddish streaks in it. What do these streaks mean — that my hair will turn red later? I hope so! What causes these streaks? I have only noticed them lately.

A. All hair looks darker when it is wet. Sorry, but I doubt very much that your hair will turn red. I imagine the streaks you mention come from having been out in the sun a lot this summer.

Q. My only problem is my figure. I'm 16 and my measurements are bust 31 inches, waist 26 inches and hips 36 inches. All of my friends have terrific figures and they laugh at me because of mine. A girl I thought to be my best friend called me "flat-chested." Please give me an exercise to develop my bust. Print it in the newspaper.

A. It is thoughtless of your friends to tease you about your small bust. However, they probably do not know that this makes you unhappy. The fact that they talk about it probably indicates that they do not think of the condition as nearly so extreme as you do. Otherwise they would whisper about it.

Some girls develop later than others. Your bust may still increase some in size. Remember, too, that many of the world's most beautiful women have been small-busted. The following exercise will develop the underlying chest muscles and make your bust more prominent.

Stand erect, arms hanging at sides, with a weight in each hand. Raise the arms sideward upward to a shoulder height position. Swing the arms forward, still at shoulder height level, and bring the hands together, pushing one hand against the other. Return arms to sideward shoulder height position and then to sides. Continue.

Q. I am 15 years old and 5 feet 6 inches and weigh 130 pounds. Do I need to lose weight? If so, how much?

A. With a medium build, you should weigh about 125 pounds.

Q. Please tell me if there is any safe way to remove hair from the breasts?

A. Yes, it can be safely removed by electrolysis. I asked a dermatologist about this again not long ago. Many skin specialists have done this right in their office. Ask your doctor to recommend a well qualified specialist.

BAZAAR PROCEEDS WILL PROVIDE BURSARIES

DEAR ABBY . . .

More Reading, Less Kissing

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am worried. I read somewhere that a girl can get cancer from kissing a boy who smokes a lot if the boy happens to have an open cut on his tongue or lip. Is this true?

THIRTEEN AND WORRIED

DEAR THIRTEEN: No, it's not true, although there are other diseases which are transmitted in this manner. Obviously you're old enough to read, but you're hardly old enough to go in for the kind of kissing you describe, so the word from here is to read more and kiss less, and you won't have to worry.

DEAR ABBY: I am very much in love with a married man. I know this sounds corny, but his wife doesn't understand him. (I do.) He spends half his time with me, and other half at home because he has children. He tells me he hasn't loved his wife for a long time and that he has absolutely nothing whatsoever to do with her, but last night in his sleep he called me by her name. What do you think?

THE GIRL FRIEND

DEAR GIRL FRIEND: I think you ought to pray that this never happens in reverse.

DEAR ABBY: I am a normal, red-blooded, 29-year-old man who would like to get married. I am not looking for a rich girl, or a beauty either, as I am nothing out of the ordinary. But I do want a woman no man has ever had before.

I was on the brink of marriage twice in my life. One was a divorcee and the other a widow. I simply could not bring myself to marry either one of them knowing they had been in the arms of another man. I fully realize it was not the widow's fault that her husband died, and the divorcee was also blameless because her husband ran off and left her. All the same, I want a woman who has never been with a man—if you know what I mean. Am I asking too much? Sign me—

"LOUIS THE FIRST"

DEAR LOUIS: No, but your kind usually winds up "LOUIS XVI!" And now may I ask you a question? Have you ever been with a woman—if you know what I mean?

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing in reference to "WORRIED," who stated her dilemma about whether to tell her neighbor with a four-year-old boy about the teen-ager on their street who has molested children. You said, YES, by all means tell her.

I say, YES, YES, YES, tell her immediately! We lived on our street for two years with our two beautiful pre-school-age daughters when we learned that a neighbor had a history of child molesting. When I mentioned this to several neighbors to warn them to watch their children closely, they said they already knew about it, but no one wanted to tell US for fear of "upsetting" us.

To keep silent when one knows of an evil is to condone it. If one of my daughters had been molested, those silent neighbors would have been morally guilty.

Workshop Highlights

Group discussions and an address by Dean R. R. Jeffels of the University of Victoria were highlights of a workshop, the first of its kind, organized by Municipal Chapter IODE, and held in the Greater Victoria Art Gallery.

Officers of the Chapter conducted group discussions during the morning, and later all members joined for general discussion.

Dean Jeffels was introduced by Miss Christine MacNab, who reminded members that he was a former winner of the IODE National Overseas Scholarship award.

He spoke on the revolution in science, communication, transportation and thought which has taken place since the first atom bomb was dropped, and his address was followed by a question period. Miss Margaret Dodimead thanked the speaker.

Following a humorous skit by members of Royal Bride Chapter, Miss Joan French conducted a study of the role of the IODE in a modern society.

Mrs. V. H. V. Sheppered spoke on the semi-annual meeting of Provincial Chapter.

Speakers in Disguise— Audience Guesses Topics

A joint "Founder's Night" meeting of the Victoria Toastmistresses Number 90, Camosun, Beaver and Capital City groups was held recently in the Princess Charlotte and Prince Albert rooms of the Empress Hotel.

The theme "Masquerade Parade" saw the speakers dressed to represent the people about whom they spoke. The speakers didn't mention the name of their topic characters in their speeches and the audience was to guess whom they represented.

Judge Begbie was represented in a speech, "Frontier Justice" by Jack Clark. Mrs. W. Winstone in "The Constant Wife" depicted Penelope; Mrs. Clare McCaul, "A Great Lady," was Queen Victoria; Mrs. S. Creed, "The Understanding Heart," Pearl Buck, and D. Shaw, "The Race," Theodore Roosevelt.

Topicmistress for the evening was Mrs. A. B. Campbell who spoke on the Olympic Games. The last word of her speech was given to a member as a topic for an impromptu talk and this followed down the line until five members had spoken.

Toastmistress was Mrs. M. Love of the Arbutus club.

As the Victoria Toastmistresses Number 90 was founded in October, as well as the original Toastmistresses club, the guests sang "Happy Birthday" to the group.

A council meeting will be held in the Shoreline Inn, Nanaimo, Sunday, Nov. 3, beginning at 11:45 a.m. It will be open to guests and visitors.

'Revolutionaries' Walk Out On Betty Friedan's Group

By ELIZABETH SHELTON
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Because of "irreconcilable ideological conflicts" on what feminism is about, the president of the New York chapter of the National Organization for Women has resigned.

A faction of dissidents followed Miss Grace Atkinson out of the feminist organization founded by author Betty Friedan ("The Feminine Mystique").

The dissidents immediately organized a coalition of "the young the black and the beautiful," under the name of "The Oct. 17 Movement."

"A la Che Guevara," Miss Atkinson explained yesterday. The date marked the "showdown" of N.O.W. members' differences. A long bitter schism based on differences on such issues as marriage, abortions, family and the class system ended in the heat of debate on N.O.D.'s own operating structure.

NO OFFICERS

Mrs. Friedan says her goal is "to get women into positions of power." Miss Atkinson and her followers "want to get rid of positions of power."

To start, Miss Atkinson rid herself of her own.

The new organization will have no officers and no structure. Its goal is to be an action coalition of the student movement the women's movement and the Negro movement.

Miss Atkinson, a Louisiana native, is a candidate for a Ph.D. in philosophy at Columbia University.

She said Wednesday that the 50 members of the new "Oct. 17 movement" include Columbia students.

The struggle within N.O.W. was climaxed Sunday night when a proposal to eliminate offices in the organization was ruled illegal under the bylaws. The young dissenting faction then tried to diffuse the office powers by increasing the number of persons in each office.

This was defeated by a 2-1 majority. Miss Atkinson decided that, since she had failed to get rid of the power positions which she held, she had no choice but to resign.

This left bitter feelings between her and Mrs. Friedan, whom she accused Wednesday of having tried to have her impeached.

The alleged impeachment attempt took place, Miss Atkinson said, after she appeared in court in Boston with Valerie Solanas, who was being tried for the shooting of pop artist Andy Warhol. Mrs. Friedan according to Miss Atkinson, objected to newspaper picture captions stating that Miss Atkinson was appearing in behalf of N.O.W., when she was there on her own.

Conservative N.O.W. members objected also to the young dissidents' support of Bill Baird, an abortion crusader, who uses civil disobedience as a means of getting cases into court.

Miss Atkinson and her followers also:

- ● Believe in abolition of marriage because they consider it slavery.
- ● Long for the day of test tube babies so births can be performed without human incubation.

"We wanted to move faster, and they said, 'no, that's too controversial'," Miss Atkinson said.

SUPPORT AMENDMENT

N.O.W. supports the equal rights amendment to the constitution that the national woman's party has been trying to get through Congress for many years.

N.O.W. was founded by Mrs. Friedan after enactment of the civil rights act of 1964, title VII of which prohibits job discrimination on the basis of sex.

It had acted as a watchdog on the equal employment opportunity commission and has entered several court cases involving job discrimination against women. One of these has reached the supreme court.

PLAN FASHION SHOW

Miss Jean Duff, left, royal matron of Mizpah Court No. 2, Order of the Amaranth, will receive guests when the group holds its annual luncheon and fashion show Wednesday in the K of P Hall. General convener is Mrs. Norma Rutherford, right, who will assist in receiving guests. A hot luncheon will be served from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. and tea will be served at 3 p.m. Proceeds will be donated to the Heart Fund and other benevolent work of the order. Tickets may be obtaind by phoning Miss Duff at 382-3738. There will be stalls of home cooking, novelties, sewing and other items.

SNACK BAR FEATURED AT HADASSAH BAZAAR

Jewish Cooks Pool Talents

Braided bread, yeast dough, coffee cakes, cheese cake and many varieties of Jewish home baking will be specialties featured at the popular home baking stall at the annual Hadassah Bazaar to be held this coming Wednesday at Holyrood House, from 11 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

In the same room as the home baking table will be the delicatessen stall with "take-home" items such as dill pickles, corned beef, sweet and sour meat balls, and many other bargains in grocery items.

Another attraction will be a snack bar, where customers will be able to enjoy a hot meal of cabbage rolls or sweet and sour meat balls with hot rice, salad and dessert. There will also be corned beef on rye bread, with pickle and salad.

Hundreds of gifts will be found on the handicraft table and in the lucky dip booth. Good used clothing and small household items will be featured in the French Room.

The Hadassah bazaar is also famous for its excellent tea and home-made refreshments, all included in the admission price.

Tickets also allow chances on three door prizes.

Mrs. M. L. Greene is convener of the bazaar.

Soviet Stand Douses Any Bitter UN Debate

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The General Assembly today winds up a general policy debate that opened three weeks ago on a note of crisis but turned into one of the mildest such exchanges in UN history.

U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk opened the annual parade of policy statements Oct. 2 with a blunt dressing down of the Soviet Union that most delegates thought would touch off a bitter East-West debate.

Rusk denounced the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia as a violation of the UN charter and warned the Russians not to interfere in West Germany as they had threatened. He also questioned the new Moscow doctrine that asserted the right to interfere in the internal affairs of other Communist states.

Instead of the expected counterblast, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko replied in unusually moderate tones. He managed to take a good deal of the heat out of the Czechoslovak question by making a quick bid for a detente with the West and generally projecting the image of a peaceful power.

Gromyko did not retreat from the Soviet position that the occupation of Czechoslovakia was necessary to maintain the "Soviet Commonwealth." But his remarks about Vietnam were limited to a call for a bombing halt and lacked the usual invective the Communists employ on that topic.

The Soviet minister laid heaviest stress on a call for peace through disarmament and arms control. He said the Soviet government is ready to start a "serious exchange of views" with the United States on mutual limitation and reduction of strategic nuclear weapons.

Blasts Rock Athens

ATHENS (AP)—Three explosions rocked this Greek capital Thursday night, causing little damage and no casualties but sending panic through the streets. The explosions, believed to have been caused by plastic bombs, were presumably the work of persons in opposition to the army-backed government.

Largest Ever Citizenship Ceremony

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

It was the biggest citizenship ceremony Victoria has ever seen.

Fifty-three men and women, originating from 14 countries of Europe and Asia, became Canadian citizens in a staid but friendly ceremony at Victoria Law Courts Thursday afternoon.

Court officials said they had never seen so many sworn in at one time, and there wasn't an empty seat in the courtroom.

The citizens occupied the front six rows of seats facing the judge's bench. Friends, relatives, spectators and members of Greater Victoria Citizenship Council and its affiliates, filled the rows behind.

The jury box and the press box were also filled and CGIT girls in uniform stood by.

The citizens were called forward one row at a time and stood before the judge's bench while they repeated the oath of allegiance after R. J. Clark, president of the Citizenship Court of British Columbia.

CERTIFICATES

Mr. Clark, in black gown and white cravat, sat in the judge's bench while he called out the words of the oath. Then he stepped down from the bench and shook hands with the new citizens as he presented each with a naturalization certificate.

"Canada welcomes you," he said in a brief address. "We believe we are one of the most fortunate nations in the world and we sincerely hope you will find prosperity and happiness among us.

"We have secured many liberties for our nation, but the price of liberty is eternal vigilance, and we must be on guard against any invasion of our liberties."

The new citizens were also welcomed by Mrs. A. B. Carson, president of Greater Victoria Citizenship Council, and George Atamanenko of the Capital Region Planning Board.

COFFEE PARTY

They were then entertained at a coffee party given by the council in the Memorial Hall of Christ's Church Cathedral.

The new Canadians, with country of origin in brackets, are:

Augusto Agostinis (Italy), Mr. and Mrs. Luka Amic (Yugoslavia), Mrs. Rita Andersen (Germany), Giuseppe Bivo (Italy), Mrs. Erna Bickel (Germany), Miss Tytje Albertha Bie (Holland), Cirl Bubalo (Holland), Mrs. Tove Marie Barlow (Denmark).

City Wants Second Look At Bylaw

Victoria city council Thursday referred back to committee a bylaw that would prevent traffic from entering intersections while they were blocked by other cars.

The bylaw, which Mayor Hugh Stephen said would catch him at least twice a week, was initially turned down by council.

He said he had reservations about the law, which would catch "innocent" drivers when it was intended to stop the "gross violators."

It would make it illegal for a driver to enter an intersection unless there was room for his car on the other side. The intent was to stop motorists from edging into an intersection to make a left turn and being caught there when the light changed. This frequently slows traffic on the cross street.

The proposed law will be reconsidered in committee before appearing again before council.

Visitor Leaves His Card

VANCOUVER (CP) — Wayne Bohn did his best to save a branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia Thursday night but he lost his shirt.

Finally, the visitor who raised a stink in the building left, leaving overwhelming evidence of his presence.

Mr. Bohn, a cleaner, threw his shirt at the invader. The skunk retaliated by blasting the shirt as well as the floor and walls.

Two cleaners and two policemen closed all doors but one. Finally, the skunk trotted out into the alley.

Mr. Bohn said cleaners splashed a powerful industrial deodorant around but its success has yet to be determined.

"The bank," sniffed Mr. Bohn, "has a strong oniony smell."

'Broaden Educational Offerings'

Shoreline junior high school opened Thursday as the province's newest school, just a few yards from where B.C.'s first school stood in 1855.

A crowd of about 500 persons attended the ceremonies.

The school is located at Shoreline and the Old Island Highway by Christie Point, and was built to accommodate 700 pupils.

Authorized by ratepayers in 1964 at an estimated cost of $720,000, the school eventually cost $1,014,445.

A bronze plaque marking the occasion was unveiled by Claudette Lamontagne, 15, prime minister of the student parliament.

Guest of honor at the ceremony was Joseph Chell, superintendent of the Greater Victoria school district, who called for a boradening of educational offerings to meet the needs of society.

The Grade 12 system is dominated by university entrance requirements, he said and should offer more training for those who want technical skills.

Nixon Walking Tightrope Despite Apparent Victory

Richard Nixon, the odds-on favorite to win the U.S. presidential election Nov. 5, is running a cautious, carefully-tailored drive toward that goal. This report explains how and why.

By ROD CURRIE

AKRON, Ohio (CP)—In a sense, the presidency of Republican Richard M. Nixon has already begun.

Barring the biggest political upset in 20 years, and on the basis of current polls, he will be sworn in Jan. 20 next with much of his administration already in motion.

For months he and a vast body of experts have been quietly formulating economic and domestic policy. An emissary was even dispatched to Europe for consultations on his behalf with heads of state.

Perhaps more than any previous candidate, even the late John F. Kennedy, he has groomed himself for the office he confidently expects to win.

But for all this, on the public platform he has the air of a man on a tightrope.

"If the election was held today," to use the phrase of the pollsters, Nixon would be a shoo-in. But "tomorrow" is Nov. 5 and Nixon knows that even with his hefty lead a false step could be disastrous.

Think Twice

Travelling the slick, sanitized Nixon campaign trail for a few days, one tends to put credence in rumors that members of the family and every staffer have been warned to think twice before any public comment—and then say nothing.

These fail-safe tactics have left his campaign style flat and unemotional. Criticism that he does not come to grips with major issues is well founded. But apparently it is not doing Nixon any harm.

Perhaps it is the calibre of his opposition that makes it possible for Nixon to get away with it. Democrat Hubert Humphrey is no more a spellbinder than is Nixon. Third-party candidate George C. Wallace, a fiery right-winger, is the only one who really generates any heat among followers. Nixon now is content to take the word of the pollsters that Wallace's campaign has peaked at about 20 per cent of the vote and will fall back before election day.

While Humphrey agonizes over Vietnam, Nixon takes the comfortable holier-than-thou attitude that he will not say anything that would jeopardize the Paris peace talks.

What he has said indicated he is closer to the hawkish bent of the Johnson administration than is Humphrey, still struggling inconclusively to be his "own man" on the war issue.

Humphrey, in a manner some call panicky, has tried every tactic to flush Nixon out into the open for a television debate or to take a firm, detailed stand on various other policy issues. Nixon won't bite.

But as the campaign heads into the home stretch there is some disquiet, even in the Nixon camp, on whether his indecisive style will sustain his lead through election day.

Perhaps sensing this, Nixon has promised a whirlwind finish. But many feel he still is committed to the tactics that have served him well so far and that, although he may step up his well-greased machine, the output will be more in additional miles travelled and speeches made than in actual substance.

On the road, his campaign bears the stamp of money, planning and efficiency. It doesn't need dangerous controversy.

Keeps Schedule

Despite an exhausting schedule and an entourage that includes three aircraft loads of staff, family and press, "the candidate," as his staff invariably calls him, is never more than 15 minutes off schedule.

Here and at an earlier noon-time rally in Moline, Ill., recently, the setting could have been a Hollywood backdrop to a Doris Day movie—balloons and bunting and bands and everything nice, the lighting just right, the amplification tuned perfectly.

And the people were nice—well-scrubbed teen-agers, blue-rinse elderly ladies only slightly self-conscious under white straw Nixon hats, hearty farm families and workers from the manufacturing plants, their native midwestern conservatism outweighing the liberal tendencies common to union men elsewhere.

"The candidate" steps forward, balloons released from the ceiling fill the hall, the crowd is on its feet, the local school band in blue-and-white satin uniforms outdoes itself.

More Relaxed

Nixon's middle-aged roundness of figure, a greater jowliness, have laid to rest the derisive comparisons of years gone by with the wedding-cake bridegroom.

More relaxed and outgoing than in his 1960 campaign against President Kennedy, he still retains a strange repertory of wooden marionette-like gestures to drive home a point, draw forth applause.

Humor is not his forte—"If this was a beauty contest I wouldn't even be in it," draws only polite laughter. Name-calling is beneath him. Wallace is ignored, Humphrey generally is "the other fellow," Johnson if mentioned at all is only "LBJ."

These are partisan crowds who love it when Nixon promises that under his administration the American flag will no longer "be used as a doormat" around the world.

They're in full cry when he says the Democrats have failed the country and Humphrey promises only more of the same, and when he comes to the mainstay of his campaign oratory—"law and order."

Unlike Wallace, who brings a sort of police-state connotation to the phrase, or Humphrey who couples it with "liberty and justice," Nixon makes the undiluted pledge that he will make the streets of America safe.

Another much-used crowd-pleaser is his promise to stimulate private enterprise and economic growth to "provide more jobs instead of more welfare."

But the U.S. Midwest is basically Republican country. Sensing that this is the year of the Democrats' discontent, of a national movement to the right, he now must carry his campaign more and more into enemy territory.

For, although the polls tell him he will be president, they also tell him that Congress still will be dominated by Democrats. As vice-president to Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, he knows the frustration of this strange aspect of the American electoral system.

From now on his aim will be to win with the broadest possible popular backing to strengthen his hand in dealing with a non-captive Congress.

New Remand In Shooting

Zookeeper Jim Oyen, Duncan, was remanded again in Duncan magistrate's court Thursday on a charge of attempted murder.

He was granted a remand without plea or election until Tuesday, Nov. 26.

Crown Counsel Alistair MacDonald made the request with the consent of the defence.

He said: "There are certain aspects of the case I wish to discuss with senior defence counsel."

Mr. Oyen is to be represented by David R. Williams, Duncan, who was unable to be in court Thursday.

The charge arises from an incident in the Oyen's house trailer where the accused is alleged to have fired several shots from a .22 rifle in the presence on his wife, Tosca. No one was hit.

TWICE defeated for the national Liberal leadership, and former mayor of Portage La Prairie, Lloyd Henderson, was defeated Wednesday in a bid for a seat on the Portage council. He was defeated in a mayoralty race last year.

GOP 'TRUTH SQUAD' DISSECTS HUMPHREY

WASHINGTON (CP)—The "truth squad," a durable piece of U.S. election campaign gimmickry, is back in operation for the Republicans in the Nov. 5 presidential campaign.

Michigan Democrats also formed one when George Wallace, combative little Southerner mounting a strong third-party threat this year, invaded the state.

"Our mission is to unravel the cliches and dissolve the language into its final content," says Republican Senator Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, a member of the four-man truth delegation.

It dogs Vice-President Hubert Humphrey, Democratic presidential candidate, wherever he goes.

Canada often imports election gadgets perfected in the U.S. political crucible. But the truth squad, originated by the Republicans in 1952 to defend Dwight D. Eisenhower from what were believed to be wild Democratic party slanders, didn't run well north of the border.

It was tried by the Liberal party in the 1962 campaign, led by Judy LaMarsh. A formidable House of Commons presence, as the ruling Conservatives came to realize, the lady lawyer nevertheless was not at her best in stalking then prime minister Diefenbaker through the land.

Diefenbaker in his peerless counter-punching style ridiculed the truth squad out of court. It was ended prematurely, along with some other campaign frills including a homing pigeon display in which the pigeons got lost and never did arrive at their Quebec province destination.

$100 grows to $250 with Canada Savings Bonds

$250 for each $100. That's what you can get with this year's Canada Savings Bonds. Here's how.

The new Bonds have fourteen regular annual interest coupons which can be cashed each year as they come due. The first pays 5.75%; the second, 6.50%; the next three, 6.75% each, and the last nine a big 7.00% each. Total regular annual interest amounts to $95.50 on each $100 Bond.

If you choose you may hold all these regular annual interest coupons uncashed until your Bond matures. If you do, you will then get interest on your interest totalling an additional $54.50 on each $100 Bond.

At maturity, therefore, you can get back total interest of $150 plus your original $100 investment. This way each $100 Canada Savings Bond becomes worth $250. Other denominations can grow at the same exciting rate.

Adults, children, businesses and institutions—all may buy Canada Savings Bonds. They are available in convenient amounts of $50 up to $50,000 for cash or on instalments, wherever you work, bank or invest. And, as always, Canada Savings Bonds are cashable any time at full face value plus earned interest.

Few investments are so profitable. None builds more surely for the future. Buy Canada Savings Bonds and make your savings really grow.

Big Squeeze Not a Part of Torita's Act

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — It wasn't the bumps and grinds that messed up the torso of "Torita" the exotic dancer. It was the coils of her boa.

When she fell to the stage at the El Rancho night club Thursday night in the coils of her pet boa constrictor snake, patrons realized it wasn't part of the act.

To the rescue came muscleman Mickey Hargitay, 41, former husband of the late Jayne Mansfield.

"It took all my strength," puffed the former Mr. Universe after he uncoiled the 12-foot reptile from around Torita, who blamed it all on snakey stage fright.

The dancer, whose real name is Donna Watson, 21, said the snake came to the United States from Colombia 10 days ago, and she had rehearsed her act with the reptile only four times.

Dominoes Top Talent Night

By BERYL PROUDMAN

If all fund-raising projects were as enjoyable as the talent night presented in the McPherson Playhouse Thursday night, in aid of the Children's International Summer Villages, philanthropy would be fun indeed.

The 18 acts previously selected from a large number of contestants were divided into two categories, 16 and over and under 16, and ranged in age from nine to a sprightly 83.

The Dominoes, a singing group (Bill Dyson, Laura and Madeleine Groos), were placed first in the senior group. A relaxed comedian, Kenneth Rasmussen, came second, and the Four-Adoras a ladies' barber-shop quartet, proved a popular third.

In the younger category, John Rigby won first prize with his violin solo, Marion Condrashoff came second for singing a gentle lullaby and a trio, Roseann and Jackie Sly with their cousin Christina Spencer, sang its way into third position.

The Reg Stoker Memorial Award "to be presented to the competitor showing most effort and personality," was given to Louise Whitehead who played an accordion solo.

The show was rounded out by a number of guest artists. Bebe Eversfield's Theatrical Arts Dancers with Roy Silver as their singing soloist, opened both halves of the program.

While the judges, Bebe Eversfield, Helen Simpson-Baikie, Allan Purdy, Harry Hill and John Dunbar, were reaching their decision, Sing-Out Victoria presented a number of songs.

Directed by Jerry Gosley and introduced by Sylvia Hosie and Peter Mannering, Talent Night presented many gifted performers to an enthusiastic audience in an atmosphere of relaxed enjoyment.

ENGAGEMENT of Linda Theresa Hope, daughter of the famous comedian Bob Hope, has been announced. She will wed Robert G. Lande of Augusta, Ga. The bride-to-be is twenty-nine, a graduate of St. Louis University and has done some teaching along with stage work. (AP Wirephoto.)

'Generation' Star To Repeat Role At McPherson

Co-star with Henry Fonda in the Broadway production of Goodhart's play, Generation, Holly Turner is coming to Victoria in a couple of weeks' time, to repeat her role at McPherson Playhouse.

RPA Productions will present Generation to run Nov. 14 through 23. It will replace the previously scheduled Killing of Sister George which is now to be seen in January.

Switch was made necessary as the actress being brought here to play the lead in Sister George will not be available until after the New Year.

Hailed by critics when it opened in 1965 as "a breath of fresh air," Generation is a comedy concerned with—what else—the generation gap.

It is not yet known who will play the Henry Fonda part.

Beatles To Sue Nude Publishers

PARIS (WP) — The Beatles intend to sue the publishers of a poster which shows them standing in a row naked and facing front. The poster, 24 inches by 28 inches, and selling for $4, was shown last week in the window of an art and book shop in the Boulevard St. Germaine.

Four paper hearts—detachable—were affixed by way of fig leaves.

By chance, the poster caught the eye of an executive of the Beatles firm, Apple Records, who was visiting Paris.

He said the Beatles had never posed naked for such a photograph and that the poster had been produced by sticking their heads on to a picture of four standing nudes.

Exhibition Today

CROFTON—Members of the Crofton Art Group will display their work today and Saturday between 2 p.m. and 9 p.m. at the Crofton church hall.

'Measure for Measure' Uvic Theatre Triumph

By AUDREY JOHNSON

If what occurred Thursday night at the Phoenix Theatre is an indication of what we may expect from the University of Victoria theatre division from this point, some of the most exciting theatre in Canada may soon be happening on our doorstep.

Shakespeare's Measure for Measure is one of the less familiar lighter plays of the bard. Ralph Allen's production makes you wonder why.

Under his dynamic and imaginative manipulaton the play is vividly alive, boiling with action, alternately tender, moving, comic and electrifying.

The totality of the production begins with Robert Cothran's magnificently harmonious and flowing set design which works splendidly for the actors.

Every area and level of the design is useable, and used by the director with maximum effectiveness. The twin revolving stages provide exceptional continuity and constant variety.

Alan Granstrom has provided the sense of richness and poverty, of flambeyance and simplicity, of contrast and style in delightfully integrated costume designs.

Harriet Allen as Isabella, the devout, high-minded heroine of almost impossible perfections, achieves the difficult task of presenting her as a warm, passionate and sincere human being.

Clad in the pale grey habit of a novice nun for two-thirds of the play, the small figure, by the power of her belief, the reality of her emotions and a clear, expressive voice, has full authority and impact in every scene that properly belongs to her.

As Angelo, John Krich reaches an artistic height seldom seen here. He confronts us with the believable portrayal of a man, cold, inflexible, ambitious, stricken with a sudden undeniable desire, whipped by conscience ultimatley humbled.

RESONANT VOICES

The splendidly resonant voice of Richard Galuppi and his commanding presence recalled for me as no one else has done, Paul Robeson's Othello. This was a striking performance that had depths of feeling, great power and a lively play of humor.

It is particularly the latter quality, used with subtle skill and restraint, that makes this interpretation of the Duke of Vienna richly human as well as noble.

A sterling performance by Carl Hare as the Provost and an elegant and amusing one by Alan Granstrom in the waspish, dandyish role of Lucio, were two that were outstanding.

There is also a small but moving portrayal by Maria Wozniak and a exuberantly comic and excellent performance by Anthony Jenkins as the disreputable Pompey.

Dr. Allen has given us a play filled with delightful detail, sharp character sketches, brilliant tempo and vivid contrasts.

One problem is the old one speech clarity. Although this is by no means as aggravated as it has been i the the past, it is still present now and then.

E. German Rebels on Trial

BERLIN (AP) — East Germany has launched a series of secret trials of persons who objected to the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia in which East German forces took part, authoritative sources reported today.

The sources said that Horst Bonnet, stage director at the East Berlin Comic Opera, had been sentenced to 2½ years in prison for distributing leaflets protesting the invasion.

They said additional trials might involve 20 or more persons, among them the 16-year-old and 19-year-old sons of scientist Robert Havemann. The father lost his membership in the Communist party and his post at East Berlin's Humboldt University in 1964 for his independent views on how socialism should develop.

Sources in the Czechoslovak embassy in East Berlin say the Aug. 21 Warsaw pact blitz on Prague produced a wave of sympathy and other demonstrations of support by individual East Germans for the cause of liberalism in Czechoslovakia.

Walter Ulbricht, East Germany's Communist leader, was in the forefront of those demanding that the liberalization drive in Czechoslovakia be halted. He feared it would spread to the East German people.

Ulbricht declared that a cultural liberalization such as occurred in Czechoslovakia would not be tolerated in East Germany.

FIRE DESTROYS $45,000 BOAT

VANCOUVER (CP) — An explosion and fire destroyed a $45,000 charter boat Thursday at Bayshore Marina.

Mechanic James Chase, 31, who was working on the Safari Queen when the fire broke out, was in satisfactory condition Thursday night in hospital, with burns to 17 per cent of his body.

French-Canadian 'Treason' Flayed

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — A group calling itself the Maritime Loyalist Association has sent a letter to Gov.-Gen. Michener charging French-Canadians with "treason against the Queen and country."

The letter, sent this week, asks the governor-general to inform the Queen that "there is in Canada a conspiracy against the monarchy."

Elton Killam of Moncton, first vice-president of the association, said today it is composed of people "who don't want to speak French, people that want to be able to go to work without having to speak French."

"That's impossible to do up here in many cases," he said in a telephone interview.

Mr. Killam said the group was formed about eight months ago and has held "several meetings." It expects to meet again next Tuesday night.

Mr. Killam said there were more than a reported 150 members in the association. He said it is "affiliated with an organization out west" and other branches are being organized in the Maritimes.

"It's people who want . . . the BNA Act to stay the way it is," he said. "It's English-speaking people mostly. There's no political affiliation."

The letter to the governor-general is critical of Gen. de Gaulle's part in Canadian affairs and also says association members were "shocked to learn that the Queen was not mentioned in the speech from the throne at the opening of Parliament."

THE CAPITAL REGIONAL DISTRICT HOSPITAL REFERENDUM

"Are you in favour of the Regional Hospital Board borrowing money, without further assent of the owner-electors, at any time or from time to time, within five years from December 1st, 1968, by the issue and sale of debentures bearing interest at a rate or rates per annum as may be specified by the British Columbia Regional Hospital Districts Financing Authority at the time of the borrowing and payable over a period or periods not exceeding twenty-five years from the date or respective dates thereof, in such principal amounts as the Board may from time to time deem necessary to raise net sums not exceeding in the aggregate Nine Million, Three Hundred Thousand Dollars ($9,300,000.00), after payment of expenses connected with the presentation of this question to the owner-electors, and of discount, commission, brokerage, exchange, and other expenses with respect to such issue or sale, for financing hospital projects? The following in brief and general terms sets out the purposes for which the net sums are required.

1. To make grants in aid for planning, land acquisition, establishment, construction, reconstruction, renovations, enlargements, and providing equipment, supplies and working capital for hospitals and hospital facilities within the Capital Regional Hospital District for the following hospital projects:

   (a) Providing accommodation for approximately 600 patients requiring extended hospital care to be established at a number of locations within the District determined jointly by the Board and the Provincial Government.

   (b) Providing immediate and necessary improvements to acute general hospital facilities, including planning and land acquisition."

8 CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our deepest appreciation to all our friends, relatives, and neighbors, for their kindness and sympathy in the loss of our beloved mother, Barbara [illegible]. Sincere thanks to all those who paid tribute by attending the service, for messages of sympathy and donations to the Kiwanis Villa. Our thanks also to Hayward's Funeral Chapel for their very kind help and to Reverend Father Quigley for a beautiful service, to Doctor McElmoyle, Dr. Hunter, Doctor [illegible] and to the nurses and staff of the Royal Jubilee Hospital. — Son, Daughters, and Families.

9 IN MEMORIAM

DAVEY—In loving memory of a kind and loving husband and father and grandfather, William S. Davey (Bill), who passed away Oct. 25th, 1967.
A heart of gold stopped beating,
Hard working hands at rest,
God broke our hearts to prove to us
He only takes the best.
The leaves and flowers may wither,
The golden sun may set,
But the hearts that loved you dearly
Are the ones that won't forget.
—Lovingly remembered by your wife Margaret and family Stephen, Peter, Mary and Family.

ELLIS—In loving memory of Emma, my wife who passed away October 25, 1967.
Softly the leaves of memory fall
Gently we gather them all
Loving her deeply—her memory we keep
While she lies in peaceful sleep.
—I do not you forget you. Husband, Barry.

McDERMOTT—Robert R. In loving memory of a dear husband and father who passed away October 25th, 1965.
There is no parting from those we love,
No distance can divide,
Each day in Memory's Garden,
We still walk side by side.
Wherever life may take me,
Whatever I may do,
The memory of the years we shared,
Will keep me close to you.

ROBERTSON—In loving memory of my dear husband, Wm. Lee Robertson, R.C.D. Battalion 3, who passed away October 25, 1966.
To live in the hearts of those we love is not to die.
—Loving wife, Mary M. Robertson.

STANGE—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Barbara Stange, who passed away October 26, 1965. —Always remembered and sadly missed by all her family.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

The Australians had great faith in Dick's ability to play the dummy, as may be evidenced by North's jump to three spades. They were playing limit raises but in our opinion only a kangaroo would consider jumping with the North hand. True, there were 10 high card points and a doubleton club among his securities but there was no ace and just one king.

West opened the king of clubs and continued with two more leads of the suit. Dick ruffed the third lead with the 10 of spades.

East decided not to over-ruff in the hope that he would collect two trump tricks instead of one. There was nothing wrong with that decision but there was a lot wrong with East's choice of a discard. He let go the seven of hearts instead of a low diamond.

This gave Dick a chance to go all-out for his contract and he made the best of the opportunity by running off four diamond tricks in order to get rid of his losing heart.

After that it was a simple matter for Dick to lead dummy's three of trumps and finesse against East's nine with the seven spot. A spade was then led to dummy's queen and the best East could do was to take his ace of spades and give up.

Dick was lucky indeed. He had to get that misplay by East and had to find East with all four trumps and four diamonds but one test of a good player is his ability to take full advantage of things like that.

Lynda Bird And Baby Doing Well

WASHINGTON (AP) — A squalling, ruddy girl with black hair was born today to Lynda Bird Robb, touching off a round of free cigars handed out by beaming grandfather and father.

The grandfather, President Lyndon B. Johnson, announced the birth to reporters at suburban Bethesda Naval Medical Centre.

The father, marine Capt. Charles S. Robb, was in his tin-roofed office of the 1st Marine Division's supply section in Vietnam.

The 24-year-old mother "seems to be quite normal and relaxed about it all," Johnson said.

The infant — seven pounds eight ounces, 20 inches long — wasn't named.

FIVE, SIX, PICK UP STICKS—Cargo overside is the latest aggravation to plague the Empire Shipping Co. vessel Continental Shipper in recent days. The Shipper, on the last leg of her maiden voyage—Crofton to Japan—had her cargo shift in heavy seas last Saturday. Listing slightly to port, she came to Victoria to adjust her trim. Thursday several longshoremen narrowly escaped injury as a large section of lumber from her starboard side gave way and plunged into the water. When everything is safely restored the vessel will sail again.

Cabinet Vetoed Airfield Survey

OTTAWA (CP) — Informed sources said Thursday the defence department was overruled by the cabinet when it suggested that an engineer be sent to Nigeria to investigate the condition of airfield runways in that country.

They said the department was ordered to fly a Hercules transport plane to Lagos without delay and before any survey of the airfields.

The crew of the Hercules in Lagos has since found that available runways in Nigeria outside the capital are not strong enough to permit landing of the plane for relief flights.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp told the Commons Wednesday the government has asked the Red Cross whether it can supply a lighter plane for relief operations within Nigerian-held territory.

An armed forces Hercules has been at Lagos for 11 days without making a relief flight. A second Hercules is on Ascension Island in mid-Atlantic and a third at Recife, Brazil, awaiting clearance for relief flights from Fernando Poo, an island off the Nigerian coast, into breakaway Biafra.

Sources said the defence department wanted to send a runway engineer to Nigeria to survey airfields there before the Hercules planes were ordered to Africa.

The government was then—and still is—under considerable pressure by the Opposition to get relief flights started.

The Red Cross first asked the government for the loan of a Hercules July 12. Maj.-Gen. Arthur Wrinch, Canadian commissioner of the Red Cross, has said he cannot explain the government's delay in supplying one.

Sharp has said that it was not until early October that Nigeria agreed to Red Cross use of Canadian air force planes for relief flights.

Nigerian officials said Canada could have had Lagos' agreement at least a month earlier if it had been requested.

Guilty Plea Entered In Indecency

DUNCAN — Dentist Neil Dorning of Maple Bay Road, Duncan, appeared in closed court here this morning and pleaded guilty to an act of gross indecency with a female person.

Magistrate Lance Heard remanded Dr. Dorning to Riverview Mental Hospital for examination for a period not exceeding 30 days.

Crown Counsel Jack C. Davie said after the hearing that Dr. Dorning elected trial by magistrate and tendered a plead of guilty.

He was represented by A. I. MacDonald.

Magistrate Heard made his ruling about the remand after hearing medical evidence.

Dr. Dorning will appear for sentence after his examination at Riverview is completed.

Mr. Davie said the reason for the closed hearing was that the name of the female person was disclosed in the information and it was not public policy that the name be disclosed.

Parole System Saves Money

OTTAWA (CP) — A national survey conducted by 20 national parole board offices shows that 1,949 paroled prisoners will earn more than $8,000,000 this year.

"This survey, the first of its kind, demonstrates a substantial financial saving to the communities by granting parole," said Solicitor-General McIlraith in a news release Wednesday.

The report says that if the 1,949 men and women remained in prison, it would have cost the Canadian taxpayer about $9,000,000 yearly plus additional public funds to support their 2,500 dependents.

George Street, the parole board chairman, said the paroled inmates are caring for 2,472 dependents. About 90 per cent of them will complete their parole periods of between two and five years without getting into any further scraps with the law.

The survey took in a total of 2,284 parolees. Most were between the ages of 20 and 30 years and 136 were under 20.

The report said 430 parolees were in the Montreal area and their earnings in June totalled $117,217. There were 330 in Toronto who earned $109,323. Vancouver was next with 274 who earned $98,719.

Minister To Hear Denturists

Social Welfare Minister Dan Campbell today said he will meet with the Public Denturists of B.C. Nov. 18 to discuss their request for the right to serve welfare recipients.

But he said there was no connection between the talk and a current withdrawal by dentists of all but emergency services for welfare patients as a result of a fee dispute with the government.

The minister refused to endorse comments of L. E. Lewis, president of the public denturists, who said the 100 licensed dental mechanics in B.C. could provide denture sets cheaper and better than dentists whom he accused of rendering "second-class" service to welfare patients.

"I don't agree that dentists give second-class service," Mr. Campbell said. "At the moment they're just not giving service but I'm not linking that at all to the Nov. 18 talks which we had scheduled anyway."

Highland Dancer At Olympics

Only Highland dancer performing at the Olympic Games in Mexico City is Angus McKenzie, 23-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McKenzie, 1912 Allenby Street, Victoria.

He was selected from all Canada to accompany the Folk Art Council Dancers.

Mr. McKenzie studied Highland dancing at the Adeline Duncan Dance Studios. He has been dancing for 13 years.

In the past year he has won the Dominion of Canada Championship in Nova Scotia; the Canadian Centennial championship in Toronto; the Western North America championship in Victoria, and open professional classes in Calgary, Regina, Jasper and Saskatoon.

Now living at Edmonton, he teaches 150 dancers at his own school of Highland dancing. In 1969 he will compete in the adult world championship at Braemar, Scotland.

Heart Transplants Planned in Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—Heart transplant operations will be performed soon at Vancouver General Hospital, medical authorities said Thursday, following the first kidney transplant at the hospital.

The first heart transplant could be as soon as two months from now and is almost certain within four months, a spokesman said.

He said a five-man heart team is technically ready now, but is awaiting local production of an anti-rejection serum.

Meanwhile, the condition of kidney recipient Stephen Noha, 43, is "very satisfactory", a hospital spokesman said.

'Dry Day' For Voting Protested

A local hotel operator today objected to the forced closing of beverage rooms on election days.

Lloyd Larson, president of the Victoria Hotel Association, said:

"These kind of laws are outdated. Hotel owners are forced to close every time there is a little election, or when someone resigns."

Meanwhile wages and expenses for the voting day do not change, but earning power does, Mr. Larson said.

Esquimalt voters go to the polls Saturday to elect an alderman to take the position vacated by Gerald Horne, who left to accept a teaching post in Nigeria.

Even if the closing rule were kept in effect only for major elections — federal and provincial — it would help the hotel business, he said.

"Maybe they should take a vote of those going to the polls to see how many of them object to the closing. Not that many even turn out to vote," Mr. Larson said.

Liquor and beer outlets are closed by law in Esquimalt Saturday for the council by-election—but may remain open during referendum voting elsewhere in the capital region.

ROYAL CHICKEN POX

LONDON (UPI) — Viscount Linley, 6, the son of Princess Margaret and Lord Snowdon, has chicken pox and Queen Elizabeth has been exposed to it, a Buckingham Palace source said today.

The source said Queen Elizabeth's planned visit to South America next week would be off if she caught it. But there was no evidence she had.

Duncan Bylaw Boosted

DUNCAN — Chances for success of the $550,000 recreation bylaw in the unorganized territories of Glenora, Cowichan Bay and Koksilah were given a big boost this morning.

The unorganized areas, city of Duncan and the south end of North Cowichan go to the polls Saturday.

The municipal affairs department has officially advised Cowichan Valley Regional District board that it is prepared to advance legislation giving the board power to rebate to owners of farm land the taxes imposed for recreation on land over and above the basic home site.

FARMER BENEFITS

Board secretary Peter Hayward said this means that farmers will only be taxed for recreation on the assessment of their house and one acre.

A farmer with 50 acres would receive rebate on 49 acres at the applical applicable rate for recreation.

Local farmers have been complaining that it would not be equitable for them to pay taxes for recreation on the full assessment of their acreage.

4 Juveniles Face Charges

City police youth detail have charged four juveniles, ages 12 and 13, following investigation of five separate break-ins during the last few days.

The incidents took place at residences on Cook, Linden, Oscar and Richardson streets police said.

In another break-in early Thursday evening $520 was taken from a house on Fifth Avenue police report. The money, in coins and bills, was in an office. Entry was gained by forcing a door, police said.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Purchase of LIVE BUFFALO for ranching purposes in Canada, including the commercial production of buffalo meat and by-products.

Canadian firms or persons resident in Canada who are interested in purchasing live buffalo are invited to submit sealed tenders to be received by the undersigned on or before Monday, November 25, 1968 at 2:00 p.m. Mountain Standard Time.

There are 255 head of buffalo that are surplus to our requirements at the present time. These animals will be offered for sale in blocks. Age and sex of the animals included in each block are as follows:

BLOCK	AGE	FEMALE	MALE	UPSET PRICE PER ANIMAL
1.	Calves	22	3	$100
2.	Calves	22	3	$100
3.	Calves	--	20	$ 75
4.	Calves	--	19	$ 75
5.	1 year	20	3	$150
6.	1 year	--	25	$100
7.	1 year	--	25	$100
8.	2 years	--	13
	1 year	--	10	$100

You may submit a tender on the block or blocks of your choice; however, if you wish to bid on more than one block, a separate tender form and deposit must be submitted for each block.

The buffalo are now being held at Elk Island National Park, Lamont, Alberta, and will be selected by representatives of Her Majesty in right of Canada. They will be inspected, prior to sale, by an officer of the Health of Animals Branch of the Department of Agriculture.

Interested firms and persons may obtain the forms on which tenders must be submitted and the particulars of the terms and conditions of sale from the Regional Director, National and Historic Parks Branch, Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development, Customs Building, Calgary, Alberta.

A tenderer must forward with the tender a deposit of 25 per cent of the offered purchase price in cash or by certified cheque payable to the Receiver General of Canada. No tender will be considered unless it is accompanied by the required deposit. The deposits of unsuccessful tenderers will be returned.

The buffalo herd will be sold only to a resident of Canada, a registered Canadian partnership, or a Company incorporated under the laws of Canada or under the laws of any province.

Tenders will not be considered unless the amount tendered exceeds the upset price of $100 per animal for Blocks 1, 2, 6, 7 and 8; $75 per animal for Blocks 3 and 4; and $150 per animal for Block 5. Each tender must be in a sealed envelope marked on the outside, "Tender for the purchase of Live Buffalo" with the block number indicated and addressed to the undersigned. Preference will be given to firms or persons who undertake to establish a buffalo ranching operation in Canada.

The highest tender or any tender will not necessarily be accepted.

Leg Injury Posed Idea For Query

A bad bruise on her leg provided Sandra Wagner, 10, of 1382 Hillside, with a question which won her a set of World Book Encyclopedia today.

Sandra last summer suffered the injury and wondered why the injury turned purplish-blue.

She decided to Ask Andy and to her surprise the question won her the major prize.

She has, of course, submitted many other questions over the past year as she is a regular reader of the Ask Andy column.

She is a grade five pupil at Oaklands School. Her favorite subjects are language and spelling.

She is also a member of the Sixth Brownie Pack.

"These books will come in useful for my school work," she said. "I'm thankful."

Sandra has two younger brothers and a sister. She plans to share the books with them when they grow older.

•

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Sandra Wagner, age 9, of Victoria, for her question:

What causes a bruise?

A hit on your hard, bony head or some other part of your body may raise a nasty bump. When the bump goes down, you can see a blotchy-blue bruise. The spot may be sore, especially if you poke it or bump it again. So treat your bruise with tender care by leaving it strictly alone. Day by day the blue blotch changes to a sickly yellowish-green color and finally it fades away. Your bruised patch returns to its usual skin color. The bruise was caused by an injury to your body and your body has done a lot of patient work to heal it.

When you take a tumble, you may bash a knee or an arm on the ground. When you crash into a table or drop a rock on your foot, you bash other parts of your body. These bashes may not be hard enoughto break the skin.

This is what causes a bruise. Lots of tiny cells in the soft flesh are damaged and lots of tiny blood vessels are broken. Thin trickles of blood ooze out among the cells. The bruised spot swells up and turns red. Tiny nerves are also injured and they make the spot sore. The body gets busy and starts to repair the damage at once. Soothing liquids flow to the trouble spot, carrying the body's homemade healing chemicals. These medicines heal the small broken blood vessels. This is important because the blood stream must circulate back to the lungs again and again. There the blood gets the fresh supplies of oxygen that keep it rosy red. The body has miles and miles of blood vessels, large and small.

Mends Bruise

The tiny blood vessels broken by the bruise are soon mended. But the blood that trickled from them is left outside among the cells of the flesh. It cannot circulate back to the lungs for fresh oxygen. So it turns darker and darker and finally adds a purplish-blue color to the bruised area. The busy body does not just leave it there. The blood separates into tiny fragments and bit by bit, flowing liquids carry them away. The bruise turns paler and paler.

A small bruise will heal itself in a week or so. But naturally you want to help your body to do its healing. Certainly you do not want to hinder and delay things. If you poke or bang the bruise again, the body must start its work all over and the healing takes longer. Perhaps it is wisest to cover the purple patch with a softly padded bandage. If the bash that caused the bruise was fierce enough to break the skin, you treat it with germ-killing medicine and cover the wound with a friendly bandage.

Planting New Lily Bed

By HILDA BEASTALL

Three or four years after putting in a bed of lily-of-the-valley it may be noticed that the dainty white bells of delicious fragrance have been almost absent in May. This situation exists when plants are crowded closely and insufficient food is available to all.

Hilda

The time comes when only those on the outer edges adjacent to new soil will produce blooms, and by the time leaves are beginning to brown-off we can think of remaking the bed.

Usually this is around the first of November. At present, the leaves are bright yellow, and have not yet completed their work of feeding the roots.

When digging lily-of-the-valley plants (botanically Convallaria majalis), one's first reaction is "couch grass"!

We find the same long white running roots, with small tufts of hair roots at intervals, and sharply pointed growth buds, known as pips on valley.

Since these plants bloom during the warm days of late May and do all their growing during summer, they like a moist humus-laden soil, in dappled sunlight if possible.

Dig over the chosen site, add some well-rotted cow manure to the bottom layer, and bonemeal in the upper layer.

Leafmould and compost will have to substitute for manure if none is readily available.

The fattest pips will give the best flowers, but if none are really plump, all will have to be planted back. Have the running white roots an inch or so below finished soil level.

Don't be too disappointed if no flowers show next spring, for subsequent years will repay your efforts handsomely and fragrantly.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Young Fur Traders Impressed King

By BOB BOWMAN

The Hudson's Bay Company will celebrate its 300th anniversary on May 2, 1970, because it received its charter on that day in 1670. However, October 25 is another important date in the annals of the company because it was on that day in 1666 that Pierre Radisson and Medard Chouart des Groseilliers met King Charles II at Oxford, England.

Radisson and Groseilliers were brothers-in-law and fur traders who covered Canada from Quebec to Hudson Bay and Lake Superior. They were fined for some infraction of the law and decided to work for England, if possible.

They were fortunate enough to meet Sir George Carteret (sometimes described as a pirate although he was a high official in the Admiralty) who took them to England to meet King Charles. They arrived at the time of the Great Plague when carts were going through the streets of London at night, their drivers shouting "bring out your dead." King Charles had evacuated to Oxford.

He listened to Radisson and Groseilliers fur-trading stories and brought in his cousin, Prince Rupert, a dashing figure who resembled today's Prince Philip. King Charles and Prince Rupert couldn't pronounce the names "Radisson and Groseilliers" so they called them "Radishes and Gooseberry" but they were impressed enough to finance an expedition to Hudson Bay.

Radisson's ship was damaged in a storm and had to return, but Groseilliers went ahead, and returned with a valuable cargo of furs. A replica of his ship "Nonsuch" will be a feature of the Hudson's Bay Company 300th anniversary.

The result of the expedition was the formation of the "Merchant Aventurers of England trading into Hudson's Bay" and a large part of what is now Canada was known as Rupert's Land until 1870.

Other events on October 25:

1768—Port La Joie was renamed Charlottetown.

1780—Governor Haldimand protested to Britain that Canadian laws favored the merchants not the inhabitants.

1798—St. Croix River was made part of boundary between New Brunswick and Maine.

1913—Calgary Stock Exchange was opened.

1918—Canadian Pacific steamer "Sophia" sank after leaving Alaska with 343 lives lost.

1920—Prohibition received large majorities in plebiscites in Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, and Nova Scotia.

1939—Duplessis government was defeated by Liberals in Quebec but returned to power in 1944.

Junior Racers To Get Awards

The Capital City Racing Pigeon Club will hold a juniors banquet in the Jubilee Hall in Esquimalt today at 6:30 p.m.

Juniors in the club are generally students in their teens who do not hold full-time jobs.

About eight trophies and numerous certificates will be presented to winners of various competitions by Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis.

Between May and September birds were raced almost every weekend, sometimes from as far away as Jasper, Alberta.

YOUR HEALTH

New Hope For Cancer Sufferer

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

I just read an article by Dr. C. C. Wang of Harvard Medical School that gave some hopeful news. As Dr. Wang says, in recent years, with the tremendous increase in power of available machines, the strength of X-rays has gone up from 200,000 volts to 20 million volts. With this has been an ability to spare the skin from becoming inflamed. The narrow beam of the rays can be thrown into a tumor through several areas of skin, and this helps greatly. Also, bones can now be spared from injury. As a result, tumors that formerly did not respond to treatment now do.

Alvarez

In a study of a large series of patients treated at the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, a five-year survival rate, usually considered a cure, was obtained in 57 per cent. Usually in these cases, the tumor had previously been removed by a surgeon, and this helped much. Usually all of a tumor could have been removed surgically in from 75 to 90 per cent of the patients if they had only come in earlier.

* * *

What Dr. Wang just reported was an apparent cure with radiation of seven patients who had inoperable or recurrent cancers of the lower large bowel. They have now survived from four to 15 years, which means a cure. This is a great achievement.

The rays being used now are produced perhaps from a cobalt bomb, by which is meant a metal container with radioactive cobalt in it. These rays are very powerful—about 7,000,000 volts. Then there are very powerful X-ray machines—linear accelerators; and also betatrons, which can produce rays with power up to many million volts.

Many people today fear X-ray treatment perhaps because 50 years ago their mother, while being treated with X-rays for cancer, had her skin burned. But in those days the dose of rays had to be big, and exposure was large, while today, because of the great power of the rays, it is small and short.

* * *

For some time I have read of research workers who in users of LSD have found defects in the chromosomes (those 46 microscopic rods that make us human being what we are). Now I find in the Journal of the American Medical Association the report of a 19-year-old college freshman who had been taking LSD for a year. He has an acute leukemia due perhaps to the damage that came to one of his chromosomes. Naturally, one case doesn't prove anything, but this fits in with other studies which have made experts fearful that the taking of LSD might produce cancer or a cancer-like disease, such as the leukemia.

If I were young, I would not dare use LSD. Certainly, a girl in the first or second month of pregnancy must not take LSD, it could damage her baby.

* * *

I have seen people with perhaps a painful rheumatoid arthritis who were so delighted with the relief from pain that they got with the drug that they wanted to keep taking the medicine for the next several years.

I have heard of some people who could keep taking corticosteroids (like cortisone, but synthetically made) for years, but others could not do it comfortably; some got a round hairy face; some got diabetes; some got a stomach ulcer; some got a fare-up of an old tuberculosis or a hypertension (high blood pressure), or a nervous breakdown.

Weather Hits Wheat Harvest

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Prairie wheat farmers are in an odds-against race to harvest their crops before the snow flies.

Farmers moved back to the fields this week following a break in the cold, damp weather that had delayed harvesting for as much as six weeks.

And with many farmers facing the worst outlook in 17 years, the chances are a large amount of wheat will stay in the fields through the winter.

A Canadian Press survey Thursday showed that harvesting of a wheat crop estimated at 627,300,000 bushels is slightly more than half complete.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics said the 1968 crop estimate compares with 592,300,000 bushels last year.

SOME HAVE A CHANCE

Long-range forecasts indicate a few days of mild weather for some areas will give farmers a last chance, and in a few cases the only chance, to harvest their crops.

Harry Strom, Alberta Municipal Affairs Minister, said many farmers are facing a serious outlook—for some the worst since 1951.

Mr. Strom, who operates a farm in southeastern Alberta, said the provincial harvesting average ranges from 35 to 40 per cent complete. Prospects in many areas, particularly west-central Alberta, are "really tough."

Two major problems facing Prairie farmers is dampness and lack of space in terminal elevators.

Damp wheat spoils quickly lowering grades and farmer returns. But in the rush to complete harvesting, many farmers are ignoring dampness and hoping the wheat can be kept marketable.

Said H. A. Craig of the Manitoba agriculture department: "Everything is against us."

PROGRESS IS POOR

In the Red River Valley area, harvesting progress ranges from nil to 25 per cent complete.

A spokesman for Manitoba pool elevators said if snow comes, "we'll just have to wait until next spring to combine."

A Saskatchewan agriculture department spokesman said the province's wheat crop is about 64 per cent harvested.

The Canadian wheat board gives priority to shipment of damp grain, but this year the pressure has exceeded the ability of elevators to handle it.

Grain drying equipment is working at capacity. Few farmers own the expensive drying equipment because it is needed about once in five or six years.

JUST AN EXPLANATION

One-Sided Look At Sewage Problem

By ELIZABETH FORBES

I do not agree that a one-sided discussion by a panel of experts obviously in accord decides a controversial question.

No matter how expert the panel may be, such a discussion is frustrating to the audience and tends to build up a feeling that the conclusion is really not debatable. Rather it is all wrapped up and ready for delivery.

Forbes

I'm talking of the session Saturday in McPherson Theatre when a panel of experts in sanitation, medicine and engineering swamped a small audience in a sea of words, battered ideas that in any way disagreed with their thinking, and verbally tore into shreds briefs that had taken days and weeks to prepare.

These panelists were in favor of long marine outfalls as a solution to our sewage disposal problems. They believed that with outfalls of sufficient length, raw sewage would never come back to the beaches.

Their arguments were convincing and their facts well documented.

However, if this was a public forum as announced (and not merely an explanation of a report) then those who attended were entitled to some form of rebuttal by equally as knowledgeable persons in the fields of ecology, geology, hydrology and oceanography.

* * *

During the day briefs were accepted suggesting that other methods of sewage disposal (particularly sewage treatment plants) be considered. Some of those briefs had been submitted weeks ago which made it exceptionally easy for the panel to shoot them down. Others came from the floor. They too received short shrift.

Perhaps the facts submitted by the panel are correct. Perhaps as was claimed, sewage on beaches and in the sea is not a serious factor in spreading disease and there is little danger to health in bathing in sewage-contaminated water (Ugh!).

Perhaps long marine outfalls would prevent return of the filth.

At the same time there are expert opinions that do not agree. They should have been heard.

* * *

Beside me as I write is a small booklet printed by the federal department of energy mines and resources, titled Everybody's War.

It points out that domestic sewage—principally garbage and human wastes—is the oldest source of man-made pollution.

This sewage swarms with bacteria and other micro-organisms, some of them harmful and even deadly.

In certain communities sewage received only primary treatment, which removes some of the solid by screening or settling before it is released for any type of disposal, at sea or on the land.

* * *

In the face of much opposition, provincial Health Minister Ralph Loffmark is standing firm on his statement that some form of sewage disposal plant is a must where any new sewage plan is considered.

Perhaps so. But if we face up to the fact that we still have much to learn about pollution, it seems to me that sewage disposal plants make equally as much sense as long marine outfalls.

Where the health of a people is concerned—not only today, but tomorrow and the next day it would be much better to play it safe and combine the two ways of disposal. Even if it does cost more.

Before the Magistrate

A 20-year-old youth who pleaded guilty Thursday to stealing money collected for the United Appeal will be sentenced Oct. 31.

Police said Bruce Patterson, 1083 Nicholson, took $18 from an envelope in an office at the Dockyard, CFB Esquimalt. He was an employee there at the time, court was told.

Court heard he told police it was a stupid thing to do and that he wished to be detained because he believed he needed psychiatric treatment.

Magistrate William Ostler said it was not only stupid but utterly contemptible to steal money collected for charitable purposes.

A pre-sentence and psychiatric report will be prepared.

Darryl McDougall, Work Point Barracks, was fined $250 after he pleaded guilty to dangerous driving.

Court was told his car went out of control on Rose Street May 20, hit a stone wall and spun into a light standard. The car, valued at $1,700, was destroyed and the light standard was sheared off its four bolts, police said.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Industrials Turn Mixed

Industrial list was mixed in trading today on the Toronto stock exchange while western oils and base metals were firm.

There was activity in B-A Oil after the company announced plans to split the stock 2 for 1, to raise the dividend rate and to amalgamate with two subsidiaries, Royalite Oil Co. and Shawinigan Chemicals Ltd.

Wall Street was higher.

AT TORONTO, in industrials, Great West Life gained 3½ to 70½, Dylex Diversified 3 to 48½, Peel Elder 2⅝ to 49⅝ and Seaway Hotels 1½ to 26½. Bow Valley fell 1⅞ to 23½ and Canada Bread 1¼ to 16⅞.

Bankeno was up $1.05 to $6.05, Patino ⅞ to 38⅝ and Teck Corp. 50 cents to $5.70. Granisle Copper lost ⅜ to 12⅞.

Charter Oil rose ⅝ to 17⅞, Asamera 20 cents to $7.65 and Steamship Lines ½ to 33¼, Consolidated Bathurst ½ to 17¼ and CPR ⅜ to 71½.

AT LONDON the stock market today ended a week of receding prices on a distinctly dull note. Prices moved lower on a broad front.

Gilt-edged issues held up for a while, but on news of a higher British treasury bill rate, prices drifted lower.

Losses in equities were fairly widespread, but they rarely exceeded a shilling.

Dollar stocks were generally irregular, with Canadian issues making the best showing, among them B-A Oil, Massey-Ferguson and Trans-Canada Pipe Lines.

AT VANCOUVER Copper Ridge was the feature in pre-noon trading today, putting on .21 to $1.24 on 174,000 shares.

Another heavy trader was Calico, which gained .06 to .84 on 316,000 shares. Magnum was up .05 at $3.90 on 154,000 shares and Western Mines was .04 better at $2.90.

Ace, however, was off .12 at .60 and Silver Arrow lost .05 to .40.

In the industrials, EDP gained $1 to $23 and Fields improved .75 to $18.

Bata was the leading trader in the oils, losing .12 to $2.65 on 25,200 shares.

AT NEW YORK early softness in blue chips was gradually overcome as selective buying, buoyed by new hopes that during the weekend some positive peace news might develop, got under way.

Phelps Dodge, whose shareholders approved a two-for-one stock split, advanced about 2½. The company also raised its dividend. Bristol Myers, down 1½, paced the list on volume.

Gulf and Western and Sinclair were each off fractions, following word that Sinclair's board had decided a possible tender from G and W would not be in the best interests of Sinclair.

AT MONTREAL the market continued to lose ground in moderately active trading today. Mines and oils led the decline.

Denison fell 1½ to 73½, Union 1 to 50, Hudson Bay Mining ¾ to 72¼ and Imperial ⅛ to 73. B-A added ⅞ at 47⅞.

Home Oil issues strengthened as the company's A stock climbed 1¼ to 31⅝ and B went up ⅜ to the same value.

Wajax dropped 1 to 28, Calgary Power ⅛ to 25⅝, Canada

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Curtailed trading on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today slackened more toward the close on a trend toward lower price levels.

Buying interest in rapeseed and flax was on the dips. There was small exporter buying in flax and some U.S. commission house interest in rapeseed.

There were only a few trades by domestic shippers in oats and a little milder buying in barley. Rye was limited mostly to inter-month spreading.

Lakehead prices for Class Two, IWA and domestic wheat all were unchanged.

CHICAGO (AP)—A renewal of some trade feelings that the U.S. government might make a Vietnam peace development announcement this weekend tended to influence active buying of soybeans and grain futures on the board of trade today.

Trade moved at a good pace.

Brycon Ex. Ltd.

Ore stockpiling has been underway for a month on Brycon Explorations Ltd. property on the Hyland River as the company projects a 2,000-ton daily operation.

President Steve Sersli said placer mining had been producing a ton of concentrate from each 400 tons of ore and arrangements are being made for treating and refining concentrates in Vancouver starting in the spring.

Assays place the value of gold, silver, platinum and tin at more than $800 per ton of concentrate.

Mine, Wood Industries Blast Govt.

VERNON (CP) — The British Columbia government came under fire Thursday from the mining and forest industries at a conference on the economic outlook for south-central B.C.

R. M. Porter, manager of Cominco Ltd. operations at Kimberley, said the mining industry does not enjoy a climate which would encourage investors to put up "huge amounts of capital."

And Horace Simpson, manager of a sawmill division of Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd., criticized government requirements that the forest industry cut and use more small trees.

Mr. Porter complained: "We are paying taxes on our machinery . . . The provincial government this year passed legislation discriminating against the mining industry, amounting to a 50 per cent increase in the resources tax."

"HARMFUL CHANGES"

He said there also had been "harmful changes" in depreciation allowances and mining exploration had been discouraged. In addition, "we are also paying the highest mine wages on the whole continent."

Mr. Simpson said the forest industry is caught in a squeeze between government orders to cut small wood and the problem of marketing the lumber that is produced from small trees.

"How can you saw a two-by-12 beam out of a six-inch tree? What can we do if the chief market demand is for large-sized lumber and we must cut and mill mostly small trees?"

Mayor Doug Stewart of Penticton expressed concern over the effects of future industrialization on the Okanagan region's tourist industry. "Decisions have to be made to establish priorities."

John Buckley, assistant executive director of the B.C. department of travel industry, suggested to delegates that the tourist industry be given priority in the Okanagan.

Sales, Earnings By GM Increase

NEW YORK (AP) — A 14-per-cent increase in sales and higher earnings in the third quarter ended Sept. 30 have been reported by General Motors Corp.

Chairman James M. Roche and president Edward N. Cole said sales in the period were $4,300,000,000 compared with $3,800,000,000 in the 1967 third quarter.

Net income in the period amounted to $182,000,000, or 62 cents a share, compared with $149,000,000, or 51 cents a share, in third quarter 1967.

Victoria Daily Times
VICTORIA B.C., FRIDAY, OCT. 25, 1968—PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

A matter of extraordinary importance to our district is coming up on Saturday, and if you are a property-owner I urge you not to let it go unheeded. This is the referendum which, if passed, will prepare the way for the first phase of the hospital plan.

The load on our hospitals, as they stand now, is terrific. If you wish a graphic example of their situation, try pouring a quart of water into a pint bottle.

This phase will provide about 600 beds for "extended care" patients, thereby taking some of the strain off our "acute care" hospitals. That's why I am making an earnest pitch for your "Yes" vote in a referendum that calls for a 60-per-cent majority if it is to pass.

On Thursday, the Times published a list of polling stations . . . you will find them on Page 25 of that day's paper. If you believe, as I do, that we should make a start on a job which concerns us all, I hope you will turn out whatever the weather.

★

A Royal Jobilee Hospital official defines acute care as the sort that calls for a general hospital's facilities: X-ray, surgery, lab tests and the like.

Extended care is for the patient who no longer rates acute care, but who still requires nursing service round the clock by registered nurses, and continuing medical supervision.

In theory, the patient who has progressed into that category may be moved elsewhere, thus freeing a bed for the next person who has contracted pneumonia, let us suppose, or who is host to a rampaging appendix.

But what do you do with the extended care case if you've no place to send him?

What our general hospitals are doing is sending him home if he's up to it, and has a home in which he can be tended. Otherwise he stays in one of our general hospitals, and by a daily miracle, bed-space is shoehorned for the next acute care patient in the unending string.

(If you aren't an "acute," but could use a spot of surgery, you join the long, long waiting list.)

Today, we have three institutions that take extended care patients. All are working to capacity.

One is our excellent DVA hospital, for veterans only.

The other two are Mt. St. Mary's and St. Mary's Priory, Colwood.

A highly-placed medical man described the work of their staffs as "magnificent" — a word his tight-mouthed clan uses sparingly. But they work in buildings the use of which is only justified by present shortage.

★

We have the luck—both good and bad—to live in a unique Canadian city.

When I first came to Greater Victoria as a resident in the early 'fifties, I found a town and countryside committed more to its past than its present. Some of its public officials were determinedly old-fashioned, others downright pastoral in their approach.

Such attitudes didn't encourage needful change, and if a tragedy exists here, it is that this region refused to meet the demands imposed by a growth-rate nothing less than spectacular.

This with a population explosion that year by year continued to snowball.

True, we responded with some building, some improvement of our notoriously shaky public services. But the story here has been too little and too late, and we are now faced with major needs.

One of these is a program of hospital construction that can be delayed further only at our peril. I can only hope that a provincial government even more tardy in foreseeing and acting upon the need stands prepared to pay its just share of the cost.

I don't think we have time to waste jangling and hairsplitting over imperatively-needed hospital construction.

The referendum that will permit a start comes to the vote tomorrow. Even if you're healthy today, vote it through.

$2-3 Million Barge Job For Yarrows

By PAUL MUSGROVE

A 400-foot barge—largest ever to be built on the west coast—will be built by Yarrows, Ltd., here.

The contract has a value estimated between $2 million and $3 million. It comes in the wake of pyramiding lay-offs and indicates a busy work schedule until completion in May.

Owner is Rivtow Marine of Vancouver. Rivtow president Cecil Cosulich said he expects the contract to be signed in a week or 10 days.

"It will take some time to work out details of the contract," he said.

Mr. Cosulich said a letter of intent will be sent to Yarrows Monday.

The barge, the biggest ever built on the west coast, will carry two cranes and will be used to haul logs from the Kitimat area to Vancouver Island.

"We have a 10-year contract with MacMillan Bloedel," Mr. Cosulich said.

From the outset, the contract for the barge depended on the deal between MacMillan Rivtow.

10 BIDS

Mr. Cosulich said once the barge order had been decided upon, the tenders were opened to international bidding.

"We had about 10 bids, from across the country as well as England and Ireland.

"I certainly admired the way Yarrows fought for the job."

John Wallace, general manager of Yarrows, said the contract is not signed yet and refused to comment.

Neil Hindle, business agent for the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, said today 16 union members were laid off work at Yarrows on Thursday.

Fourteen more were laid off today, bringing the total to 30.

Mr. Hindle suggested up to 200 men might find work on a barge of the size indicated by Rivtow, but termed the contract a "false hope," for future prosperity in shipbuilding.

Ratepayers Oppose Park Slice

The Elk Lake and Saanich Ratepayers Association opposes use of any dedicated parkland for widening Patricia Bay Highway, its president said today.

John Blinko said the idea in dedicating Elk-Beaver Lake as a park when the regional district bought it from the city of Victoria, was that it would be for all people for all time.

"We feel no one should cut into the park and the highway widening should cut into the other side of the road," he said.

Similar thoughts have come from the Capital Region Planning Board, which is seeking an appointment with Highways Minister Wesley Black so a delegation can be heard.

SECOND LOOK

The board, in a resolution, has asked the highways department to take a further look at the Elk-Beaver Lake section of the highway to institute the proposed freeway route to the east along the ridge.

Mr. Blinko said his association has taken no stand on the ridge route suggestion but simply does not want any road widening to slice into parkland.

The association believed the area should be used for people who want sports.

"We favor a golf course, for example. We want people to be able to use the park, rather than just sit there."

Architects Shun Blanshard St. Renewal Plan

'Won't Delay Us' Says City Manager

By JIM HUME

Architects in British Columbia have locked on a collision course with the provincial government on the matter of low-rental housing design.

The battle lines were drawn when the Architectural Institute of British Columbia informed all members that under no circumstances were they to become involved in low-rental housing scheme designs in Victoria and Burnaby.

In a confidential letter to every registered architect in the province, the Institute has warned that any architect working on design for contractors bidding on the jobs under the "call-for-proposal" system, instituted by the province, would be liable to reprimand and suspension from the Institute.

The battle between the architects and the provincial government has been brewing for more than two years.

Provincial authorities claim that the call-for-proposals from contractors can result in savings of up to 20 per cent on total costs.

Architects say such thinking is naive.

Cause of the division lies in the shaving of architectural responsibility under the call-for-proposal system.

Where an architect designs a project for an owner, he then becomes the owner's representative to make sure the contractor meets specifications as the job progresses.

Under the call-for-proposals system the contractor hires the architect and controls both design and specifications.

Architects claim that being an employee of the contractor rather than the owner, they lost control of the project and the door is left open for cost savings which could be detrimental to the owner of the building under construction.

In July, 1967, local architect John Di Castri summed up the difference this way: "In a situation of this kind the architect must take instructions from the contractor.

Wheaton to Submit Proposal

"The contractor is engaged in a field which is highly competitive on a price basis and therefore, if his ideas for a scheme have already been crystallized from the point of view of economics, then the architect will have to comply with those ideas even though they may not be the best solution. After all the contractor is paying the architect's fee."

Local contractor George Wheaton, interviewed from Harrison Hot Springs this morning, disagrees.

"There are certain projects which just can't be let under a call-for-proposals," he said. "But a low rental housing porject isn't one of them.

"When the call for proposals on the 180 housing units for the Rose-Blanshard scheme is made my firm will be submitting a proposal.

"I think that we, and other firms in this province, are quite capable of doing that.

"If you have a very complex building or project then I think you need an architect in on the ground floor. But, after all, basically all you are doing in the Rose-Blanshard is designing one small house and repeating it 180 times.

"There can be quite a saving in costs when the design and costing team work together on a project like that."

City manager Dennis Young said he regretted to see the fight between the architects and the provincial government flare into the open over the Rose-Blanshard proposals.

"It has been coming for some time," he said. "But it seems unfortunate that a desperately needed low-rental housing scheme should be the issue they make a stand on."

He was hopeful that provincial and architectural authorities would be able to get together and iron out their differences.

Mr. Young said that while the Architectural Institute's stand was unfortunate at this time the threat of suspension from the institute would not delay construction of the 180 housing units once porposals were called.

"I think there are enough contractors around with design teams to get the project under way once the federal government authorizes the call for proposals," he said.

FATHER OF 7 KILLED BY TRACTOR

Ronald Reeves, 44, was crushed to death at Fulford Harbor Thursday when a tractor he was using to pull a truck in heavy mud overturned.

Reeves, father of seven children, was working on the dairy farm of Roger Hughes.

An inquest was ordered by Salt Spring Island coroner M. F. Pieler.

Advance Polls Indicating Light Turnout

The first day of advance polling for the $9.3 million hospital referendum indicates a light turnout when the final decision is made Saturday.

Only 55 votes were cast throughout the region Thursday at advance polling stations scattered from Sooke to the Gulf Islands.

Of that total 35 were cast in the Greater Victoria area with Victoria accepting 11 advance votes, Oak Bay and Saanich 12 votes each.

Property owners only are allowed to vote today and Saturday on the decision to spend more than $9 million to build 600 extended care beds and provide funds for construction and equipment for existing hospitals.

48 STATIONS

Some 48 polling stations will open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday to record the vote. A 60-per-cent majority of the votes cast is required for the referendum to pass.

On Thursday Dr. A. C. Pickles, Royal Jubilee Hospital medical director told the Victoria Rotary Club a "no" vote would produce a "disaster situation."

Similar warnings have been issued by municipal leaders throughout the area who state the 600 extended care beds are essential if the critical bed shortage is to be relieved.

No decision has yet been made by the regional hospital district as to where the new extended care hospitals should be built but it has been recommended that four new hospitals or existing hospital extensions be built each comprised of a 150-bed unit.

HOLD-UP TERM: 5 YEARS

A 22-year-old Toronto man today was sentenced to five years in the B.C. penitentiary for the armed robbery of Ernie's Fine Foods, 1616 Hillside, on May 11.

Peter Simpson was also sentenced to 2½ years for theft of a car which was used in the robbery. The sentences will run concurrently.

Half an hour after the hold-up, while being chased by police, the car smashed into a tree at View Royal. Simpson, who was driving, suffered a broken foot and head injuries. His companions — Robert Rickward, 20, and Roger McEwan, 22 — died soon after.

In Victoria Assize Court, Simpson asked to be sent to a provincial jail because, he said, it is "very hard" for a man who has been in the federal penitentiary to get employment.

He admitted to previous convictions for breaking and entering and theft in Ontario over the past three years, and said:

"I've had enough. I don't want no more. I want to learn a trade. But, when you go for a job, an employer won't take you if you have been in the penitentiary."

Ask The Times

Q. Can you tell me if you can raise worms for fishing and how to raise them?—M.M.

A. Ideal conditions are rich compost and dampness. Worms can be fed almost any sort of vegetable waste, leaf mold or organic garbage. Tea leaves have been recommended as a diet delicacy. A recommended method of keeping the pile damp—not wet—is to spread an old gunny sack over it and keep that moist at all times. Worms breed year around, though cold weather or dryness might cause them to become dormant.

B.C. PLANS TREE-SPRAYING HERE

U.S. Bans Diseased Trees

By HUMPHRY DAVY

An outbreak of a pear tree disease here has resulted in a ban by the United States on entry of any Canadian junipers.

And a provincial government tree-spraying program has been scheduled for this area.

This is the only known place the infection is known to occur in Canada at present.

Juniper is the alternate host for pear-trellis-rust as the disease is known. It moves back and forth in air-borne spores from pear tree to shrub.

* * *

Roy P. Messum, federal plant protection officer, said the disease will have to be eradicated from the Greater Victoria area to prevent it from spreading to commercial orchards on the mainland.

"It's got to be done," he said. "We hope all residents will co-operate."

A spray program will be launched by the plant protection branch next spring, at no cost to home owners, he said.

Thousands of junipers are used for landscaping homes in the Greater Victoria area, as well as hundreds of pear trees scattered in private gardens.

Mr. Messum said juniper shrubs are shipped to the United States as ornamentals but their entry has been prohibited until the disease is eradicated.

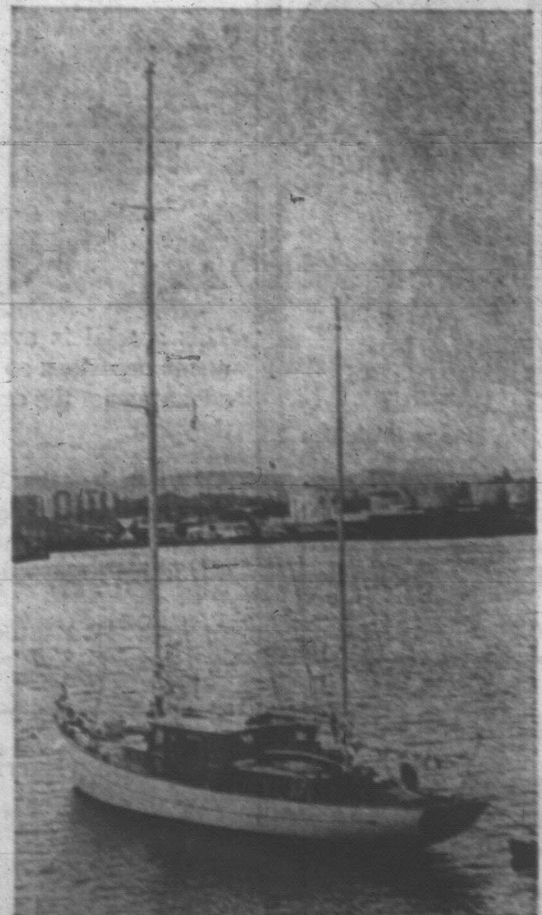
The U.S. ban applies to all Canada.

* * *

The disease damages leaves, thus reducing pear crops.

It can be identified by bright orange spots on the leaves of

It can be controlled by spraying trees with a fungicide called Acti-dione, but Mr. Messum warned gardeners not to use the spray if the tree is in fruit.



LYING QUIETLY in the snug security of the Inner Harbor is Seattle-registered ketch Navita, which was temporarily disabled and driven 100 miles offshore by a Cape Flattery gale earlier this week.

Second Student Rebel Speaks at University

The second student activist to speak at Uvic in less than a week will appear Monday at the Student Union Building.

Mark Rudd, leader of the revolt last year at New York's Columbia University and head of Students for a Democratic Society, has been invited by the Uvic political forum.

He follows by six days Yippie leader Jerry Rubin, who was also invited by the forum.

Rudd is one of the leading advocates in the United States of a student takeover of university campuses. He will address students at 12:30.

The forum has also invited Dr. Alexander Von Hause, sent by the West German government, to speak on England, France and the Common Market at 12:30 Tuesday.

Mother's Concern Proves Telepathic

By JOHN MIKA

Green seas smashing over a sailboat wallowing helplessly in a southeast gale off Cape Flattery can activate mother love 200 miles away.

At least it did last Sunday when Mrs. E. F. Ambery, 207 St. Patrick, filled with frantic foreboding for her son's safety. She telephoned the puzzled U.S. Coast Guard station at Neah Bay about her feeling of dread.

A few hours later the USCG station got another call from the opposite direction — a Mayday distress radio signal from the 63-foot Seattle ketch "Navita" being pounded by wind-whipped waves of up to 25 feet, its rails ripped and engine out of action.

"It was just ESP (extra-sensory perception) I guess but my mom just knew I was in trouble," 20-year-old Peter Ambery told The Times this morning.

"She just knew it so strongly that she phoned the Neah Bay station to ask them to look for us and even phoned a friend she knows who owns a plane to come back from Italy to help the search."

●

Her foreboding at the time was more than shared by Peter.

"I've done a lot of sailing but this was the first time I really thought I was going to die," he said.

Small wonder, when the same storm sent the 600-foot tramp freighter Continental Shipper running for Victoria after seas buckled a section of railing and shifted a deck-load of timber so that she listed a full degree to port.

Peter has taken a year off for adventure and travel after completing his second year of an economics and arts course at the University of Victoria.

He heard about the berth available on Navita—owned by San Francisco Dr. James Watt who was heading for Mexico—Saturday night and on Sunday morning he was aboard as she made her departure from Sidney.

"I knew that Cape Flattery was a challenge at this time of year, but I guess we bit off more than we could chew—although we would have been all right if water hadn't got into the fuel to put our engine out of action," he said.

The storm hit that night and for the next 50 hours there was no sleep, no meals and no relief from the sea sickness and fear caused by the ocean's fury as it progressively split sails, stopped the engine and ignored the last-resort sea anchor streamed from the bow.

●

The worst moment came as the radio set was smashed during a particularly violent lurch, cutting off the last link between the four humans, one dog and four cats aboard from USCG planes and cutters searching for them — miles from the wrong area as it turned out because the Mayday call had underestimated how far offshore Navita had been driven.

The roller-coaster ride ended Tuesday as the wind died out, a small sail was rigged and brought them within sight of a searching plane and, after a tow to Neah Bay, Navita returned to the Inner Harbor under its own power.

After catching up lost sleep and stability in the stable sanctuary of his own home, Peter suddenly interrupted the description of his ordeal with: "You know, now that I think of it, it was a tremendous experience, the whole thing, really something to remember.

"It was the most wonderful thing when the wind died away and the ship kept heaving up and down in the swell to look up and see the brightest Milky Way I've ever seen in the night sky — it was a feeling of miraculousness."

'Revolutionaries' Walk Out On Betty Friedan's Group

By ELIZABETH SHELTON
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Because of "irreconcilable ideological conflicts" on what feminism is about, the president of the New York chapter of the National Organization for Women has resigned.

A faction of dissidents followed Miss Grace Atkinson out of the feminist organization founded by author Betty Friedan ("The Feminine Mystique").

The dissidents immediately organized a coalition of "the young the black and the beautiful," under the name of "The Oct. 17 Movement."

"A la Che Guevara," Miss Atkinson explained yesterday. The date marked the "showdown" of N.O.W. members' differences. A long bitter schism based on differences on such issues as marriage, abortions, family and the class system ended in the heat of debate on N.O.D.'s own operating structure.

NO OFFICERS

Mrs. Friedan says her goal is "to get women into positions of power." Miss Atkinson and her followers "want to get rid of positions of power."

To start, Miss Atkinson rid herself of her own.

The new organization will have no officers and no structure. Its goal is to be an action coalition of the student movement the women's movement and the Negro movement.

Miss Atkinson, a Louisiana native, is a candidate for a Ph.D. in philosophy at Columbia University.

She said Wednesday that the 50 members of the new "Oct. 17 movement" include Columbia students.

The struggle within N.O.W. was climaxed Sunday night when a proposal to eliminate offices in the organization was ruled illegal under the bylaws. The young dissenting faction then tried to diffuse the office powers by increasing the number of persons in each office.

This was defeated by a 2-1 majority. Miss Atkinson decided that, since she had failed to get rid of the power positions which she held, she had no choice but to resign.

This left bitter feelings between her and Mrs. Friedan, whom she accused Wednesday of having tried to have her impeached.

The alleged impeachment attempt took place, Miss Atkinson said, after she appeared in court in Boston with Valerie Solanas, who was being tried for the shooting of pop artist Andy Warhol. Mrs. Friedan according to Miss Atkinson, objected to newspaper picture captions stating that Miss Atkinson was appearing in behalf of N.O.W., when she was there on her own.

Conservative N.O.W. members objected also to the young dissidents' support of Bill Baird, an abortion crusader, who uses civil disobedience as a means of getting cases into court.

Miss Atkinson and her followers also:

- Believe in abolition of marriage because they consider it slavery.
- Long for the day of test tube babies so births can be performed without human incubation.

"We wanted to move faster, and they said, 'no, that's too controversial'," Miss Atkinson said.

SUPPORT AMENDMENT

N.O.W. supports the equal rights amendment to the constitution that the national woman's party has been trying to get through Congress for many years.

N.O.W. was founded by Mrs. Friedan after enactment of the civil rights act of 1964, title VII of which prohibits job discrimination on the basis of sex.

It had acted as a watchdog on the equal employment opportunity commission and has entered several court cases involving job discrimination against women. One of these has reached the supreme court.

STUDENTS HAVE PARTY in University of British Columbia faculty club after "liberating" the building Thursday. After music and singing ended this morning, about 60 students continued occupation.

Defiant Students Grab Faculty Club

UBC Group Exits at Noon

VANCOUVER (CP)—Militant students at the University of British Columbia left the university's faculty club premises shortly after noon today to attend a student rally called to discuss their action. It was not immediately known whether they would attempt later to return to the club, which they had occupied for almost 24 hours.

VANCOUVER (CP)—A hard-core group of about 60 students continued their occupation of the faculty club at the University of British Columbia today, rejecting pleas by faculty members and officials to leave the building.

The sit-in demonstration followed a "swinging party" by about 1,000 students who invaded the club Thursday afternoon and 500 stayed throughout the night.

University officials today said they feared violence could erupt among some of the university's 20,000 students if the sit-in demonstration continued.

Most of the students still occupying the club were described as members of the Students for a Democratic Society, a radical organization with about 45 members on the UBC campus.

CALLS MEETING

The Alma Mater Society, student governing body on the campus, condemned the faculty club invasion and was organizing a special general meeting of the student body later today to discuss the issue.

UBC officials and faculty members said there was a danger students opposing the occupation might invade the building in a counter-demonstration against the radicals. They said such action could touch off a violent clash between the opposing groups.

Faculty club officials coolly met the invasion of their premises Thursday by declaring an "open house" and inviting the students to stay for the rest of the day.

Students brought in a five-man combo to play rock music, touching off a swinging party.

LOUD MUSIC

Shortly after midnight, a student, bellowing above jangling music, roared to a telephoning reporter:

"Hey, it's a helluva party out here; why don't you guys come on out?"

"That's right," confirmed Prof. David Huberman, inspecting the dancing, singing crowd in the UBC Faculty Club. "They're having a swinging party."

About 1,000 laughing students "liberated" the building—restricted to members and guests—and about 200 stayed inside. As word of the party spread, the crowd grew to exceed 500 again.

Many of the young persons there said they planned to stay in the club through today. Prof. Huberman, president of the club, said authorities planned no immediate action to remove them.

"The crowd is very orderly and we are not unduly concerned at this stage," he said early today. "However, a lot of these people, in the hard core, are not from our campus. They are hippies."

Students marched light-heartedly on the building after Jerry Rubin, 30, head of the Youth International Party in the United

Bomb Raids Stepped Up

SAIGON (AP) — American fighter-bombers took advantage of improved weather to deal North Vietnam's supply lines some of the heaviest blows given them in several weeks, military spokesmen reported today.

While reports from Washington said lack of agreement on two major points is blocking a complete halt to American bombing of the North, U.S. pilots logged 122 missions Thursday between the demilitarized zone and the 19th parallel.

The improved weather, with scattered clouds at 3,000 feet, continued today as U.S. jets kept up their attacks on North Vietnamese trucks, boats, storage areas, highways and bridges. Reports on today's strikes will not be announced until Saturday.

Authorities also said there is no agreement on including the South Vietnamese government and the National Liberation Front, in the next phase of the Paris peace talks.

Meanwhile, U.S. and South Vietnamese forces kept up their pressure on guerrilla ground forces despite a continuing lull in Communist operations, and military spokesmen reported at least 447 North Vietnamese have been killed in the last three days in the northeast corner of South Vietnam.

Truth About Onassis

Two Attempts Were Made On His Life

This is the second of three artices which tell the behind-the-scenes life of Aristotle Socrates Onassis, who has married Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy.

By FRED SPARKS and STEPHANOS ZOTOS

NEW YORK (NANA) —New York's ultra-expensive Hotel Pierre is on Fifth Avenue at 61st Street, in the heart of Moneyville, U.S.A.

Through the hotel's revolving door, on this particular recent morning, comes a man in his thirties, a swarthy Mediterranean type. He is well groomed, well tailored and very well built. Powerful.

An experienced, observant passerby notes a bulge in the man's jacket under the right shoulder.

The Mediterranean type looks carefully up and down Fifth Avenue, then raises a hand and a Lincoln Continental pulls up to the curb.

Many Would Like to Kill Him

Almost simultaneously Aristotle Socrates Onassis emerges from the hotel, nods at the doorman, and steps into his car. The other man, the Mediterranean type, sits up front. He is Onassis' bodyguard.

Why does Aristotle Onassis, who has just married John F. Kennedy's widow, need a bodyguard?

Well, for one thing, he is one of the richest men in the world, and some hungry genis might try to kidnap him.

For another thing, there are many people who would like to kill him — or have him killed.

Onassis made his billion in the very brass-knuckled business of international shipping — and Lord knows how many other enterprises — and on the way up he made many bitter enemies among rivals, union members, and even among his relatives.

From a long-time Onassis employee, and from a member of the crew of his yacht, Christina, these correspondents learned of two attempts on his life, neither was reported to the authorities.

A disgruntled sailor, charging that Onassis paid "slave wages," approached the tycoon waving a hunting knife with a surgical intent. The bodyguard quickly subdued and disarmed him.

Sniper Fired Three Shots

The other attempt took place one bright afternoon when Onassis was taking the sun on the deck of his yacht. A sniper fired three shots just above his head.

The late international gadabout, Elsa Maxwell, who often was Onassis' guest, once said: "Women love Ari — men hate and fear him."

Onassis has been blacklisted by the Norwegian Shipowners' Association and the British Chamber of Shipping, one of whose members said: "That Onassis chap, he reminds me of a hairy spider."

His own brother-in-law, ship-owner Stavros Niarchos, growled: "Onassis commits political crimes and economic monstrosities."

On the other hand, J. Paul Getty, who has yet to apply for social security, has liberal praise for Onassis' streamlined money machine.

And leading "old money" American banks have financed some of his more spectacular wheeler-dealings. Furthermore, the "elite" of Europe and America are always ready to enjoy his lavish hospitality.

Onassis is sometimes startlingly frank about the necessity of "no nonsense" methods in business.

No Longer Useful?—Drop Them

One time, when Sir Winston Churchill and his doctor, Lord Moran, were cruising on the Christina, Onassis said to Moran: "Sometimes you must be prepared to let your nearest and dearest go to hell when they are no longer of any use to you."

NATO Spy Catchers Face Busy Period

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — Spy-catchers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization are trying to unearth a suspected Soviet espionage ring within and on the fringes of the 15-nation organization, informed sources said Thursday.

Members of national delegations and the international secretariat are being discreetly screened following a series of sudden deaths of military and political persons in West Germany, Italy and Belgium.

They are checking on civilian and military personnel at political headquarters outside Brussels and military headquarters at Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers Europe near Mons in southern Belgium.

There is mounting speculation that the effects of the suspected spy network on NATO defences will be a major topic when NATO foreign and defence ministers meet here Nov. 14-16.

The hunt took on new urgency when a top-ranking Turkish official, Nahit Imre, was caught photocopying secret documents inside the closely-guarded NATO headquarters here in mid-September.

FIVE GERMANS DIE

Five West German officers and civilian government officials mysteriously died during the last two weeks, including Gen. Horst Wendland, deputy head of the intelligence service, and Rear Admiral Hermann Luedke, a former key SHAPE officer in the logistics department.

Officially their deaths were described as suicides, and West German investigators said there is no evidence at present to connect the cases.

In Italy, Gen. Renato Sandalli, former air minister, shot himself Wednesday.

And in Belgium, police are investigating the unexplained death of the Polish-born French wife of an American sergeant employed at SHAPE.

Police said Sgt. Albert Fallon found his wife Irene lying dead in their bedroom when he entered their apartment after midnight one night early this month.

There was a .22-calibre bullet in her head and another in a wall.

Suicides Baffle Bonn

BONN (AP) — The late Rear Admiral Hermann Luedke's premature retirement from a NATO post was not linked with the discovery that he possessed microfilm of secret documents, the West German Parliament was told today.

Eduard Adorno, defence ministry state secretary, answering a series of questions on the suspected espionage affairs, said Luedke, found dead in an Eifel forest Oct. 8, requested early release last March for health reasons. He was 57.

Luedke retired as deputy chief of the logistics department of NATO's European headquarters in Belgium Sept. 30.

Seven days earlier, police were called in by a Bonn photo store which found nine pictures of secret NATO documents on a film handed in by Luedke for developing.

Adorno also told Parliament investigations so far have traced no connection between Luedke's mysterious shooting and the deaths of four other military and civil service officials.

Conrad Ahlers, deputy chief of government spokesman, disclosed at a news conference that six East German agents fled West Germany in early October.

He said two of East German agents "evidently fled back home because of disagreements within the East Berlin espionage apparatus."

Two others left hastily because of the arrest of a colleague who they apparently feared would betray them, Ahlers said.

Planes To Stay

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said today the government does not intend to withdraw Hercules transport planes from the would-be relief operation in Nigeria and Biafra "at least for the next few days."

He said in the Commons in reply to a barrage of opposition questions that the government is trying to obtain Nigerian permission for the Hercules to fly into Biafra from the islands of Sao Tome or Fernando Poo "or anywhere else."

Million Dollars Worth of Relief

By W. RALPH THOMAS

The lady knows she cannot be cured.

Every morning for the rest of her life she will slowly get out of bed and painfully shuffle around for a few hours, trying to get rid of some of the stiffness and soreness in her hands, knees and feet.

Usually the afternoons will be easier than the mornings. Other days the afternoons will be worse.

Arthritis is a peculiar disease, she says.

She first found out about it seven years ago after a bout with polio neuritis. When she recovered from the polio she was left crippled with neuritis. Since then she has learned a great deal about it.

The first thing she learned was that the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society could help her. Treatments at the CARS clinic became one of the most important things in her life.

The hot wax applications loosed the muscles and joints in her hands and feet, giving her relief from the pain for a few hours.

A physiotherapist gave her exercises to strengthen her muscles and to keep them from becoming too stiff.

And most importantly, the staff and patients at the clinic understood that pain and depression are often synonymous.

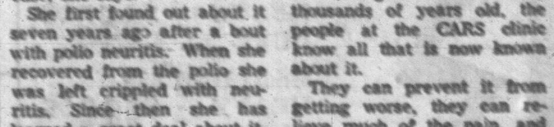
This understanding is as important to most patients as the treatments.

Although there is no cure for arthritis and the methods of treating it are essentially thousands of years old, the people at the CARS clinic know all that is now known about it.

They can prevent it from getting worse, they can relieve much of the pain, and they understand.

The Community Chest supports CARS and will allot $18,750 of this year's $655,000 objective to their program.

This should buy a few million dollars worth of relief for a few hundred sufferers in the Victoria area.



The students hev captured th' faculty club, but it's still a question as t' which side is lackin' its faculties.

Closing School Start of Protest

By CY FOX

LONDON (CP) — First signs of the radical demonstrations expected here this weekend have developed at a long-time hotbed of student discontent, the London School of Economics.

Today the school, situated in the east-central section of the capital, is in a state of paralysis, with some students occupying part of it and others indignant at what they call a decision by its director to cancel classes immediately.

Police are lined up outside the main building of LSE.

Inside, the left-wing students who Thursday night spearheaded a decision to occupy the premises were quietly blocking the entrance and carrying on with denunciations of United States policy in Vietnam.

Opposition to U.S. policy also lies behind extensive demonstration planned by radical groups for Sunday. Authorities fear violence may erupt.

The LSE radicals called for student occupation of their school so that it could be used for "sanctuary, discussion and first aid" by demonstrators—whose numbers, police say, could reach 50,000.

In a Thursday night meeting, they won a close vote in favor of immediate occupation as a way of forestalling the decision by director Dr. Walter Adams that LSE buildings should be shut during the weekend.

This morning, students said that Adams, on hearing of the occupation, had cancelled all classes today.

This provoked anger even on the part of moderates within the student body as well as some members of the teaching staff.

They contended that Adams had not consulted teachers or student leaders before making his cancellation decision.

The moderates, though disagreeing with the anti-U.S. occupation, met in morning sessions in an attempt to have classes continue on a more or less normal basis.

'French-Canadians Risk Identity Loss'

MONTREAL (CP) — La Presse says it is publishing excerpts from a yet-unreleased report of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism because such documents "belong to the people."

In a front-page defence of its action, the newspaper notes that the issue was brought up in the Commons Thursday. Prime Minister Trudeau told the House he was "distressed" by the reports and asked the solicitor-general to investigate whether theft is involved.

"We wish to state that we obtained these documents in the normal performance of our mission to inform the public," La Presse says.

"We receive them from a reliable source and we took steps to assure ourselves of their authenticity. We decided to publish them because it is our opinion that they belong to the people."

The series of articles began Tuesday and is to end with a final story Saturday. The articles are described as excerpts from the commission's third report, dealing with the "economic aspects of the two cultures." Jean-Louis Gagnon, co-chairman of the commission, has said the excerpts are authentic.

MUST RISK IT

In its fourth article today, La Presse says the commission established that a French-speaking Canadian has to risk the loss of his identity to succeed in the world of big business.

"The young French-speaking person who wants to make his career in industry finds himself in a dilemma: He feels he must choose between his personal advancement and the partial loss of his linguistic and cultural identity.

"If French-speaking people take the interests of their company to heart and absorb them fully, it is at the risk, they feel, of selling out their individual identity as well as their collective responsibility to the society and the culture in which they were born."

Half the French-speaking executives employed by major firms felt that one of their number who moves up in the company "is more English than French."

A French-Canadian who has received several promotions in an English-speaking firm "has to protect the interests of English-Canadians to the detriment of those of French-Canadians."

The commission found that

'He'll Never Make It' Prophecy Heralds Death

By DON DINGWALL

DUNCAN—A passenger in a car being overtaken said "He'll never make it" as a pickup truck sped past them on the Trans-Canada Highway near here September 27.

He was tragically prophetic. Leon Louis Bertrand, 22, died instantly after crashing head on into a car coming the other way.

Esquimalt seaman John David Harvey, testifying at the inquest Thursday evening, said Bertrand hugged the centre line after overtaking and maintained a speed between 60 and 70 miles an hour.

Mr. Harvey said: "You could see he was having trouble controlling the pickup.

"There was a boom, a cloud of dust and I saw the pickup roll over and over into the ditch."

OPEN VERDICT

The coroner's jury was only out 15 minutes before returning an open verdict that Bertrand, of Cowichan Station, died as the result of severe injuries received in the accident.

A recommendation was made to the highways department to change the broken line to a solid line on the stretch of highway quarter of a mile north of Duncan on the approach to a curve.

Driver of the car involved in the crash was James Hoggan, 60, of 710 Kings Road, Victoria.

He said: "We were driving south when all of a sudden this truck came out of a bunch of cars right in front of me. I had no chance to swerve or do anything.

"He must have been travelling at a terrific speed."

SAW CRASH

Campbell River school teacher Mrs. Sharon Cameron who was travelling two cars behind Hoggan said the collision forced the front ends of both cars up in the air before the truck continued into the ditch.

She said the impact was at least partially in the southbound lane.

RCMP Cpl. Colin Smith gave evidence of an analysis showing Bertrand had a .20 per cent reading of alcohol in the blood. (Accepted level for impairment is .15).

Thomas Richard Sheridan, 5231 Sanata Clara, Victoria, said he was directly behind the Hoggan car and had to swerve into the shoulder of the road to avoid being hit by the truck.

He said the pickup had pulled out of a line of northbound traffic directly into Hoggan's path.

DISINTEGRATED

He said: "As it came towards me after hitting Hoggan pieces of the truck came off and the roof of it hit my car."

Mrs. Isobel Felton, 6435 Welsh Road, Victoria, was driving the car in which Harvey was a passenger.

She said that after the impact radiator fluid sprayed over her windshield and debris, including a tire, flew over her car.

Mrs. Felton said she felt there was plenty of room for Bertrand to have pulled safely back into his own lane after passing her.

She said he had been swerving across the white line dividing the two northbound lanes nearer Duncan.

Mechanic Roland Brown of Duncan testified examination showed the pickup to have been in excellent working condition.

He said: "It seemed to be a real young man's truck with a very high-powered motor."

FIRE IN SMOKEHOUSE SURE LOOKED FISHY

CAMPBELL RIVER—Where there is smoke, there isn't necessarily fire, or so Fire Chief Bill McIntosh admits.

A motorist had reported smoke coming from a large building on the Indian Reserve. McIntosh sped to the scene. There was smoke coming from the building. He radioed for one fire truck and a full crew .

When the truck arrived McIntosh cautiously threw open the door of the building and found a salmon smokehouse.

"Well," explained the chief, "it didn't look like a smokehouse".

High School Protest Spreads on Island

CAMPBELL RIVER — Hundreds of students from the senior high school staged a protest rally here last night to focus attention on their need for a gymnasium.

"We've waited four years for a gymnasium," student body leader Wanda Lanaour told the school trustees and parents who attended the rally. "We wonder why Premier Bennett refuses to provide facilities for physical education in our school."

Superintendent of schools James Logie said that the department of education is blamed for everything. "The freeze on school construction first begain in 1966 because of exorbitant interest rates.

"I agree that a gym is an integral part of any school but the department policy is that gyms, cafeterias and activity rooms are still frozen. That is it."

"It's taken sweat to establish the academic and vocational wings," said board chairman Bruce Saunders. "We've ended up with the finest school in B.C. These are fantastic kids and they deserve a gym."

POLITICAL ACTION

Saunders promised political action the cheering students. He said arrangements would be made to either send students with a petition to Victoria or sent the trustees.

Students collected 3,100 signatures in a door-to-door campaign and these along with dozens of letters protesting the lack of a gym will be forwarded to Premier Bennett. Earlier in the day students had organized a protest rally in the downtown shopping area led by the school band.

Test Successful

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—The triple-warhead Minuteman 3 missile has advanced another step toward its role as No. 1 U.S. strategic rocket with a second successful test firing.

The swift intercontinental range missile was fired from an underground silo Thursday and flung its warhead package toward a target area more than 5,000 miles away, near Ascension Island in the South Atlantic. It covered the course in 22 minutes. The weapon is to be operational in 1970.

Vandalism, Thefts Hit Port Alberni

PORT ALBERNI — City RCMP officials here have asked citizen aid in apprehending culprits after an outbreak of break-ins and vandalism.

City council posted a $50 cash reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of vandals damaging city property.

The reward was voted after stops signs had been removed from intersections by what Mayor Fred Bishop termed "motorized maniacs."

And aldermen observed such actions were almost equivalent to murder since they could cause an accident to someone unfamiliar with the streets.

REPORT PROWLERS

Meanwhile, RCMP have asked for assistance from anyone seeing unauthorized persons around business premises, or noticing suspicious actions, especially at night.

More than a dozen break-ins have been reported in the past week. Some establishments have been missing money or goods, other have been damaged.

Two other centres in northern Vancouver Island — Nanaimo and Campbell River — have also reported a recent upsurge in such crimes.

School Bomb Hoax

COURTENAY — Police said Thursday that two students admitted making a hoax bomb call which led to evacuation of more than 800 students at Courtenay Junior High School.

A telephone call to RCMP during the school lunch break said there was a bomb in the building. A search revealed nothing.

DUNCAN — All members of the executive of Duncan local 1-80 of the IWA expect to be challenged at the elections in November.

But so far there is no official word of nominees to stand against president Weldon Jubenville who has been in office five years.

About 4,200 members will be eligible to vote and nominations will be made at a special meeting here Saturday.

Other executive members at present are: first vice-president Fernie Viala; financial secretary Ed Linder; second vice-president William Hanna; third vice-president Hugh Robinson; recording secretary Carl Stevens and conductor William Milburn.

PORT ALBERNI — The boycott problem at E. J. Dunn Junior high school ended Thursday after trustees contacted parents of absentees.

About 30 students stayed out of classes Thursday morning in a further protest against the lack of a proper gymnasium and some other facilities.

An hour-long explanation offered students by school board trustees Wednesday night had failed to quell the dissent. So parents were phoned.

School trustee Jack Whittal meanwhile suggested students obtain a copy of the Public Schools Act and become knowledgeable about what can be done under the act.

He said students could then influence their parents to vote for a new referendum if the board was successful in obtaining one.

VICTORIA B.C., FRIDAY, OCT. 25, 1968—PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

A matter of extraordinary importance to our district is coming up on Saturday, and if you are a property-owner I urge you not to let it go unheeded. This is the referendum which, if passed, will prepare the way for the first phase of the hospital plan.

The load on our hospitals, as they stand now, is terrific.

If you wish a graphic example of their situation, try pouring a quart of water into a pint bottle.

This phase will provide about 600 beds for "extended care" patients, thereby taking some of the strain off our "acute care" hospitals. That's why I am making an earnest pitch for your "Yes" vote in a referendum that calls for a 60-per-cent majority if it is to pass.

On Thursday, the Times published a list of polling stations . . . you will find them on Page 25 of that day's paper. If you believe, as I do, that we should make a start on a job which concerns us all, I hope you will turn out whatever the weather.

★

A Royal Jubilee Hospital official defines acute care as the sort that calls for a general hospital's facilities: X-ray, surgery, lab tests and the like.

Extended care is for the patient who no longer rates acute care, but who still requires nursing service round the clock by registered nurses, and continuing medical supervision.

In theory, the patient who has progressed into that category may be moved elsewhere, thus freeing a bed for the next person who has contracted pneumonia, let us suppose, or who is host to a rampaging appendix.

But what do you do with the extended care case if you've no place to send him?

What our general hospitals are doing is sending him home if he's up to it, and has a home in which he can be tended. Otherwise he stays in and by a daily miracle, bedspace is shoehorned for the next acute care patient in the unending string.

(If you aren't an "acute," but could use a spot of surgery, you join the long, long waiting list.)

Today, we have three institutions that take extended care patients. All are working to capacity.

One is our excellent DVA hospital, for veterans only.

The other two are Mt. St. Mary's and St. Mary's Priory, Colwood.

A highly-placed medical man described the work of their staffs as "magnificent" — a word his tight-mouthed clan uses sparingly. But they work in buildings the use of which is only justified by present shortage.

★

We have the luck—both good and bad—to live in a unique Canadian city.

When I first came to Greater Victoria as a resident in the early 'fifties, I found a town and countryside committed more to its past than its present. Some of its public officials were determinedly old-fashioned, others downright pastoral in their approach.

Such attitudes didn't encourage needful change, and if a tragedy exists here, it is that this region refused to meet the demands imposed by a growth-rate nothing less than spectacular.

This with a population explosion that year by year continued to snowball.

True, we responded with some building, some improvement of our notoriously shaky public services. But the story here has been, too little and too late, and we are now faced with major needs.

One of these is a program of hospital construction that can be delayed further only at our peril. I can only hope that a provincial government even more tardy in foreseeing and acting upon the need stands prepared to pay its just share of the cost.

I don't think we have time to waste jangling and hair-splitting over imperatively-needed hospital construction.

The referendum that will permit a start comes to the vote tomorrow. Even if you're healthy today, vote it through.

$2-3 Million Barge Job For Yarrows

By PAUL MUSGROVE

A 400-foot barge—largest ever to be built on the west coast—will be built by Yarrows, Ltd. here.

The contract has a value estimated between $2 million and $3 million. It comes in the wake of pyramiding lay-offs and indicates a busy work schedule until completion in May.

Owner is Rivtow Marine of Vancouver. Rivtow president Cecil Cosulich said he expects the contract to be signed in a week or 10 days.

"It will take some time to work out details of the contract," he said.

Mr. Cosulich said a letter of intent will be sent to Yarrows Monday.

The barge, the biggest ever built on the west coast, will carry two cranes and will be used to haul logs from the Kitimat area to Vancouver Island.

"We have a 10-year contract with MacMillan Bloedel," Mr. Cosulich said.

From the outset, the contract for the barge depended on the deal between MacMillan and Rivtow.

10 BIDS

Mr. Cosulich said once the barge order had been decided upon, the tenders were opened to international bidding.

"We had about 10 bids, from across the country as well as England and Ireland.

"I certainly admired the way Yarrows fought for the job."

John Wallace, general manager of Yarrows, said the contract is not yet signed and refused to comment.

Neil Hindle, business agent for the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, said today 16 union members were laid off work at Yarrows on Thursday.

Fourteen more were laid off today, bringing the total to 30.

Mr. Hindle suggested up to 200 men might find work on a barge of the size indicated by Rivtow, but termed the contract a "false hope," for future prosperity in shipbuilding.

Ratepayers Oppose Park Slice

The Elk Lake and Saanich Ratepayers Association opposes use of any dedicated parkland for widening Patricia Bay Highway, its president said today.

John Bimko said the idea in dedicating Elk-Beaver Lake as a park when the regional district bought it from the city of Victoria, was that it would be for all people for all time.

"We feel no one should cut into the park and the highway widening should cut into the other side of the road," he said.

Similar thoughts have come from the Capital Region Planning Board, which is seeking an appointment with Highways Minister Wesley Black so a delegation can be heard.

SECOND LOOK

The board, in a resolution, has asked the highways department to take a further look at the Elk-Beaver Lake section of the highway to institute the proposed freeway route to the east along the ridge.

Mr. Bimko said his association has taken no stand on the ridge route suggestion but simply does not want any road widening to slice into parkland.

The association believed the area should be used for people who want sports.

"We favor a golf course, for example. We want people to be able to use the park, rather than just sit there."

Architects Shun Blanshard St. Renewal Plan

'Won't Delay Us' Says City Manager

By JIM HUME

Architects in British Columbia have locked on a collision course with the provincial government on the matter of low-rental housing design.

The battle lines were drawn when the Architectural Institute of British Columbia informed all members that under no circumstances were they to become involved in low-rental housing scheme designs in Victoria and Burnaby.

In a confidential letter to every registered architect in the province, the Institute has warned that any architect working on design for contractors bidding on the jobs under the "call-for-proposal" system, instituted by the province, would be liable to reprimand and suspension from the Institute.

The battle between the architects and the provincial government has been brewing for more than two years.

Provincial authorities claim that the call-for-proposals from contractors can result in savings of up to 20 per cent on total costs.

Architects say such thinking is naive.

Cause of the division lies in the shaving of architectural responsibility under the call-for-proposal system.

Where an architect designs a project for an owner, he then becomes the owner's representative to make sure the contractor meets specifications as the job progresses.

Under the call-for-proposals system the contractor hires the architect and controls both design and specifications.

Architects claim that being an employee of the contractor rather than the owner, they lost control of the project and the door is left open for cost savings which could be detrimental to the owner of the building under construction.

In July, 1967, local architect John Di Castri summed up the difference this way: "In a situation of this kind the architect must take instructions from the contractor.

Wheaton to Submit Proposal

"The contractor is engaged in a field which is highly competitive on a price basis and therefore, if his ideas for a scheme have already been crystallized from the point of view of economics, then the architect will have to comply with those ideas even though they may not be the best solution. After all the contractor is paying the architect's fee."

Local contractor George Wheaton, interviewed from Harrison Hot Springs this morning, disagrees.

"There are certain projects which just can't be let under a call-for-proposals," he said. "But a low rental housing project isn't one of them.

"When the call for proposals on the 180 housing units for the Rose-Blanshard scheme is made my firm will be submitting a proposal.

"I think that we, and other firms in this province, are quite capable of doing that.

"If you have a very complex building or project then I think you need an architect in on the ground floor. But, after all, basically all you are doing in the Rose-Blanshard is designing one small house and repeating it 180 times.

"There can be quite a saving in costs when the design and costing team work together on a project like that."

City manager Dennis Young said he regretted to see the fight between the architects and the provincial government flare into the open over the Rose-Blanshard proposals.

"It has been coming for some time," he said. "But it seems unfortunate that a desperately needed low-rental housing scheme should be the issue they make a stand on."

He was hopeful that provincial and architectural authorities would be able to get together and iron out their differences.

Mr. Young said that while the Architectural Institute's stand was unfortunate at this time the threat of suspension from the Institute would not delay construction of the 180 housing units once proposals were called.

"I think there are enough contractors around with design teams to get the project under way once the federal government authorizes the call for proposals," he said.

HOLD-UP TERM: 5 YEARS

A 22-year-old Toronto man today was sentenced to five years in the B.C. penitentiary for the armed robbery of Ernie's Fine Foods, 1616 Hillside, on May 11.

Peter Simpson was also sentenced to 2½ years for theft of a car which was used in the robbery. The sentences will run concurrently.

Half an hour after the hold-up, while being chased by police, the car smashed into a tree at View Royal. Simpson, who was driving, suffered a broken foot and head injuries. His companions — Robert Rickward, 20, and Roger McEwan, 22 — died soon after.

In Victoria Assize Court, Simpson asked to be sent to a provincial jail because, he said, it is "very hard" for a man who has been in the federal penitentiary to get employment.

He admitted to previous convictions for breaking and entering and theft in Ontario over the past three years, and said:

"I've had enough. I don't want no more. I want to learn a trade. But, when you go for a job, an employer won't take you if you have been in the penitentiary."

FATHER OF 7 KILLED BY TRACTOR

Ronald Reeves, 44, was crushed to death at Fulford Harbor Thursday when a tractor he was using to pull a truck in heavy mud overturned.

Reeves, father of seven children, was working on the dairy farm of Roger Hughes.

An inquest was ordered by Salt Spring Island coroner M. F. Pixler.

Advance Polls Indicating Light Turnout

The first day of advance polling for the $9.3 million hospital referendum indicates a light turnout when the final decision is made Saturday.

Only 55 votes were cast throughout the region Thursday at advance polling stations scattered from Sooke to the Gulf Islands.

Of that total 35 were cast in the Greater Victoria area with Victoria accepting 11 advance votes, Oak Bay and Saanich 12 votes each.

Property owners only are allowed to vote today and Saturday on the decision to spend more than $9 million to build 600 extended care beds and provide funds for construction and equipment for existing hospitals.

48 STATIONS

Some 48 polling stations will open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday to record the vote. A 60-per-cent majority of the votes cast is required for the referendum to pass.

On Thursday Dr. A. C. Pickles, Royal Jubilee Hospital medical director told the Victoria Rotary Club a "no" vote would produce a "disaster situation."

Similar warnings have been issued by municipal leaders throughout the area who state the 600 extended care beds are essential if the critical bed shortage is to be relieved.

No decision has yet been made by the regional hospital district as to where the new extended care hospitals should be built but it has been recommended that four new hospitals or existing hospital extensions be built each comprised of a 150-bed unit.

Ask The Times

Q. Can you tell me if you can raise worms for fishing and how to raise them?—M.M.

A. Ideal conditions are rich compost and dampness. Worms can be fed almost any sort of vegetable waste, leaf mold or organic garbage. Tea leaves have been recommended as a diet delicacy. A recommended method of keeping the pile damp—not wet—is to spread an old gunny sack over it and keep that moist at all times. Worms breed year around, though cold weather or dryness might cause them to become dormant.

B.C. PLANS TREE-SPRAYING HERE

U.S. Bans Diseased Trees

By HUMPHRY DAVY

An outbreak of a pear tree disease here has resulted in a ban by the United States on entry of any Canadian junipers.

And a provincial government tree-spraying program has been scheduled for this area.

This is the only known place the infection is known to occur in Canada at present.

Juniper is the alternate host for pear-trellis-rust as the disease is known. It moves back and forth in air-borne spores from pear tree to shrub.

* * *

Roy P. Messum, federal plant protection officer, said the disease will have to be eradicated from the Greater Victoria area to prevent it from spreading to commercial orchards on the mainland.

"It's got to be done," he said. "We hope all residents will co-operate."

A spray program will be launched by the plant protection branch next spring, at no cost to home owners, he said.

Thousands of junipers are used for landscaping homes in the Greater Victoria area, as well as hundreds of pear trees scattered in private gardens.

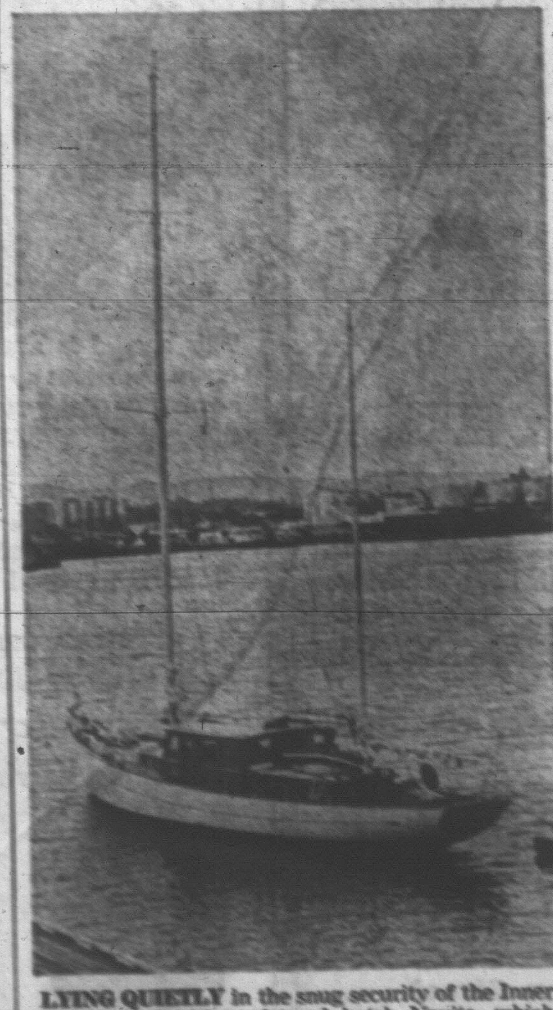
Mr. Messum said juniper shrubs are shipped to the United States as ornamentals but their entry has been prohibited until the disease is eradicated.

The U.S. ban applies to all Canada.

* * *

The disease damages leaves, thus reducing pear crops. It can be identified by orange spots on the pear leaves.

It can be controlled by spraying trees with a fungicide called Acti-dione, but Mr. Messum warned gardeners not to use the spray if the tree is in fruit.



LYING QUIETLY in the snug security of the Inner Harbor is Seattle-registered ketch Navita, which was temporarily disabled and driven 100 miles offshore by a Cape Flattery gale earlier this week.

Second Student Rebel Speaks at University

The second student activist to speak at Uvic in less than a week will appear Monday at the Student Union Building.

Mark Rudd, leader of the revolt last year at New York's Columbia University and head of Students for a Democratic Society, has been invited by the Uvic political forum.

He follows by six days Yippie leader Jerry Rubin, who was also invited by the forum.

Rudd is one of the leading advocates in the United States of a student takeover of university campuses. He will address students at 12:30.

The forum has also invited Dr. Alexander Von Hause, sent by the West German government, to speak on England, France and the Common Market at 12:30 Tuesday.

Mother's Concern Proves Telepathic

By JOHN MIKA

Green seas smashing over a sailboat wallowing helplessly in a southeast gale off Cape Flattery can activate mother love 200 miles away.

At least it did last Sunday when Mrs. E. F. Ambery, 207 St. Patrick, was filled with frantic foreboding for her son's safety. She telephoned the puzzled U.S. Coast Guard station at Neah Bay about her feeling of dread.

A few hours later the USCG station got another call from the opposite direction — a Mayday distress radio signal from the 63-foot Seattle ketch "Navita" being pounded by wind-whipped waves of up to 25 feet, its sails ripped and engine out of action.

"It was just ESP (extrasensory perception) I guess but my mom just knew I was in trouble," 20-year-old Peter Ambery told The Times this morning.

"She just knew it so strongly that she phoned the Neah Bay station to ask them to look for us and even phoned a friend she knows who owns a plane to come back from Italy to help the search."

●

Her foreboding at the time was more than shared by Peter.

"I've done a lot of sailing but this was the first time I really thought I was going to die," he said.

Small wonder, when the same storm sent the 600-foot tramp freighter Continental Shipper running for Victoria after seas buckled a section of railing and shifted a deck-load of timber so that she listed a full degree to port.

Peter has taken a year off for adventure and travel after completing his second year of an economics and arts course at the University of Victoria.

He heard about the berth available on Navita—owned by San Francisco Dr. James Watt who was heading for Mexico—Saturday night and on Sunday morning he was aboard as she made her departure from Sidney.

"I knew that Cape Flattery was a challenge at this time of year, but I guess we bit off more than we could chew—although we would have been all right if water hadn't got into the fuel to put our engine out of action," he said.

The storm hit that night and for the next 50 hours there was no sleep, no meals and no relief from the sea sickness and fear caused by the ocean's fury as it progressively split sails, stopped the engine and ignored the last-resort sea anchor streamed from the bow.

●

The worst moment came as the radio set was smashed during a particularly violent lurch, cutting off the last link between the four humans, one dog and four cats aboard from USCG planes and cutters searching for them — miles from the wrong area as it turned out because the Mayday call had underestimated how far offshore Navita had been driven.

The roller-coaster ride ended Tuesday as the wind died out, a small sail was rigged and brought them within sight of a searching plane and, after a tow to Neah Bay, Navita returned to the Inner Harbor under its own power.

After catching up lost sleep and stability in the stable sanctuary of his own home, Peter suddenly interrupted the description of his ordeal with: "You know, now that I think of it, it was a tremendous experience, the whole thing, really something to remember.

"It was the most wonderful thing when the wind died away and the ship kept heaving up and down in the swell to look up and see the brightest Milky Way I've ever seen in the night sky — it was a feeling of miraculousness."

Soviet Stand Douses Any Bitter UN Debate

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The General Assembly today winds up a general policy debate that opened three weeks ago on a note of crisis but turned into one of the mildest such exchanges in UN history.

U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk opened the annual parade of policy statements Oct. 2 with a blunt dressing down of the Soviet Union that most delegates thought would touch off a bitter East-West debate.

Rusk denounced the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia as a violation of the UN charter and warned the Russians not to interfere in West Germany as they had threatened. He also questioned the new Moscow doctrine that asserted the right to interfere in the internal affairs of other Communist states.

Instead of the expected counterblast, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko replied in unusually moderate tones. He managed to take a good deal of the heat out of the Czechoslovak question by making a quick bid for a detente with the West and generally projecting the image of a peaceful power.

Gromyko did not retreat from the Soviet position that the occupation of Czechoslovakia was necessary to maintain the "Soviet Commonwealth." But his remarks about Vietnam were limited to a call for a bombing halt and lacked the usual invective the Communists employ on that topic.

The Soviet minister laid heaviest stress on a call for peace through disarmament and arms control. He said the Soviet government is ready to start a "serious exchange of views" with the United States on mutual limitation and reduction of strategic nuclear weapons.

Blasts Rock Athens

ATHENS (AP)—Three explosions rocked this Greek capital Thursday night, causing little damage and no casualties but sending panic through the streets. The explosions, believed to have been caused by plastic bombs, were presumably the work of persons in opposition to the army-backed government.

Largest Ever Citizenship Ceremony

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

It was the biggest citizenship ceremony Victoria has ever seen.

Fifty-three men and women, originating from 14 countries of Europe and Asia, became Canadian citizens in a staid but friendly ceremony at Victoria Law Courts Thursday afternoon.

Court officials said they had never seen so many sworn in at one time, and there wasn't an empty seat in the courtroom.

The citizens occupied the front six rows of seats facing the judge's bench. Friends, relatives, spectators and members of Greater Victoria Citizenship Council and its affiliates, filled the rows behind.

The jury box and the press box were also filled and CGIT girls in uniform stood by.

The citizens were called forward one row at a time and stood before the judge's bench while they repeated the oath of allegiance after R. J. Clark, president of the Citizenship Court of British Columbia.

CERTIFICATES

Mr. Clark, in black gown and white cravat, sat in the judge's bench while he called out the words of the oath. Then he stepped down from the bench and shook hands with the new citizens as he presented each with a naturalization certificate.

"Canada welcomes you," he said in a brief address. "We believe we are one of the most fortunate nations in the world and we sincerely hope you will find prosperity and happiness among us.

"We have secured many liberties for our nation, but the price of liberty is eternal vigilance, and we must be on guard against any invasion of our liberties."

The new citizens were also welcomed by Mrs. A. B. Carson, president of Greater Victoria Citizenship Council, and George Atamanenko of the Capital Region Planning Board.

COFFEE PARTY

They were then entertained at a coffee party given by the council in the Memorial Hall of Christ's Church Cathedral.

The new Canadians, with country of origin in brackets, are: [illegible]

Visitor Leaves His Card

VANCOUVER (CP) — Wayne Bohn did his best to save a branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia Thursday night but he lost his shirt.

Finally, the visitor who raised a stink in the building left, leaving overwhelming evidence of his presence.

Mr. Bohn, a cleaner, threw his shirt at the invader. The skunk retaliated by blasting the shirt as well as the floor and walls.

Two cleaners and two policemen closed all doors but one. Finally, the skunk trotted out into the alley.

Mr. Bohn said cleaners splashed a powerful industrial deodorant around but its success has yet to be determined.

"The bank," sniffed Mr. Bohn, "has a strong oniony smell."

'Broaden Educational Offerings'

Shoreline junior high school opened Thursday as the province's newest school, just a few yards from where B.C.'s first school stood in 1855.

A crowd of about 500 persons attended the ceremonies.

The school is located at Shoreline and the Old Island Highway by Christie Point, and was built to accommodate 700 pupils.

Authorized by ratepayers in 1964 at an estimated cost of $720,000, the school eventually cost $1,014,445.

A bronze plaque marking the occasion was unveiled by Claudette Lamontagne, 15, prime minister of the student parliament.

Guest of honor at the ceremony was Joseph Chell, superintendent of the Greater Victoria school district, who called for a boradening of educational offerings to meet the needs of society.

The Grade 12 system is dominated by university entrance requirements, he said and should offer more training for those who want technical skills.

City Wants Second Look At Bylaw

Victoria city council Thursday referred back to committee a bylaw that would prevent traffic from entering intersections while they were blocked by other cars.

The bylaw, which Mayor Hugh Stephen said would catch him at least twice a week, was initially turned down by council.

He said he had reservations about the law, which would catch "innocent" drivers when it was intended to stop the "gross violators."

It would make it illegal for a driver to enter an intersection unless there was room for his car on the other side. The intent was to stop motorists from edging into an intersection to make a left turn and being caught there when the light changed. This frequently slows traffic on the cross street.

The proposed law will be reconsidered in committee before appearing again before council.

Mine, Wood Industries Blast Govt.

VERNON (CP) — The British Columbia government came under fire Thursday from the mining and forest industries at a conference on the economic outlook for south-central B.C.

R. M. Porter, manager of Cominco Ltd. operations at Kimberley, said the mining industry does not enjoy a climate which would encourage investors to put up "huge amounts of capital."

And Horace Simpson, manager of a sawmill division of Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd., criticized government requirements that the forest industry cut and use more small trees.

Mr. Porter complained: "We are paying taxes on our machinery . . . The provincial government this year passed legislation discriminating against the mining industry, amounting to a 50 per cent increase in the resources tax."

He said there also had been "harmful changes" in depreciation allowances and mining exploration had been discouraged. In addition, "we are also paying the highest mine wages on the whole continent."

Mr. Simpson said the forest industry is caught in a squeeze between government orders to cut small wood and the problem of marketing the lumber that is produced from small trees.

"How can you saw a two-by-12 beam out of a six-inch tree? What can we do if the chief market demand is for large-sized lumber and we must cut and mill mostly small trees?"

Sales, Earnings By GM Increase

NEW YORK (AP) — A 14-per-cent increase in sales and higher earnings in the third quarter ended Sept. 30 have been reported by General Motors Corp.

Chairman James M. Roche and president Edward N. Cole said sales in the period were $4,300,000,000 compared with $3,800,000,000 in the 1967 third quarter.

Net income in the period amounted to $182,000,000, or 62 cents a share, compared with $149,000,000, or 51 cents a share, in third quarter 1967.

DIVIDENDS

MARKET SUMMARIES

Industrials Turn Mixed

Industrial list was mixed in trading today on the Toronto stock exchange while western oils and base metals were firm.

There was activity in B-A Oil after the company announced plans to split the stock 2 for 1, to raise the dividend rate and to amalgamate with two subsidiaries, Royalite Oil Co. and Shawinigan Chemicals Ltd.

Wall Street was higher.

AT TORONTO, in industrials, Great West Life gained 3½ to 70½, Dylex Diversified 3 to 46½, Peel Elder 2⅛ to 49⅜ and Seaway Hotels 1½ to 26½. Bow Valley fell 1⅞ to 25½ and Canada Bread 1¼ to 16⅞.

Bankeno was up $1.05 to $6.05, Patino ⅞ to 38⅝ and Teck Corp. 50 cents to $5.70. Granisle Copper lost ⅜ to 12⅞.

Charter Oil rose ⅜ to 17⅞, Asamera 20 cents to $7.65 and Chieftain Development 15 cents to $9.90.

AT NEW YORK early softness in blue chips was gradually overcome as selective buying, buoyed by new hopes that during the weekend some positive peace news might develop, got under way.

Phelps Dodge, whose shareholders approved a two-for-one stock split, advanced about 2½. The company also raised its dividend. Bristol Myers, down 1¼, paced the list on volume.

Gulf and Western and Sinclair were each off fractions, following word that Sinclair's board had decided a possible tender from G and W would not be in the best interests of Sinclair.

AT MONTREAL the market continued to lose ground in moderately active trading today. Mines and oils led the decline.

Denison fell 1½ to 73½, Union 1 to 50, Hudson Bay Mining ⅜ to 72⅝ and Imperial ⅛ to 73. B-A added ⅞ at 47⅞.

Home Oil issues strengthened as the company's A stock climbed 1¼ to 31⅞ and B went up ⅜ to the same value.

Wajax dropped 1 to 28, Calgary Power ⅛ to 25⅝, Canada Steamship Lines ⅛ to 33⅛, Consolidated Bathurst ½ to 17⅛ and CPR ⅜ to 71⅛.

AT LONDON the stock market today ended a week of receding prices on a distinctly dull note. Prices moved lower on a broad front.

Gilt-edged issues held up for a while, but on news of a higher British treasury bill rate, prices drifted lower.

Losses in equities were fairly widespread, but they rarely exceeded a shilling.

Dollar stocks were generally irregular, with Canadian issues making the best showing, among them B-A Oil, Massey-Ferguson and Trans-Canada Pipe Lines.

AT VANCOUVER Copper Ridge was the feature in pre-noon trading today, putting on .21 to $1.24 on 174,000 shares.

Another heavy trader was Calico, which gained .06 to .84 on 316,000 shares. Magnum was up .05 at $3.90 on 154,000 shares and Western Mines was .04 better at $2.90.

Ace, however, was off .12 at .60 and Silver Arrow lost .03 to .40.

In the industrials, EDP gained $1 to $23 and Fields improved .75 to $18.

Bata was the leading trader in the oils, losing .12 to $2.65 on 25,200 shares.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Curtailed trading on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today slackened more toward the close on a trend toward lower price levels.

Buying interest in rapeseed and flax was on the dips. There was small exporter buying in flax and some U.S. commission house interest in rapeseed.

There were only a few trades by domestic shippers in oats and a little milder buying in barley. Rye was limited mostly to inter-month spreading.

CHICAGO (AP)—A renewal of some trade feelings that the U.S. government might make a Vietnam peace development announcement this weekend tended to influence active buying of soybeans and grain futures on the board of trade today.

Brycon Ex. Ltd.

Ore stockpiling has been underway for a month on Brycon Explorations Ltd. property on the Hyland River as the company projects a 2,000-ton daily operation.

President Steve Sersli said placer mining had been producing a ton of concentrate from each 400 tons of ore and arrangements are being made for treating and refining concentrates in Vancouver starting in the spring.

Assays place the value of gold, silver, platinum and tin at more than $800 per ton of concentrate.
